PREFACE.

THE Tamil and Sanskrit inscriptions contained in this volume, were, for the most part, copied in situ by myself, after taking up the appointment of Epigraphist to the Government of Madras on the 21st November 1886. The original manuscript, which was forwarded to Dr. Burgess on the 20th September 1887, contained only the materials collected on my first tour to the Seven Pagodas (12th to 22nd December 1886) and to parts of the North Arcot District (6th January to 22nd April 1887). As Dr. Burgess considered it desirable that this manuscript should be revised and enlarged, and as a considerable number of types had to be cut before it could be printed, I was enabled to add the Sanskrit and Tamil inscriptions of the Kailāsanātha Temple at Kāñchipuram, where I stayed from the 27th September to the 19th October 1887, a few inscriptions copied during my next two tours, and some historically important copper-plate grants. A second volume, which will contain the inscriptions of the great temple at Tanjore, is now nearly ready for the press.

The first object kept in view in the preparation of this volume, has been scrupulous accuracy in the minutest details of the transcripts. The second aim was, not merely to give a translation of each record, but to extract from it all the historical facts, to support and supplement these by a comparison of similar records, and thus to contribute some share to a future history of Southern India.

For the Tamil inscriptions I was fortunate enough to have an able and efficient helpmate in my assistant, Mr. V. Venkayya, M.A., a Tamil Brahmin, who promises to do excellent work in the field of South-Indian Epigraphy. It is still a popular opinion that a colloquial knowledge of one of the vernaculars with a slight smattering of Sanskrit is sufficient for editing successfully the records of bygone times. But this is an undertaking which, besides good linguistic attainments, requires careful training in the methods followed by the European school of classical philology; and, before all, an earnest and patient desire for truth,—the object of all science. It is to be hoped that other young native graduates will follow on Mr. Venkayya's lines and take up the neglected subject of South-Indian Epigraphy. The records are so numerous, and so many intricate historical questions have still to be solved, that there is room for a large number of independent qualified workers.

In editing the Tamil inscriptions, it was necessary to deviate somewhat from the method followed by Dr. Bühler and Mr. Fleet in their publication of Sanskrit inscriptions. The spelling of the originals is so arbitrary that, in order to correct all inaccuracies, the editor would have to give two transcripts of each inscription, an uncorrected and a corrected one. Thus, for instance, ś n and ś r are interchangeable with ś s and ś r. The letters ṣ ḍ and ḡ

A grant from the Sir W. Elliot Collection (No. 39) enabled me to extend the pedigree of the Eastern Chalukyan dynasty¹ and to fix with great probability the time of three Chola kings,² whose names, together with those of some predecessors, were known from the large Leyden grant.³ The regnal years of one of these kings can now be converted into years of the Śaka era through Mr. Fleet's calculation of a lunar eclipse, which, according to an inscription at Tiruvallam, took place in the 7th year of Rājarāja.⁴ A pedigree of the first dynasty of Vijayanagara is furnished by an inscription, which is still at their former capital (No. 153).

The books, from which I have derived most help, are Böhrtlingk and Roth's great Sanskrit Dictionary, Böhrtlingk's abridged Sanskrit Dictionary, the excellent Dictionnaire Tamoul-Français, Pondichéry, 1855 and 1862, Burgess's and Fleet's Indian Antiquary, Fleet's Dynasties of the Kanarese Districts of the Bombay Presidency, and Sewell's Lists of Antiquities in the Madras Presidency. In conclusion, I have to thank Mr. R. Hill, the Superintendent of the Madras Government Press, for the patient care he has bestowed on the sometimes intricate proof-sheets, and for the correctness and elegance with which he has carried this volume through the press.

SOUTH-INDIAN INSCRIPTIONS.

PART I.

SANSKRIT INSCRIPTIONS.

I.—INSCRIPTIONS OF THE PALLAVA DYNASTY.

Nos. 1 to 23. THE PALLAVA INSCRIPTIONS OF MĀMALLAPURAM AND ŚĀḷUVAṆKUPPAM.

The village of Māmallapuram,¹ generally called "The Seven Pagodas," is situated on the sea-coast, thirty-two miles south of Madras, and Śāḷuvaṇkuppam two miles north of Māmallapuram. Both places are famous for their Pallava remains, which have been often described.² Their Sanskrit inscriptions, however, have not hitherto been properly deciphered. The subjoined transcripts are prepared from mechanical copies made on the spot in December 1886.

Four different alphabets are employed in the Pallava inscriptions of Māmallapuram and Śāḷuvaṇkuppam. The first, very archaic alphabet is found in the following inscriptions Nos. 1 to 16 of the so-called Dharmarāja Ratha. The bulk of the Māmallapuram inscriptions, viz., those of the so-called Gaṇeśa Temple, Dharmarāja Maṇḍapa and Rāmānuja Maṇḍapa and the inscription No. 17 of the Dharmarāja Ratha, are written in the second, an extremely florid character. The third alphabet occurs on the northern, and the fourth on the southern wall of the Atirāṇachāṇḍeśvara Temple at Śāḷuvaṇkuppam. Dr. Burnell assigns the first alphabet to about the fifth century, the second to about 700, the third to the eighth or ninth century and the fourth to the eleventh century A.D.³ To this I have only to add, that the second alphabet probably belongs to the sixth century, as it resembles that of Rājasimha's and Mahendravarman's inscriptions at Kāñchīpuram.

1. The first sixteen inscriptions of the Dharmarāja Ratha consist of a string of words in the nominative case, which their first decipherers, Drs. Babington and Burnell, took for names of deities. From a comparison with the remaining inscriptions, where several of them recur, it follows, however, that they are birudas of a Pallava king Narasimha (Nos. 1 and 7). Among these birudas, Atyantakāma, Śrinidhi and Śribhara were also borne by the two kings mentioned in the later inscriptions of Māmallapuram and Śāḷuvaṇkuppam. Other birudas reappear in the inscriptions of the Pallava king Rājasimha at Kāñchī, viz., Parāpara, Bhuvanabhājana, Śrimegha, and Sarvatobhadra.

² See Fergusson and Burgess, Cave Temples, pp. 105-159.

³ South-Indian Palaeography, 2nd edition, pp. 37, 38, 39.

2. Two of the inscriptions, which are written in the second alphabet, viz., that of the Gaṇeśa Temple and that of the Dharmarāja Maṇḍapa, are identical and consist of eleven verses. They record, that the two temples, at which they are found, were built by a king Atyantakāma and were called after him Atyantakāma-Pallaveśvara-griha. The king bore the birudas of Raṇajaya, Śrīnidhi and Śrībhara.

The fragmentary inscription at the Rāmānuja Maṇḍapa consists of the last verse of the two last-mentioned inscriptions. Consequently, it seems to have been a third inscription of Atyantakāma.

From the last inscription in the second alphabet (No. 17 of the Dharmarāja Ratha) it appears, that Atyantakāma appropriated to himself the Dharmarāja Ratha, which had been excavated by his predecessor Narasimha, and called it Atyantakāma-Pallaveśvara-griha. He also added his own biruda Raṇajaya to those engraved by Narasimha.

3. From the inscription on the northern wall of the Śāluvaṅkuppam Cave, which consists of six verses, we learn, that the temple was built by a king Atiraṇachanda and was called after him Atiraṇachandeśvara. The king bore the birudas Atyantakāma, Raṇajaya, Śrīnidhi and Śrībhara, all but the third of which occur in the Kāñchi inscriptions.

4. The inscription on the southern wall of the Śāluvaṅkuppam Cave is a later transcript of that on the northern wall. It adds a seventh verse and the four birudas Anugraṣṭa, Kālakāla, Samaradhanaṃjaya and Saṃgrāmadhīra, the three first of which are also found in the Kāñchi inscriptions. Over the entrance, the name of the temple, Atiraṇachanda-Palla[veśvara-griha], is engraved in both alphabets.

The Rev. E. Loventhal of Vellore possesses a fair number of Pallava coins from Māmallapuram. All of them bear on the obverse a Nandi and various legends over it. One of the coins, with a star on the reverse,¹ reads श्रीभरः, another, with a fish on the reverse,² श्रीनिधि, and a third, with a cross on the reverse,³ मानपर. It will be remembered, that Śrībhara and Śrīnidhi were birudas of the Pallava king Narasimha, who founded the Dharmarāja Ratha.

TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1.) May (Śiva) the destroyer of Love, who is the cause of production, existence and destruction, (but is himself) without cause, fulfil the boundless desires¹ of men!

(2.) May he (Śiva) be victorious, who is without illusion and possessed of manifold illusion, who is without qualities and endowed with qualities, who is existing by himself and is without superior, who is without lord and the highest lord!

(3.) Śrinidhi² bears on his head the unborn (Śiva),³ by the weight of whose great toe Kailāsa together with the ten-faced (Rāvaṇa) sank down into Pātāla.

(4.) May Śrībhara⁴ be victorious for a long time, who bears Bhava (Śiva) in his mind which is filled with devotion, and bears the earth on his arm⁵ like a coquettish embellishment!

(5.) King Atyantakāma, who has subdued the territories of his foes, is famed (by the name of) Raṇajaya;⁶—he caused to be made this house of Śambhu (Śiva).

(6.) May he be victorious, who is both sentient and motionless (Sthānu),⁷ who is both undivided and the moon,⁸ who is both fire and air, who is both terrible (Bhīma) and kind (Śiva), who is both the cause of prosperity (Śaṅkara) and the destroyer of Love!

(7.) May Taruṇākura⁹ be victorious, who is a king of kings, but is not ugly (like Kuvera), who is an emperor, but does not distress people (while Viṣṇu is both Chakrabhrit and Janārdana), who is the lord of protectors, but healthy (while the moon is the lord of stars, but is subject to eclipses)!

(8 and 9.) Just as in a large lake filled with water which is fit for bathing, and covered with various lotus-flowers, handsome Śaṅkara (Śiva) abides on the large head—sprinkled with the water of coronation and covered with bright jewels—of the illustrious Atyantakāma,¹⁰ who deprives his enemies of their pride, who is a receptacle of wealth, who possesses the charm of Cupid,¹¹ and who assiduously worships Hara (Śiva).

(10.) He, desiring to attain the glory of Śaṅkara (Śiva), caused to be made this lofty dwelling of Dhūrjaṭi (Śiva), in order to procure the fulfilment of their desires to his subjects.

¹ By the expression atyantakāma, the panegyrist-also alludes to the name of the king.

² This biruda of Atyantakāma occurs also in verse 8. The same was a biruda of his predecessor Narasiṃha; see No. 14.

³ I.e., he is a devotee of Śiva.

⁴ This biruda was also borne by Narasiṃha (No. 2), by Atirapaṇḍa (Nos. 21 and 22, verse 4) and by Rājasīṃha of Kāñchi.

⁵ Here and in No. 19, the correct reading would be दोष्णा च यो मुदं धत्ते, which is found in verse 4 of Nos. 21 and 22.

⁶ The same biruda of Atyantakāma occurs in No. 17. It was also borne by Atirapaṇḍa (Nos. 21 and 22, verse 6) and by Rājasīṃha of Kāñchi.

⁷ While the trunk of a tree (sthānu) is unsentient.

⁸ Who is divided into sixteen *kāla*s.

¹⁰ "Śiva abides on the head of Atyantakāma" means the same as "he bears Śiva on his head" (verse 3), viz., "he is a devotee of Śiva."

(11.) Six times cursed be those, in whose hearts does not dwell Rudra (Śiva), the deliverer from the walking on the evil path !

The temple of Atyantakāma-Pallaveśvara.

TRANSLATION.

(Verses 1 and 2.) Just as in a large lake filled with water which is fit for bathing, and covered with various lotus-flowers, handsome Śamkara (Śiva) abides on the large head—sprinkled with the water of coronation and covered with bright jewels—of the illustrious Atyantakāma, who deprives his enemies of their pride, who is a receptacle of wealth, who possesses the charm of Cupid, and who assiduously worships Hara (Śiva).¹

(3.) For the welfare of the earth, he, who stands at the head of the lords of the earth, caused to be made this house of Śambhu (Śiva), which resembles Kailāsa and Mandara.

(4.) May Śribhara be victorious for a long time, who bears Bhava (Śiva) in his mind which is filled with devotion, and bears the earth on his arm like a coquettish embellishment!²

(5.) Atiraṇachanḍa,³ the lord of the rulers of the earth, made this (temple called) Atiraṇachanḍeśvara. May Paśupati (Śiva), attended by the mountain-daughter (Pārvatī) and the troop of Guhas, always take delight (in residing) here!

(6.) May the eight-formed lord of beings (Śiva) for a long time take up his abode in this temple (called) Atiraṇachanḍeśvara, which was caused to be built by him, who, together with the name of Atiraṇachanḍa, bears deep devotion to Īśāna (Śiva), abundant prosperity, the heavy burden of the earth and unequalled liberality, and who is famed by the name of Raṇajaya!

Anugraṣīla (the gentle-minded).⁴

(7.) Who will be able to understand the music of Kālakāla,⁵ if it were not Vidhātṛi (Brahman), Bharata, Hari, Nārada, or Skanda?⁶

¹ Verses 1 and 2 are identical with verses 8 and 9 of Nos. 18 and 19.

² Identical with verse 4 of Nos. 18 and 19.

³ This name of the king, who built the temple, was also a biruda of Rājasiṅha of Kāñchi.

⁴ This was also a biruda of Rājasiṅha of Kāñchi.

⁵ The same biruda occurs in the Kāñchi inscriptions.

⁶ Compare the Kāñchi inscriptions, where Rājasiṅha's skill as a musician is alluded to by the birudas Atodyatumburu, Vādyavidyādharma and Vināṇārada.

Nos. 24 to 30. THE PALLAVA INSCRIPTIONS ON THE KAILĀSANĀTHA TEMPLE AT KĀNCHĪPURAM.

On a visit to Kānchīpuram in the year 1883, Dr. Burgess made the important discovery, that the comparatively insignificant temple of Kailāsanāthasvāmin at Kānchīpuram (Conjeeveram) was not only built in the Pallava style of sixth century architecture, but contained a number of inscriptions in the Pallava character and Sanskrit language besides others in the Tamil alphabet and language. In 1884-85, Mr. S. M. Nāṭeśa Śāstrī prepared fac-similes of most of the Pallava inscriptions, from which I made transcripts and translations. In September and October 1887, I went to the spot myself, in order to compare these transcripts with the originals and to take fac-similes of those inscriptions, which were not found among those made by Mr. Nāṭeṣa. Through the good offices of E. C. Johnson, Esq., the Collector of Chingleput, I was enabled to secure reliable copies of all the Sanskrit and Tamil inscriptions of the temple.

Just as at Māmāllapuram and Śāluvaṅkuppam, we find several different alphabets employed in the Pallava inscriptions of the Kailāsanātha Temple. The most archaic alphabet, which resembles that of the inscriptions of Atyantakāma at Māmāllapuram, occurs in the subjoined inscriptions Nos. 24, 27, 28, 29 and 30. Of these, the inscription No. 24 runs round the outside of the central shrine and is in excellent preservation, as it is engraved on granite slabs. It consists of twelve Sanskrit verses. The whole of the first verse and the beginning of the second are covered by the floor of the temple itself and by the wall of a modern mandapa, which has been erected between the central shrine and another mandapa in front of it. By the temporary removal of some slabs, my assistant succeeded in preparing fac-similes of the greater part of the first verse and of a few additional letters at the beginning of the second verse. The inscription opens with a benediction addressed to Gaṅgā and with the following mythical pedigree of Pallava, the ἡρώς ἐπώνυμος of the Pallava dynasty:—

Aṅgiras.
Bṛihaspati.
Śamīyu.
Bharadvāja.
Dṛoṇa.
Aśvatthāman.

Pallava, the founder of the race of the Pallavas.

Then the inscription continues: "In the race of these (the Pallavas) there was born the supreme lord Ugradāṇḍa, the destroyer of the city of Raṇarasika." His son was Rājasiṃha, who bore the birudas Atyantakāma, Śṛībhara and Raṇajaya. He built the Śiva temple, round which the inscription is engraved, and called it after his own name Rājasiṃha-Pallaveśvara or Rājasiṃheśvara.¹

The inscription No. 27 runs round the smaller shrine, which stands in front of the Rājasiṃheśvara or Kailāsanātha shrine, and which is now-a-days styled Nāradeśvara. It consists of four Sanskrit verses, the first and last of which are only incompletely preserved. The first three verses tell in different wording the same fact, viz., that Mahendra, the son of Rājasiṃha and grandson of Lokāditya, built a temple of Śiva, which he called Mahendreśvara after his own name, near the temple of Rājasiṃheśvara. Another form of the name of the temple, Mahendravarmeśvara, which is engraved three times on the building, shows that Mahendra's full name was Mahendravarman. Of Lokāditya, who is identical with the Ugradāṇḍa of the inscription No. 24, the present inscription says, that "his valour dried up the army of Raṇarasika, just as the heat of the sun does the mud."

¹ These two names reappear in the Chola inscriptions (Nos. 41 and 146, below). A third form of the name of the temple, which occurs in three later inscriptions (Nos. 86, 87 and 150, below), viz., Rājasiṃhavar-meśvara, suggests that Rājasiṃha's full name was Rājasiṃhavarman.

Other inscriptions in archaic characters are found in some of the niches to the right of the front entrance into the temple compound, which are now connected by brick walls, but were originally intended for detached small shrines. According to the inscription No. 28, the first niche was called "the Temple of Nityavinnteśvara."

Of No. 29, on the third niche, a complete fac-simile was obtained by temporarily removing two modern brick walls. It consists of three Sanskrit verses and records, that this small shrine of Śiva was founded by Raṅgapatākā, the wife of king Narasimhavishṇu or Kālakāla.

No. 30, on the fifth niche, is an incomplete inscription in Sanskrit verse of some other female, whose name is unfortunately lost.

The rest of the Pallava inscriptions of the Kailāsanātha Temple run round the inside of the enclosure of the Rājasimheśvara shrine and contain an enumeration of several hundred birudas of king Rājasimha. They are arranged in four tiers, the first of which consists of granite and is therefore well preserved. The other three tiers are on sand-stone; hence the second is almost entirely spoiled by the dripping of water and by whitewashing with chunnam; of the third a little more is left; and the fourth is in tolerable preservation. From the existing fragments of the second and third tiers, it appears that they were word for word identical with the well-preserved first tier. Further, we can prove in a few cases, that the first tier is a later copy of the third. Thus, in niches 29 and 52, the first tier has the unintelligible words श्रीआशाविनिः and श्रीवलमः, for which the third tier supplies the correct readings श्रीआशाविनिः (for °दी) and श्रीवलममयनः. In accordance with this result, the third tier is written in the same archaic alphabet, as the inscription round the Rājasimheśvara Temple, and evidently belongs to the time of Rājasimha, the founder of the temple, himself. Thus the first and second tiers must be considered as later copies of the original inscription in the third tier, which were executed by some descendants of Rājasimha. As the alphabets of the first and second tiers resemble those of the northern and southern walls, respectively, of the Śāluvaṅkuppam Cave, it further follows that Atiraṇachanda, who engraved the inscription on the northern wall of the Śāluvaṅkuppam Cave, must be later than Atyantakāma, the alphabet of whose inscriptions at Māmallapuram resembles that of Rājasimha's at Kāñchipuram. The inscription on the southern wall of the Śāluvaṅkuppam Cave is a later transcript of that on the northern wall, and in the same way the second tier is still more modern than the first tier. As only fragments of the second and third tiers are now forthcoming, I have transcribed only the first tier and noticed the various readings of the second and third tiers in the foot-notes. While the inscriptions of the first, second and third tiers run round the whole of the inner enclosure of the temple, the inscriptions of the fourth tier extend only as far as the 20th niche. The fourth tier repeats some of the birudas contained in the first three tiers and adds a few of its own. It is written in a peculiar ornamental alphabet, which is based on an alphabet of the same type, as that of the first tier. As the biruda श्रीकालकोपः which occurs in the third tier (niche 19), but is left out in the first, is found in the fourth tier (niche 11), it follows that the engraver of the fourth tier copied from the third and not from the first tier; perhaps the first and fourth tiers were contemporaneous.

It remains to add a few words on the probable times of the founders of the Kailāsanātha Temple. In an article, which appeared first in the Madras Mail (3rd September 1887) and was reprinted in the Indian Antiquary (Vol. XVII, p. 30), I identified:—
1. Raṇarasika, the enemy of Ugradanda or Lokāditya, with the Chalukya Raṇarāga;

2. Rājasimha, who is called Narasimhapotavarman in a Chalukya inscription,¹ with Narasimhavarman I. of Mr. Foulkes' grant of Nandivarman;² 3. Mahendravarman with Mahendravarman II. of the same grant; 4. Nandipotavarman, who was defeated by the Chalukya Vikramāditya II., with Nandivarman himself; and 5. Pulikeśin, who, according to the unpublished Kūram grant, was conquered by Narasimhavarman I., with the Chalukya Pulikeśin I. As, however, both in the Kūram grant and in Mr. Foulkes' grant of Nandivarman, Narasimhavarman I. is said to have destroyed Vātāpi, while Pulikeśin I. "first made Vātāpi the capital of the Chalukyas in Western India, wresting it from the Pallavas who then held it,"³ —I now consider it more probable, that Pulikeśin, the enemy of Narasimhavarman I., has to be identified with the Chalukya Pulikeśin II. On inspecting the original of the Kūram grant, of which I formerly had nothing but an impression, but which has now become the property of Government, I discovered a further confirmation of this view. The grant says, that Paramēśvaravarman (I.) put to flight Vikramāditya, i.e., Vikramāditya I., the son of Pulikeśin II. Secondly, it is not unlikely, that Narasimhaviṣṇu, whose wife built the third niche to the right in front of the Kailāsanātha Temple, is another name of Rājasimha, the founder of the central shrine. Under this supposition, I would now identify Rājasimha (alias Narasimhapotavarman and Narasimhaviṣṇu) with Simhaviṣṇu, and his son Mahendravarman with Mahendravarman I. of Mr. Foulkes' grant. The subjoined table shows the synchronisms between the Chalukyas and Pallavas.

Pedigree of the Chalukyas.	Pedigree of the Pallavas.
	Mr. Foulkes' grant of Nandivarman.	Kūram grant.	Kailāsanātha inscriptions.

Vijayāditya (Śaka 618 to 655).	Paramēśvaravarman II.
Vikramāditya II. (Śaka 655 to 669) defeated Nandipotavarman.	Nandivarman.

If new discoveries should prove the above arrangement to be correct, the date of the foundation of the Rājasimheśvara and Mahendravarmesvara Temples would fall some time before 567 A.D., the date of the end of the first Kirtivarman's reign, say about 550 A.D. This would also be the time of Atyantakāma's inscriptions at Māmallapuram. Atirajachanda's inscriptions at Śāluvaṅkuppam belong to a later, and Narasimha's on the Dharmarāja Ratna at Māmallapuram to an earlier period.

TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1.) May (Gaṅgā) purify you!—she who springs from the jewel (on the head) of Sthāṇu (Śiva), appearing black by the splendour of (his) neck and red by the rays of the gems on the hoods (of his snakes), who fills the lake of the three worlds.

(2.) After him (there was) that sage Āṅgiras, who was born from his (viz., Brahman's) mind. His son was (Byihaspati) the minister of Śakra (Indra) and preceptor of the gods. His son was Śamhyu. From him, who possessed terrible power and was honoured in the three worlds, there took birth that illustrious chief of sages, Bharadvāja by name, who became the source of the race of the Pallavas.

(3.) From this lovely one came Droṇa, the highly honoured preceptor of the Pāṇḍavas (and) Kurus; from him the great Aśvatthāman, who deprived princes of their constancy and pride. Just as the first-born Manu, his son, Pallava by name, became the founder of a race of brave and victorious kings, who enjoyed the whole earth:—

(4.) Of the Pallava princes, who were pious, who destroyed the excessively great pride of the Kali (age), who spoke the truth, who were profound, whose minds knew how to practise the trivarga, who assiduously honoured the aged, who forcibly subdued lust and the other internal foes, who excelled in the knowledge of weapons, who were firm, mighty and endowed with polity and modesty.

(5.) Just as Guha (also called Subrahmanya or Kumāra) took birth from the supreme lord (Śiva), the destroyer of the warlike (demon) Pura, thus from the supreme lord Ugradāṇḍa,⁷ who was born in the race of these (viz., the Pallavas), the destroyer of the city of Raṇarasika, there took birth a very pious prince (subrahmanyah kumārah), the illustrious Atyantakāma,⁸ the chief of the Pallavas, who crushed the multitude of his foes by his power (on spear), whose great statesmanship was well-known¹ and who had got rid of all impurity (by walking) on the path of the Śaiva doctrine.

(6.) Like Manmatha (Kāma), he charmed refined women in secret; like Vāsava (Indra), he constantly protected those, who frequented the path of the three Vedas; like Mādhava (Vishnu), he tore the hearts of the enemies of sages, twice-born and gods; and like Vittada (Kuvera), he gratified good people with abundant wealth.

(7.) If in the Kṛita (age) kings like Dushyanta, who saw the gods and were engaged by (saints) like Kanva, would hear a heavenly voice without body, that is not a matter of wonder; but ah! this is extremely astonishing, that Śrībhara² has heard that voice in the Kali age, from which good qualities keep aloof.

(8.) May Rāṇajaya³ be victorious for a long time, who humbled those princes, who were puffed up with the pride of abundant prosperity, which they had acquired by polity and prowess, depriving them of their intelligence in the mere space of knitting his brows, and who, like Puruṣhottama (Vishnu), was born to rescue from the ocean of sin the sinking people, who were swallowed by the horrid monster, (called) the Kali age!

(9.) While this prince enjoyed the whole world, which he had conquered by valour combined with polity, and in which he had killed rebels and humbled kings, he erected this extensive and wonderful house of Hara (Śiva), which resembles his fame and the laughter of Hara.⁴

(10.) May Śaṅkara (Śiva), whose terrible ornaments are the coils of the king of serpents, and who is praised by the hosts of the kings of gods and of demons, reside for a long time in this temple, (called) the holy Rājasimha-Pallaveśvara!

(11.) May the bull-marked (Śiva) always lend his presence to this temple of stone, called Rājasimheśvara, which touches the clouds with its top, which robs Kailāsa of its beauty, and which was built by that pious king of kings, who made all quarters obedient to his orders and (who proved) a royal lion (Rājasimha) to the dense troops of the elephants of his daring foes!

(12.) May Rājasimha, the conqueror in battle (Raṇajaya), the bearer of prosperity (Śrībhara), the wonderful archer (Chitrakārmuka),⁵ the unrivalled hero (Ekacitra), who has Śiva for his crest-jewel (Śivachūḍāmaṇi),⁶ for a long time protect the earth!

No. 31. A PALLAVA INSCRIPTION IN A CAVE-TEMPLE NEAR PANAMALAI.¹

A facsimile of this inscription was kindly forwarded to me by Mr. Rāghavendrāchārya of Vānūr. It consists of one Sanskrit verse, which is identical with the last verse of Rājasimha's large inscription at Kañchi (No. 24, above). Hence it may be concluded, that the Panamalai Cave was founded by Rājasimha and that in his time the Pallavas ruled as far south as Panamalai.

No. 32. A PALLAVA INSCRIPTION FROM AMARĀVATĪ.¹

The subjoined Sanskrit inscription is engraved on three sides of an octagonal pillar,² which was excavated at Amarāvati by Mr. R. Sewell and sent by Dr. Burgess to the Madras Museum. The top of the pillar and some letters of the uppermost lines of the inscription have been broken off. The inscription has hitherto remained a puzzle, as each line seems to end incomplete. Finding, that the first words of some lines were connected with the last words of the following lines, I was led to suppose that the inscription must begin from the bottom and not from the top. Curiously enough, this is really the case. If the inscription is read upwards, we find that it consists of eleven complete verses and of a prose passage, the end of which is lost through the mutilation of the pillar at the top.

The inscription opens with an invocation of Buddha and with a mythical genealogy of Pallava, the supposed founder of the Pallava dynasty.

Pallava.

Verse 8 gives a popular etymology of the name Pallava. Then there follow the names of seven Pallava kings:—

1. Mahendravarman, son of Pallava.
2. Simhavarman I., son of 1.
3. Arkavarman, son of 2.
4. Ugravarman.
6. Nandivarman, son of 5, Sri-Simhavishnu.
7. Simhavarman II.

The inscription contains no information about the relationship, which existed between 3 and 4, 4 and 5, 6 and 7. Neither does the genealogy agree with the lists derived by Mr. Foulkes³ and Mr. Fleet⁴ from other Pallava inscriptions, although similar names of kings occur in them. For these reasons great care should be taken in using the above list for historical purposes.

From the incomplete prose passage at the end of the inscription, we learn that, on his return from an expedition to the north, Simhavarman II. came to a place sacred to Buddha, which was called Dhānyaghata (line 38) or Dhānyaghataka (line 47). The lost part of the pillar must have recorded a donation, which the king made to Buddha.

Dhānyaghata or Dhānyaghataka is evidently identical with Dhānyakata or Dhānyakataka, "corn-town," the well-known old name of Amarāvati. The use of gha instead of ku can perhaps be explained by the Tamil habit of softening a single consonant between two vowels.¹

TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1.) May the dust of the glorious⁸ feet of Bhavadvish,⁹ which thickly covers¹⁰ the multitude of brilliant crest-jewels of the lords of gods and of demons, for a long time show you (the way to) supreme glory!

(2.) From the first creator (Brahman) there sprang a pure sage, called Bharadvāja, who mastered the śrutis; from him an ocean (uniting) the rivers of speech, Aṅgiras by name; from him the renowned sage Sudhāman;

(3.) From him a sage called Droṇa, who thoroughly knew all āgamas and who possessed terrible might. In order to obtain a son who would found a race, he strove to please the eight-formed (Śiva) by austerities.

(4.) By the favour of Śambhu, there arose to him a brilliant (son), famed by the name of Aśvatthāman, just as at morn the brilliant sun rises over the eastern mountain.

o (5.) Once, surrounded by (other) celestial maidens, the famous nymph Madanī, who wished to see the abode of the hermits, entered the path of sight of that ascetic.

⁸ With śiṅghana compare Pāli śiṅghana or śiṅghana in the Dīpaṇṇak, I, 11; II, 1.

⁹ Literally, "the enemy of worldly existence." The prose passage at the end of the present inscription shows, that Buddha is meant.

¹⁰ Literally, "which glitters (or plays) without interstice on," etc.

◊(6.) The saint approached her, while, seated amongst a group of asoka-trees, she was wistfully regarding the male swans, which were afraid of being separated from their beloved ones, whenever they lost sight of them behind a lotus of the lake, which was agitated by the wind.

◊(7.) Perceiving him who resembled Cupid in the dress of a saint, she lost her self-control, just as Umā on seeing Śarva. Then the nymphs united the couple, which had conceived a deep affection (towards each other).

◊(8.) In due time, the nymph gave birth to a protector of the earth, which is girt by the ocean. The father called his son Pallava, as he was lying on a couch (covered) with a heap of sprouts (pallava).

(9.) From him came the ruler of the earth Mahendravarman; from him the valiant Simhavarman; from him Arkavarman; after him Ugravarman; then Nandivarman from Śri-Simbavishṇu.

(10.) There arose that Simhavarman, in whose audience-hall darkness is transformed into dawn by the splendour of the jewels on the heads of many princes, and whom people call (the lord) of eighteen lakshas of horses and elephants.

(11.) This hero for a long time protected the earth, whose garment is the ocean, whose pearl-necklace is the Gaṅgā, and whose earrings are Meru and Mandara.

(Line 28.) Once, while his back, his flanks and his front were guarded by all his brave vassals and tributaries (mūḍhalika-sāmantā), he marched to the peak of Sumeru, in order to place (there) the fane, which he had acquired by conquering all quarters.¹ His elephants, which resembled the peaks of the mountain of the gods (Meru), tore with the claws (!) of their feet the gold,² and his horses, walking on those pieces (of gold), made the sky appear like a canopy by the gold-dust rising under their hoofs. There, in order to remove the fatigue caused by wandering over the whole world, he passed a few days, enjoying the shade of the yellow sandal-trees, which grow on the slopes of gold. Then, having crossed the Bhāgirathi (Gaṅgā), the Godāvarī and the Kṛṣṇavernā,³ he perceived (a place sacred to) the lord Vitarāga (Buddha), named the illustrious town of Dhānyaghāṭa. Having regarded it with curiosity, and having humbly approached and saluted the tutelar deities, which were charged with the protection of the whole sacred place (kṣetra), he listened to a discourse on the law⁴ in a secluded spot. Having heard it, he saluted the highest-born⁵ and spoke thus: "I also, O lord! (shall erect a statue?) of the lord at this very place, ornamented with jewels, gold, and silver." After he had thus spoken, the lord said: "Well, well, lay-worshipper Simhavarman! Here [at] the place sacred to the highest Buddha" Then having saluted in Dhānyaghāṭaka

Nos. 33 AND 34. TWO CAVE-INSCRIPTIONS FROM THE TRISIRĀPALI ROCK.⁶

The subjoined inscriptions are engraved on two pillars in a rock-cut cave not far from the summit of the well-known rock at Trisirāpalī (Trichinopoly). They are both somewhat worn. The left pillar was found covered by a modern wall, which the temple-authorities temporarily removed at the request of the Collector, W. A. Willock, C.S. On each of the two pillars are four Sanskrit verses. Besides, the lower part of the left pillar bears a few unintelligible Sanskrit words and a much defaced inscription in old Tamil characters.

The two inscriptions record, that a king Guṇabhara, who bore the birudas Puruṣoṭtama, Śātrumaḥ and Satyaśāmdha, constructed a temple of Śiva on the top of the mountain and placed in it a linga and a statue of himself. Each of the two pillars mentions the river Kāvīri, i.e., the Kāveri, on whose banks Trisīrapalli is situated, and refers to the Chōḷa country. On the left pillar the Kāvīri is called 'the beloved of Pallava'; this means in prose that a Pallava king ruled over the country along the banks of the Kāveri river. This allusion and the fact, that the characters of the two pillar inscriptions remind us of those of the Pallava inscriptions at Māmallapuram and Kāñchīpuram, make it very probable that Guṇabhara was a Pallava prince, who ruled over the Chōḷa country.

(Verse 1.) Being afraid, that the god who is fond of rivers (Śiva), having perceived the Kāvīri, whose waters please the eye, who wears a garland of gardens, and who possesses lovely qualities, might fall in love (with her), the daughter of the mountain (Pārvatī) has, I think, left her father's family and resides permanently on this mountain, calling this river the beloved of the Pallava (king).³

(2.) While the king called Guṇabhara is a worshipper of the linga, let the knowledge, which has turned back from hostile (vipakṣa) conduct, be spread for a long time in the world by this linga!³

* व looks like द.

³ Pārvatī calls Kāvīri the wife of another, in order to prevent Śiva from coveting her.

(3.) This mountain resembles the diadem of the Chōḷa province, this temple of Hara (Śiva) its chief jewel, and the splendour of Śaṃkara (Śiva) its splendour.

(4.) By the stone-chisel a material body of Satyasamudha was executed,¹ and by the same an eternal body of his fame was produced.

TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1.) When king Guṇabhara placed a stone-figure in the wonderful stone-temple on the top of the best of mountains, he made in this way¹ Sthāṇu (Śiva) stationary² and became himself stationary (i.e., immortal) in the worlds together with him.

(2.) King Śatrumalla built on this mountain a temple of Giriśa (Śiva), the husband of the daughter of the king of mountains, in order to make³ the name Giriśa (i.e., the mountain-dweller) true to its meaning.

(3.) After Hara (Śiva) had graciously asked him: "How could I, standing in a temple on earth, view the great power of the Chōḷas or the river Kāvīri?"—king Guṇabhara, who resembled Manu in his manner of ruling, assigned to him this mountain-temple, which touches the clouds.

(4.) Thus having joyfully placed on the top (of the mountain) a matchless stone-figure of Hara (Śiva), which he caused to be executed, that Purushottama, who bore Śiva fixed in his mind, made the loftiness of the mountain fruitful.

¹ Satyasamudha must have been a brāhṇa of Guṇabhara. A statue of the king is also alluded to in the first verse of the right pillar.

² Read गिरिन्द्र.

³ Read गिरिमवन्.

⁴ Literally: 'this was the way.'

⁵ Literally: 'he made Sthāṇu (i.e., the stationary one) one whose name was true to its meaning.'

II.—COPPER-PLATE GRANTS OF THE EASTERN CHALUKYA DYNASTY.

The subjoined five grants belong to the kings Narendra-mrigarāja or Vijayāditya II, Amma I. or Vishnuvardhana VI, Chālukya-Bhīma II. or Vishnuvardhana VII, Amma II. or Vijayāditya V. and Vira-Choḍa or Vishnuvardhana IX. The place, which is occupied by each of these princes in the genealogy of the Eastern Chalukya dynasty, will be seen from the annexed table, for which all hitherto published Eastern Chalukya grants have been consulted, and in which numbers are prefixed to the names of those princes who really reigned, in order to mark their succession.¹

The relation of the two usurpers (18) Tālapa and (21) Yuddhamalla to the direct line of the family is established by three inscriptions:—a. Tādapa is called the son of Vikramāditya's brother (Ind. Ant. Vol. XIV, p. 56); b. Tāla is called the son of Yuddhamalla, who was the paternal uncle of Chālukya-Bhīma I. (Ind. Ant. Vol. XIII, p. 249, where pitṛiya has to be read for pitṛivya); c. Bhīma II, the son of Kollabliganḍa Vijayāditya, is at the same time called the son of Yuddhamalla, the son of Tālapa, i.e., he belonged to the next generation after (21) Yuddhamalla (Ind. Ant. Vol. XII, p. 92).

Three of the last kings, who are shown in the annexed table, viz., (28) Vijayāditya VI, (29) Rājārāja II. and (30) Vira-Choḍa, are only known from the subjoined inscription No. 39.

No. 35. A GRANT OF NARENDRA-MRIGARAJA.

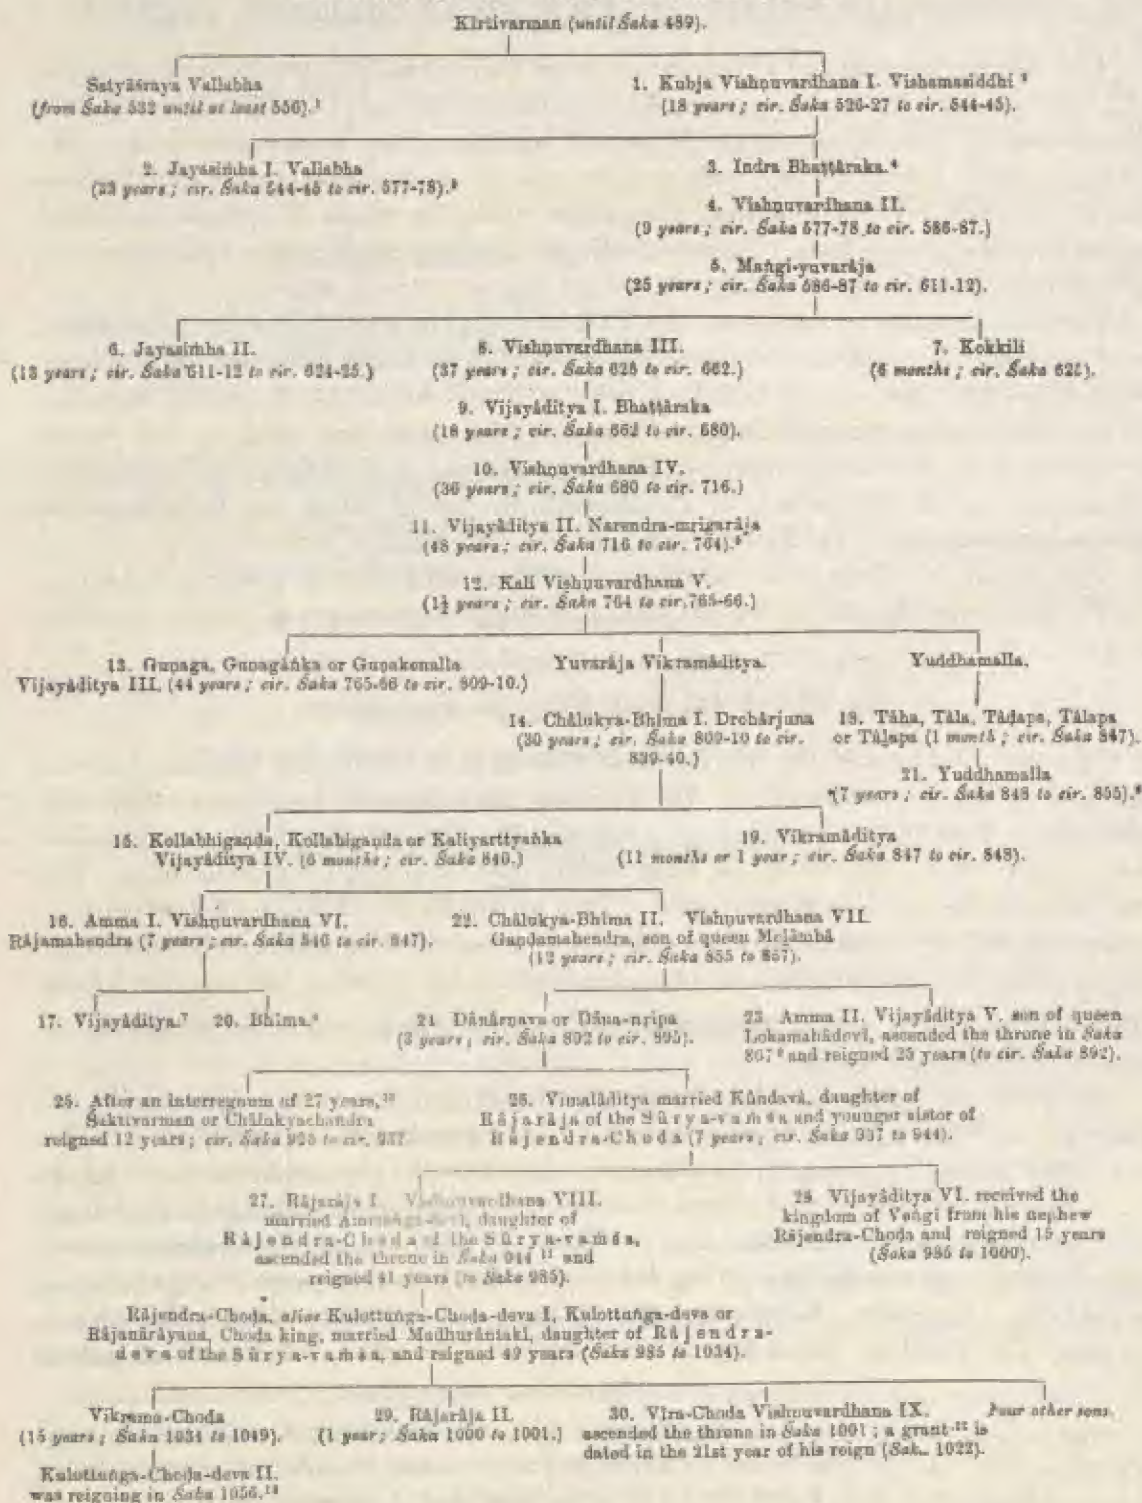

This grant belongs to the Sir W. Elliot Collection of the British Museum, and was made over to me for publication by Dr. Burgess. It consists of five copper-plates with raised rims. Each plate measures 9 by 3 inches. The first and fifth plates are inscribed only on their inner sides, while the three middle ones bear writing on both sides. The preservation of the plates is tolerably good. They are strung on an elliptic ring, which is $1\frac{1}{2}$ " thick and $4\frac{7}{8}$ " by $3\frac{1}{8}$ " in diameter. The well-preserved circular seal, which is attached to the ring, measures $2\frac{5}{8}$ " in diameter. It bears the sun and the moon at the top, the legend श्रीत्रिभुवनांकुश across the centre, and an expanded lotus-flower (side-view) at the bottom—all in relief on a counter-sunk surface.

The document is a grant of the parama-mahēsvara Narendra-mrigarāja, alias Vijayāditya II, the son of Vishnuvardhana IV, and grandson of Vijayāditya I. The name of the district (viśaya), to the inhabitants of which the king addresses his order, is lost. On the occasion of a lunar eclipse (*chandra-grahana-nimitta*²) the king gave the village of Korrapattu to twenty-four brāhmanas. Of these, six adhered to the Hiranyakeśi-sūtra and eighteen to the Āpastamba-sūtra. They belonged to the following gotras:—Agniveśya, Kaundinya, Kauśika, Gautama, Parāśara, Bhāradvāja, Vatsa, Śāṇḍilya, Samkṛiti and Harita. According to the colophon of the grant, "the excellent prince

TRANSLATION.

Hail! The grandson of the illustrious Vijayāditya-mahārāja, who was adorned with a multitude of blameless and noble virtues, who had acquired the splendour of victory by his own arm in many warlike encounters, and who adorned the race of the glorious Chalukyas, who belong to the gotra of the Mānavyas, who are praised in the whole world; who are the sons of Hārītī; who have acquired the kingdom by the favour of (Śiva) the husband of Kauśikī; who are protected by the assemblage of (divine) mothers; who are meditating at the feet of the lord Mahāsena (Skanda); who have subdued the territories of their enemies in an instant at the (mere) sight of the sign of the boar, a boon which they had obtained through the favour of the blessed Nārāyaṇa (Vishṇu); and whose bodies are purified by bathing at the end of horse-sacrifices;—

The beloved son of Vishṇuvardhana-mahārāja, who subdued the surrounding territories of his enemies with the edge of his flashing sword, who surpassed by his deeds Nṛiga, Nala, Nahusha, Ambarisha and Yayāti, and who rejoiced in his sovereignty, just as Vishṇu in his discus;—

He whose commands are cherished by the diadems of all vassals who bow affectionately to (his) majesty, who is a receptacle of the three powers¹ which are suitable to the warrior-caste, who is resplendent with the strength which he has acquired by victories in many battles, Narendra-mṛigarāja, who has cut the temples of the elephants of his foes with the sword (that resembles) a claw² in his arm which is as fierce as Yama's rod, who has subdued the six (internal) enemies,³ who has acquired the four branches of royal science, who knows how to employ the four expedients,⁴ who chastises the wicked and shows favour to the good, who has conquered the world by his valour, just as (Vishṇu) the destroyer of Madhu by his (three) steps, who is assisted by terrible and splendid courage, just as Yudhiṣṭhira was assisted by the courage of Bhīma and Arjuna, who, just as (Rāma) the son of Daśaratha, gives pleasure to Sitā,⁵ who knows the right course, just as Manu, who disperses the crowd of his foes, just as the sun disperses the mass of darkness in a lotus-group,⁶ the most pious one, the devout worshipper of Maheśvara (Śiva), the asylum of the whole world, the illustrious Vijayāditya, the king of great kings, the supreme master, the lord, thus issues his commands to all householders, (viz.) heads of provinces, &c., who inhabit the district of

³ These are kāma, krodha, lobha, harsha, māna and mada.

⁴ The four upāyas are dāman, dāna, bheda and danḍa.

⁵ In the case of the king, this seems to mean, that he was a favourite of Lakshmi, with whom Sitā is identified.

No. 36. A GRANT OF AMMA I.

The original of the subjoined inscription belongs to the Government Central Museum, Madras. According to Mr. Sewell,⁵ it "was found at the close of the year 1871 buried in the ground in a field in the village of Ederu near Ākiripalle in the Kistna District, 15

³ This is left out in the translation, because the reading of the proper names, is very uncertain owing to the bad preservation of this part of the grant.

⁴ Lists of Antiquities, Vol. II, p. 25.

miles north-east of Bezvâda, a village belonging to the present Zamindâri of Nâzivîdu. The plates were presented to the Madras Museum by the then Zamindâr." A rough transcript and paraphrase of the inscription were published by S. M. Nāṭeśa Śāstri.¹ As the inscription deserves to be published more carefully owing to its bearing on a part of the history of the Eastern Chalukyas, I now edit it from the original plates, the use of which I owe to the kindness of Dr. E. Thurston, Superintendent, Government Central Museum.

The document is engraved on five copper-plates with raised rims, which are not less than $\frac{1}{4}$ inch thick. Each plate measures $9\frac{1}{4}$ by $4\frac{1}{4}$ inches. The first and fifth plates are inscribed only on their inner sides, while the three middle ones bear writing on both sides. The characters are extremely elegant and must have been engraved by an accomplished calligraphist. The plates are strung on a slightly elliptic ring, which is $\frac{1}{2}$ inch thick and measures about 5 inches in diameter. The well-cut circular seal, which is attached to the ring, rests on an expanded lotus-flower and measures $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches in diameter. It bears, at the top, a recumbent boar, which faces the right and is surmounted by the moon and the sun, two chāmaras, an elephant-goad and a symbol which I cannot make out; across the centre, the legend श्रीत्रिभुवनांकुर; and at the bottom, an expanded lotus-flower (side-view),—all in relief, on a counter-sunk surface. Both the plates and the seal are in excellent preservation.

The inscription opens with a maṅgala, and then notices in prose and in verse the ancestors of the Eastern Chalukya king Amma I. Of the kings from Kubja-Vishṇuvardhana to Vishṇuvardhana IV. nothing but the names and the length of reigns is mentioned. The next king was Vijayāditya II., who is called Narendra-mṛigarāja in other inscriptions. He fought 108 battles during 12 years with the armies of the Gaṅgas and Raṭṭas, built 108 temples of Śiva in commemoration of his victories and ruled over Veṅḡi for 44 years (verses 2 to 4). As Mr. Fleet has pointed out,² "the Gaṅgas here referred to were mahāmāndaleśvaras, feudatories of the Rāshtrakūṭas, whose inscriptions are found in the Belgaum and Dhārwad Districts." The Raṭṭas mentioned in the grant were the Rāshtrakūṭas themselves. If we deduct the sum of the reigns of the Eastern Chalukya kings from Kali-Vishṇuvardhana to Chālukya-Bhīma II. from the date of the accession of Amma II.—Śaka 867³—the accession of Kali-Vishṇuvardhana and the death of his predecessor Vijayāditya II. would fall in Śaka 764. Most inscriptions assign to the latter a reign of 48 years, two inscriptions a reign of 40 years,⁴ and the subjoined inscription a reign of 44 years. Accordingly, his accession would fall in Śaka 716, 724 or 720. Hence the war between Vijayāditya II. and the Raṭṭas—as suggested by Mr. Fleet—may have taken place during the reigns of the two Rāshtrakūṭa kings Govinda III. and Śarva Amoghavarsha, who ruled at least from Śaka 726⁵ to 737 and from 737⁶ till at least 800⁷ respectively. As, in a grant of Śaka 730,⁸ the lord of Veṅḡi is described

⁴ See ibid. VIII, 77, and the inscription No. 37.

⁵ Ind. Ant. Vol. XI, p. 126. The original of the inscription is dated in Śaka 726 expired, the Subhānu year. The latter corresponds to the current Śaka year 726.

⁶ Ibid. XII, 219. The current fifty-second year of Amoghavarsha's reign corresponded to Śaka 788 expired and the Pyaga year current.

⁷ Ibid. XIII, 135. The inscription is dated in Śaka 799 expired.

⁸ Ibid. VI, 68. The date in the original is Śaka 730 expired, the Sarvajit year. The latter corresponds to the current Śaka year 730.

as the servant of Govinda III., and as in a grant of Śaka 789¹ it is stated, that Amoghavarsha was worshipped by the lord of Veṅgi, it seems that each party claimed the victory over the other. The fact, that Vijayāditya II. built 108 temples of Śiva, is also alluded to in two other inscriptions, where it is said, that he founded 108 temples of Narendreśvara, i.e., temples of Śiva called after his surname Narendra.²

Nothing of importance seems to have happened during the short reign of Kali-Vishnuvardhana. His successor Vijayāditya III., who reigned from Śaka 765-66 to 809-10, "having been challenged by the lord of the Raṭṭas, conquered the unequalled Gāngas, cut off the head of Maṅgi in battle, frightened the fire-brand Kṛishṇa and burnt his city completely" (verse 10.) The killing of Maṅgi and the burning of the city of Kṛishṇa is also reported in another inscription.³ The Kṛishṇa, whom Vijayāditya III. defeated, is probably identical with the lord of the Raṭṭas, who challenged him, and with the Rāshtrakūṭa king Kṛishṇa II., whose earliest known date is Śaka 825.⁴

After the death of Vijayāditya III., the Rāshtrakūṭas, as noticed by Mr. Fleet, seem to have been victorious; for his nephew Chalukya-Bhīma I., alias Drohārjuna, who ruled from Śaka 809-10 to 839-40, had to reconquer "the country of Veṅgi, which had been overrun by the army of the Raṭṭa claimants" (line 28 f.) The length of the reign of Vijayāditya IV., the successor of Chalukya-Bhīma I., is not mentioned in the subjoined inscription; according to other grants he ruled six months.

There followed the king, who issued the grant, Amma I., alias Rājamahendra or Vishnuvardhana VI. He, "having drawn his sword, which broke the dishonest hearts of his feudatory relatives, who had joined the party of his natural adversaries, won the affection of the subjects and of the army of his father (Vijayāditya IV.) and of his grandfather (Chalukya-Bhīma I.)" (line 39 ff.) The natural adversaries of Amma I. were probably the Rāshtrakūṭas under Prabhūtarsha III., whose inscription is dated in Śaka 842.⁵

The grant proper, which takes up the remainder of the inscription, is an order, which Amma I. addressed to the inhabitants of the Kaṇḍeṣuvāḍi-vishaya, and by which he granted the village of Goṇṭūru⁶ together with twelve hamlets to Bhaṇḍanāditya, alias Kuntāditya, one of his military officers. The donee belonged to the Paṭṭavardhini-vamśa. His ancestor Kālākampa had been in the service of Kubja-Vishnuvardhana, the first of the Eastern Chalukya kings, and had killed a certain Daddara in battle. Bhaṇḍanāditya himself had already served the donor's father, who is here called Vijayāditya-Kaliyarttyaṅka. The second part of this name corresponds to the Kollabhi-gaṇḍa or Kollabigaṇḍa of other inscriptions. The grant closes with the enumeration of the four boundaries of the village granted and of the names of the twelve hamlets included in it, and with two of the customary imprecatory verses.

⁴ Ibid. XII, 221. The inscription is dated in Śaka 822 expired, the Dundubhi year. The latter corresponds to the current Śaka year 825.

⁵ Ibid. XII, 223. The date of the original is Śaka 840, the Pramadhin year. The latter corresponds to the current Śaka year 842.

⁶ According to Mr. Sewell (Lists, Vol. II, p. 26) it remains doubtful, whether the village of Goṇṭūru is identical with the modern town of Guṇṭūr in the Kistna District.

TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1.) Let there be prosperity of all kinds for ever to the whole world, prosperity for ever to cows, brāhmanas and princes!

(Line 2.) Hail! Kubja-Vishnuvardhana,—the brother of Satyāśraya-Vallabha, who adorned the race of the glorious Chalukyas, *etc.*¹—(ruled) for eighteen years. His son Jayasimha-Vallabha (ruled) for thirty-three years. Vishnuvardhana, the son of his brother Indra-rāja, (ruled) for nine years. His son Mangi-yuvarāja (ruled) for twenty-five years. His son Jayasimha (ruled) for thirteen years. Kokkili, his younger brother from a different mother, (ruled) for six months. His elder brother Vishnu-rāja, having expelled his younger brother, (ruled) for thirty-seven years. His son Vijayāditya-bhaṭṭāraka (ruled) for eighteen years. His son Vishnuvardhana (ruled) for thirty-six years. His son,—

(Verses 2 and 3.) The brave king Vijayāditya,—having fought 108 battles, in which he acquired power by his arm, with the armies of the Gaṅgas and Raṭṭas for twelve years, by day and by night, sword in hand, by means of polity and valour,²—built the same number (i.e., 108) large temples of Śiva.

(Verse 4.) Having ruled his kingdom for forty-four years, this lord of Veṅgi became a companion of Indra.

(Verses 5 to 7.) His son, Kali-Vishnuvardhana, the brave lord of Veṅgi,—who knew (the science of) polity; who was skilled in fighting (kali) with all weapons;³ who was devoted to the art of protecting (his subjects), as he was able to enforce the rules of the castes and orders; whose arms were engaged in the conquest of hostile cities; who acquired glory on the whole earth, which was made prosperous by his ministers, whose chief aim was always to cherish the three objects of life; who was skilled in fighting with elephants and horses; and who knew (how to follow the precepts of) polity in ruling,—was the anointed lord of his prosperous race for one and a half years.

³ Read भगवती?

⁴ Read ऐशानतः.

⁵ The anuvāda stands in the next line.

⁶ Read वसुधराम्.

⁷ The passage, which is omitted in the translation, is identical with the first 4 lines of No. 35.

⁸ The exigencies of the metre seem to have occasioned the plural nayavikramāḥ instead of the dual nayavikramābhyām.

⁹ This epithet seems to be intended for an etymological explanation of the king's surname Kali.

(Verse 8.) His son was a ruler of all princes and a lord of all wealth, who was renowned for a frame, which possessed the splendour of beauty, (that appeared the more) spotless on account of his valour, liberality, firmness and justice.

(Verse 9.) Having conquered by his flashing sword crowds of warlike enemies (and) many princes, this Vijayāditya (i.e., the sun of victory), who possessed natural power, and whose rise was due to an inheritance of abundant majesty, daily conquered the sun in the world by his virtues, which consisted of valour and glory.

(Verse 10.) Having been challenged by the lord of the Rāṭṭas, this lord,—who possessed the strength of Śiva, (who resembled) the sun by the power obtained by his strong arm, and who had gained great and excellent might¹ by his strength, which impressed its mark on the universe,—conquered the unequalled Gaṅgas, cut off the head of Maṅgi in battle, frightened the firebrand Kṛishṇa and burnt his city completely.

(Line 27.) This asylum of the whole world, the illustrious Vijayāditya (ruled) for forty-four years. After him, the son of his younger brother Vikramāditya, (viz.) king Chalukya-Bhīma, whose other name was Drohārjuna, illumined the country of Veṅḡl, —which had been overrun by the army of the Rāṭṭa claimants, just as by dense darkness after sunset,—by the flashing of his sword, the only companion of his valour, and became king. Then, having fulfilled, like parents, like a friend, (or) like a preceptor, the desires of the distressed, the helpless, the naked, the dancers, the singers and those who gained their livelihood by (carrying) the banner of virtue, having gratified (their) minds by gifts, like the tree of paradise, and having ruled for thirty years, he became a companion of Indra, as though he had delighted him by his virtues.

(Verse 11.) His son Vijayāditya was famed for his wonderful strength, which was the means of his sway over all enjoyments, and through which he gained prosperity from his infancy.

(Verse 12.) Having destroyed the crowd of his (viz., his father's) foes by the strength of his arm (and) through his valour, while his father was still living, and having conquered after (his father's death) the crowd of his own enemies² and the association of his external foes by his extensive wisdom, (this) lord,—whose plans were backed up by invincible and great power, who was satisfied by the enjoyment of (all) his desires, who longed for (another) kingdom, and who had obtained glory,—went to Indra, in order to conquer one equal half (of Indra's throne).

(Line 38.) His son Amma, whose other name was Rājamahendra,—having destroyed from afar his enemies, as the rising sun (destroys from afar) the darkness, and having drawn his sword, which broke the dishonest hearts of his feudatory relatives, who had joined the party of his natural adversaries,—won the affection of the subjects and of the army of his father and of his grandfather by his might, which was backed up by the three (regal) powers. (He) who resembled the teacher of the gods in wisdom, the sun in glory, the earth in patience and the mountain of the immortals through his being the resting-place of many learned men (or gods), the asylum of the whole world, the illustrious Viṣṇuvardhana-mahārāja, who had celebrated the festival of his anointment to the kingdom, and who had ascended the throne, having called together all the householders, who inhabit the district of Kaṇḍaruvādi, thus issued his commands:—

² The six internal enemies of man seem to be intended; see page 35, note 3.

(Line 44.) The chief of the Paṭṭavardhini family, which was (always) charged with appointments by the prosperous succession of our race, he who was famed by the name of Kālakampa, the follower of Kubja-Vishṇuvardhana, killed in battle with his permission (a king) called Daddara, whose army was difficult to be overcome, and seized his banners. The son of Somāditya, who descended from his race, was Pritiviya-rāja (!), who acquired glory in many battles.

(Verses 13 and 14.) His son, whose weapons destroyed the pride of all enemies, a servant of king Vijayāditya-Kaliyarttyaṅka, (was) Bhaṇḍanāditya, of whom his enemies were afraid, when they perceived him approaching, his face covered with collyrium and his cheeks flushed, as if it were Yama, whose (elephant) Añjana¹ was facing (them), and the temples (of whose elephant) were shining (with rutting-juice).

(Verse 15.) For, having sounded the drum of heroes in tumultuous conflicts with the enemies and having defeated (their) army, he,—(who was also called) Kuntāditya, and who was the abode of the splendour of great fame combined with sacred knowledge,—pleased my mind, entered my service and obtained my favour; his long arms were the origin of the splendour of victory over hostile kings, whose armies were large and numerous.

(Line 53.) "To him we gave the village called Goṇṭūru together with twelve hamlets, having exempted it from all taxes. Thus be it made known to you by us. Its boundaries (are):—on the east, Goṅguva; on the south, Goṇayāru; on the west, Kalucheguvulu; on the north, Maḍapalli. The hamlets,² which are situated between these (four villages), (are):—on the east, Potuḡāyu; on the south-east, Peddakoyilamu; on the south, Kuvuvapoṭi; on the south-west, Peruvāti (and) Kuvuva; on the west, Pālaguṇṭa (and) Paḍumatikaṭṭa; on the north-west, Polakuṅḡoṇḍa, Monadurga (and) Bhagavati; on the north, Maḍapalliparṅgu; on the north-east, Chāmireṇiguṇṭa. Nobody shall cause obstruction to this (grant). He, who does it, becomes (guilty) of the five great sins. And Vyāsa has said thus: [Here follow two of the customary imprecatory verses.]"

NO. 37. A GRANT OF CHĀLUKYA-BHŪMA II.

The original of the subjoined inscription was kindly placed at my disposal by R. Sewell, Esq., then Acting Collector of the Kistna District, and was, at his desire, made over to the Central Museum, Madras, for safe custody. It was discovered recently, while digging a mound near the temple at Kolavennu, Bezvāda Tālluqa. The document consists of three copper-plates with raised rims. Each plate measures $9\frac{1}{4}$ by $4\frac{5}{8}$ inches. The first and third plates are inscribed only on their inner sides, while the second one bears writing on both sides. The writing on the third plate breaks off in the description of the boundaries of the granted village. As there is no trace of any letters after the words: yasyāśvadhayaḥ pūrvataḥ, "the boundaries of which (are), to the east," it seems that the document was left incomplete, perhaps because the necessary details of the surroundings of the village were not to hand, when the edict was issued. The plates are strung on a ring, which is $\frac{1}{2}$ inch thick and 5 inches in diameter. The circular seal, which is attached to the ring, rests on an expanded lotus-flower and measures $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches in diameter. It bears at the top a standing boar, which faces the right, with the sun and the moon over it, a chauri and an elephant-goad on its left and a chauri on its right; the centre of the seal is occupied by the legend श्रीत्रिभुवनाकुश and its bottom by a lotus-flower with eight petals (bird's-eye view),—all in relief on a counter-sunk surface. Both the inscription and the seal are in fairly good preservation.

² Kiketrastānan seems to have the same meaning as grāmatikā in line 53.

The inscription opens with a maṅgala, which mentions the lotus-flower that rises from Viṣṇu's navel,¹ and then gives the usual vaṁśavali of the Eastern Chalukyas from Kubja-Viṣṇu to Vikramāditya, the younger son of Chālukya-Bhima I. The ensuing reign of Yuddhamalla, the son of Tālapa, is left out. This omission is probably due to the fact, that Chālukya-Bhima II. considered his predecessor, whom he conquered, as an usurper and ignored him purposely. The grant consists of an order addressed by Chālukya-Bhima II. alias Viṣṇuyardhana VII. to the inhabitants of the Kāṇḍuvāṭi-vishaya² and issued at the request of a vassal of the king, the Pānara prince Vājaya. On the occasion of a winter-solstice (uttarāyana),³ Bhima II. gave the village of Koḍhataḷli as an agrahāra to Kōmmaṇa, who knew the kramapāṭha (kramavād) and adhered to the Āpastamba-sūtra. The donee was the son of Deṇiya, who knew the kramapāṭha (kramaka), and of Kandamavvā, and the grandson of Revaśarman, an inhabitant of Ābherad-vasukālmādi

TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1.) The primeval lotus-flower, which rises from a tank (that consists of) the navel of Hari (Vishnu), which is enlarged by a stalk (that consists of the mountain) Meru, and which is the birth-place of Aja (Brahman), is victorious for ever.

Hail! Kubja-Vishnu, the brother of Satyâśraya, who adorned the race of the glorious Châlukyas, etc.,¹⁶ (ruled) for eighteen years.

His son Vijayāditya (ruled) for six months.

His son Amma-rāja (ruled) for seven years.

His son Vijayāditya (ruled) for half a month.

After him Tālapa-rāja (ruled) for (one) month.

Having conquered him, Vikramāditya, the son of Chālukya-Bhīma, ruled for (one) year over the country of Veṅgi together with Trikalīṅga.

(Verse 2.) Chālukya-Bhīma, the son of Vijayāditya and brother of Amma-rāja by a different mother, ties the (royal) tiara for as long a time as the moon and stars shall endure.

Having conquered in a battle with his arm Tāta-Bikyaṇa (?), this Rāja-mārtanda¹ (i.e., the sun among kings) causes his fame to be sung by the people.

He who, like Meru, is possessed of insurmountable greatness, and who knows all arts (kalā), just as the (full) moon possesses all digits (kalā), this asylum of the whole world, the illustrious Vishṇuvardhana, the king of great kings, the supreme master, the supreme lord, the most pious one, thus issues his commands to the householders, (viz.) heads of provinces, etc., who inhabit the district of Kaṇḍuvāṭi:—

“Be it known to you that, at the request of king Vājīyaya, who purifies the Pānara princes,² who is a treasure-house of truthfulness, liberality, pride and heroism, and whose strong arm (is able) to protect my kingdom;”—

(Verse 3.) From Revaśarman, who dwelt at Ābharadvasukālmādi, there sprang the lord Deṇiya, who knew the kramapāṭha, the Vedas and Vedāṅgas.

(Verse 4.) His son was the noble Kommaṇa, a follower of the Āpastamba-sūtra, who adorned his race and was resplendent with holiness;

(Verse 5.) The son of Kandamavvā, (who resembled) Kāma in beauty and who fulfilled the desires of suppliants. Having approached his abundance, those brāhmanas are resplendent, just as swans which have entered a tank.³

(Verse 6.) His sons and grandsons, youths who are clever in assemblies of eminent men, obtain a succession of agrahāras and of highest marks of reverence.

“To this Kommaṇa, who knows the kramapāṭha, we gave, with exemption from all taxes, the village called Kodhatalli, making it an agrahāra, with a libation of water, on the occasion of the winter-solstice.”

The boundaries of this (village are): on the east

NO. 38. A GRANT OF AMMA II.

Like the preceding inscription, this one was received from Mr. R. Sewell, who found it lying in the Huzūr Treasury attached to the Collector's Office, Masulipatam, and was made over to the Madras Museum. The document consists of three copper-plates with raised rims.

¹ This seems to have been a biruda of Chālukya-Bhīma II.

² I.e., who belonged to the Pānara race.

³ I.e., he was liberal to brāhmanas.

Each plate measures $7\frac{3}{4}$ by $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches. The first and third plates are inscribed only on their inner sides, while the second one bears writing on both sides. They are all much worn, and of the third plate one entire half is lost. The plates are strung on a ring, which is $\frac{3}{8}$ inch thick and 5 inches in diameter. The circular seal, which is attached to the ring, rests on an expanded lotus-flower and measures $2\frac{7}{8}$ inches in diameter. It is much corroded, but still shows distinct traces of a standing boar, which faces the right, at the top, of the legend श्रीविमुवनाकुश across the centre, and of a lotus-flower with eight petals [bird's-eye view] at the bottom—all in relief on a counter-sunk surface.

The document opens with the usual vamsāvali of the Eastern Chalukyas from Kubja-Vishṇuvardhana. The donor is Amma-rāja II. alias Vijayāditya V. (who began to reign in Śaka 867). The king addresses his order to the inhabitants of the Gudravāra-vishaya, which must be identical with the Gudrāvāra- or Gudrahāra-vishaya of other inscriptions.¹ The donee, whose name is lost, was the family priest (kula-brāhmaṇa) of the king and belonged to the Kauṇḍilya-gotra (sic). The object granted seems to have been a field, which had formerly belonged to the donee (stadīya-prāktana-kshetra), but had been taken away from him (vilupta) and was probably restored to him by the present document. The other details of the grant are lost.

His son Jayasimha (ruled) for thirty-three (years).

Vishnuvardhana, the son of his younger brother Indra-rāja, (ruled) for nine (years).

His son Maṅgi-yuvarāja (ruled) for twenty-five (years).

His son Jayasimha (ruled) for thirteen (years).

His younger brother Kokkili (ruled) for six months.

His elder brother Vishnuvardhana, having expelled him, (ruled) for thirty-seven (years).

His son Vijayāditya-bhaṭṭāraka (ruled) for eighteen (years).

His son Vishnuvardhana (ruled) for thirty-six (years).

His son Vijayāditya-Narendra-mṛigarāja (ruled) for forty-eight (years).

His son Kali-Vishnuvardhana (ruled) for one and a half years.

His son Gunaga-Vijayāditya (ruled) for forty-four (years).

The victorious son of his brother, prince Vikramāditya, (who wore) on his neck a glittering necklace,—¹

(Verse 1.) That handsome Chālukya-Bhīma enjoyed for thirty years the earth, protecting (it) like a mother (her child), and granting the fruits of their desires to the distressed, helpless and sick, to the association of the best of twice-born, to beggars, to ascetics, to clever youths, dancers, excellent singers and poets, who had come from various countries, to his relatives and to the blind.

His son Vijayāditya (ruled) for six months.

His (son) Amma-rāja (ruled) for seven (years).

After him, Tālapa-rāja (ruled) for (one) month.

Having expelled him, Vikramāditya, the son of Chālukya-Bhīma, (ruled) for (one) year.

After him Yuddhamalla (ruled) for seven (years).

(Verse 2.) Having conquered and expelled from the country this haughty one, and having made the other heirs to assume the appearance of stars, which are absorbed in the rays of the sun, the younger brother of king Amma, (viz.) Bhīma, who resembled Arjuna, and who was possessed of terrible power, enjoyed for twelve years the earth, just as the bearer of the thunderbolt (Indra) does the great heaven.

(Verse 3.) Just as Kumāra to Mahēśvara from Umā, Amma-rāja was born to him from Lokamahādevī.

(Verse 4.) While this king was ruling, the country produced an abundance of well-ripened grain of various kinds, possessed cows that were continually yielding milk, and was free from fears, calamities, diseases, and thieves.

This asylum of the whole world, the illustrious Vijayāditya, the king of great kings, the supreme master, the supreme lord, the most pious one, having called together the householders, (viz.) heads of provinces, &c., who inhabit the district of Guḍravāra, thus issues his commands :—

NO. 39. A GRANT OF VĪRA-CHOLA.

The original of the subjoined grant belongs to the Sir W. Elliot Collection in the British Museum and was lent to me for publication by Dr. Burgess. It had been previously in the possession of the karanam of Chellûr, a village in the Cocanada Tâlluqa of the Godâvart District. The grant consists of five copper-plates with raised rims. Each plate measures $5\frac{1}{2}$ by $10\frac{1}{2}$ inches. The first plate bears writing only on its inner side, while the remaining ones are inscribed on both sides. The preservation of the plates is fairly good; the fifth only is somewhat damaged. The ring, which bears the seal, has been cut. It is $\frac{5}{8}$ inch thick and $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter. The well-preserved seal measures $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter. It rests on an expanded lotus-flower and bears in relief on a counter-sunk surface the legend श्रीत्रिभुवनकुश. Over the latter, it contains a boar, which faces the right and is surrounded by two lamp stands, two châmaras, the sun and the moon, an elephant-goad and a conch. Below the legend, there is a drum (?), an expanded lotus-flower (bird's-eye view), an emblem resembling what Mr. Fleet supposes to be a makara-torana,¹ and a svastika.

Abstracts of the present inscription have already been published by Sir W. Elliot.² It is the latest known document of the Eastern Chalukya dynasty and possesses considerable interest, as it contains valuable details about the connection between the Eastern Chalukyas and the Chôlas and thus settles the dates of several kings of the last-mentioned dynasty.

The vaṃśâvali of the inscription consists of four parts:—

I. (Lines 1-16.) A genealogy of the lunar race down to Udayana, commencing with whom fifty-nine emperors are supposed to have reigned at Ayodhyâ.

II. (Lines 16-28.) An account of five Early Chalukya kings, viz.:—

Vijayāditya I., killed in a battle with Trilochana-Pallava.

Vishnuvardhana, married to a Pallava princess.

Vijayāditya II.

Pulakeśi-Vallabha.

Kirtivarman.

III. (Lines 28-46.) The usual succession of the Eastern Chalukyas of Veṅgi from Kubja-Vishnuvardhana to Vimalāditya.

IV. (Lines 46-78.) An account of the later Eastern Chalukyas during their connection with the Chôlas, viz.:—

The first and second parts of the vaṃśâvali need not be treated in detail, as the first is entirely mythical, and Mr. Fleet considers the second to be “a mere farrago of vague tradition and Purāṇik myths, of no authority, based on the undoubted facts that the Chalukyas did come originally from the north, and did find the Pallavas in possession of some of the territories afterwards acquired by themselves, and on a tradition of the later Kādambas that the founder of their family was named Trilochana or Trinetra."¹

The third part of the vaimśdvali agrees with Mr. Fleet's grants of Rājarāja I. and of Kulottuṅga-Choḍa-deva II.² Just as in the grant of Rājarāja I. a reign of 3 years is allotted to Dānārṇava, who is here also called Dāna-nṛipa, and an interregnum of 27 years is stated to have taken place after him. There follow the reigns of his sons Śaktivarman (12 years) and Vimalāditya (7 years). No mention is made of the Choḷa princess Kūṇḍavā, whom the latter married according to the grant of Rājarāja I.

We now turn to the fourth part of the vaimśdvali. The son of Vimalāditya, Rājarāja, who ruled for 41 years (line 47), married Ammaṅga-devī, the daughter of a Rājendra-Choḍa of the solar race (verse 7). Their son Rājendra-Choḍa (verse 8), Kulottuṅga-deva (verse 11) or Rājanārāyaṇa (verse 12) at first ascended the throne of Veṅḡ (verse 9), conquered Kerala, Pāṇḍya, Kuṇṭala and other countries (verse 10), and was anointed to the Choḍa kingdom (verse 11). He married Madhurāntakī, the daughter of a Rājendra-deva of the solar race (verse 12) and had by her seven sons (verse 13). When he rose to the Choḍa kingdom, he had given the kingdom of Veṅḡ to his paternal uncle Vijayāditya (verse 14), who died after a reign of fifteen years (verse 15). Then he gave Veṅḡ to his son Rājarāja (verses 13 and 16) and, when the latter had returned after one year's reign (verse 17), to Rājarāja's younger brother Vīra-Choḍa (verse 18), who was crowned at Jaganātha-nagari³ (verse 20) in Śaka 1001 (verse 21). As the difference between this date and Śaka 944, the date of the accession of Rājarāja I. according to Mr. Fleet's grant, is equal to the sum of the intervening reigns of Rājarāja I., Vijayāditya VI. and Rājarāja II. ($41 + 15 + 1 = 57$), it follows that Rājendra-Choḍa must have appointed Vijayāditya VI. viceroy of Veṅḡ in the very year of his accession. The present grant of Vīra-Choḍa is dated in the 21st year of his reign, i.e., Śaka 1022, or 12 years before the death of his father Rājendra-Choḍa and before the accession of his elder brother Vikrama-Choḍa.

The chief importance of the Chellūr plates consists in the light, which they throw on a portion of the history of the Choḷa dynasty. The large Leyden grant and some of the Tamil inscriptions contained in the present volume mention three Western Chālukya kings, who were the antagonists of three Choḷa kings:—

1. According to the large Leyden grant, Rājarāja-deva (see Nos. 40, 41 and 66, below) conquered Satyāśraya. This was probably the Western Chālukya king Satyāśraya II. (Śaka 919 to about 930.) Consequently, Rājarāja-deva may be identified with that Rājarāja of the Sūryavamśa, whose daughter Kūṇḍavā was married to the Eastern Chālukya king Vimalāditya (Śaka 937 (?) to 944). With this agrees the Koṅḡu Chronicle, which places Rājarāja's reign about Śaka 926.

2. According to Nos. 67 and 68, below, Rājendra-Choḷa-deva conquered Jayasimha. This was the Western Chālukya king Jayasimha III. (about Śaka 940 to about 964), who, in one of his inscriptions, calls himself "the lion to the elephant Rājendra-Choḷa" (see the introduction to No. 67). Consequently, Rājendra-Choḷa-deva must be identified with that Rājendra-Choḍa of the Sūryavaṃśa, whose daughter Ammaṅga-devī was married to the Eastern Chalukya king Rājarāja I. (Śaka 944 to 985), and who may be the same as that Rājendra-Choḍa, whose younger sister Kūṇḍavā was married to Vimalāditya (Śaka 937 (?) to 944). If the last identification is correct, Rājendra-Choḍa-deva would have been the son of Rājarāja-deva.

² Ind. Ant. Vol. XIV, pp. 48 and 55.

³ Jaganātha is a Prakṛit form of Jagannātha. Jaganātha-nagari may be identified with Jagannāthapuram, which is, according to Mr. R. Sewell, "the portion of the town of Occanada lying south of the river." See Lists of Antiquities, Vol. I, p. 24.

3. According to the fragmentary inscription No. 127, below, and according to an inscription at Māmallapuram, Rājendra-deva conquered Āhavamalla. This was probably the Western Chālukya king Āhavamalla II. or Someśvara I. (about Śaka 964 to about 990), who, according to inscriptions and according to the Vikramāṅkacharita, fought with the Cholas. Consequently, Rājendra-deva may be identified with that Rājendra-deva of the Sūryavaṃśa, whose daughter Madhurāntakī was married to the Eastern Chalukya king Rājendra-Choḍa or Kulottuṅga-Choḍa-deva I. (Śaka 985 to 1034.) The inscriptions do not inform us, in what manner Rājendra-deva was related to his predecessor Rājendra-Choḍa-deva.

The subjoined table will show at a glance all supposed synchronisms:—

Western Chālukyas.	Cholas (Sūryavaṃśa).	Eastern Chalukyas (Samavaṃśa).
1. Satyāśraya II. fought with Rājarāja-deva, who was the father-in-law of Vimalāditya (Śaka 919 to about 930.)	(about Śaka 926.)	(Śaka 937 (?) to 944).
2. Jayasimha III. fought with Rājendra-Choḍa-deva, who was the father-in-law of Rājarāja I. (about Śaka 940 to about 964.)		(Śaka 944 to 985.)
3. Āhavamalla II. fought with Rājendra-deva, who was the father-in-law of Rājendra-Choḍa or Kulottuṅga-Choḍa-deva I. (about Śaka 964 to about 990.)		(Śaka 985 to 1034.)

In order to prevent its re-occurrence, I conclude with alluding to the πρώτον ψεύδος in all previous pedigrees of the Cholas. This was the confounding of the two Choḷa kings Rājarāja and Rājendra-Choḷa with their Eastern Chalukya grandsons, who seem to have received their names from those of their maternal grandfathers. In reality the Eastern Chalukya king Rājarāja I. ruled only over Veṅḡ. His son Rājendra-Choḍa or Kulottuṅga-Choḍa-deva I., though at first king of Veṅḡ, seems to have inherited the Choḷa kingdom from his father-in-law, the Choḷa king Rājendra-deva, in Śaka 985.

After the vaiśāvalī, the subjoined inscription contains the grant itself. It is an order, which was addressed by the paramamāheśvara Vira-Choḍa-deva (line 79), alias Viṣṇu-vardhana (line 78) to the inhabitants of the Guḍḍavāṭi-vishaya¹ (line 80). In the 21st year of his reign (line 113) the king gave a village of the above-mentioned district, whose name is indistinct, but seems to have been Kolāṅḡ² (line 103), to a temple of Viṣṇu at the agrahāra of Chellūru.³ This Viṣṇu temple had been founded (verse 36) by the king's aśvapati (verse 30) Medamārya (verse 27), alias Guṇaratnaḥṣṭhaṇa (verse 29), who had also constructed a pond at the same village of Chellūru (verse 34) and founded two saltras at

² Sir W. Elliot read it Kaleru. The name of the village may have something to do with the Kolār or Kolleru Lake (Ind. Ant. Vol. XIV, p. 204; Sewell's Lists of Antiquities, Vol. I, p. 52) in the Guḍḍavāḍa Tāluqa.

³ This is the modern village of Chellūr, whence Sir W. Elliot obtained the plates.

Drākshārāma¹ and Pīṭhapuri² (verse 33). He was the son of Potana of the Mudgala-gotra (verse 24), who had received from Rājarāja³ the somewhat lengthy title of Rājarāja-brahma-mahārāja (verse 25), by Kannamāmbā (verse 26). The edict ends with the statement, that its executors (ājñapti) were the five ministers (pañcha pradhānāḥ), and with the names of the composer and the writer.

TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1.) From the lotus-flower, (which rose) from the navel of the abode of Śrī, the supreme spirit, the great lord Nārāyaṇa (Vishnu), there was born Svayambhū (Brahman), the creator of the world. From him there sprang a spiritual son, called Atri. From this saint Atri there arose Soma, the founder of a race, the nectar-rayed, the crest-jewel of Śrīkaṇṭha (Śiva).

(Verse 2.) From this producer of nectar there sprang Budha, who was praised by the wise. From him there was begot a valorous emperor called Purūṛavas.

(Line 4.) From him (came) Āyū; from him Nahusha; from him the emperor Yayāti, the founder of a race; from him Puru; from him Janamejaya; from him Prāchiśa; from him Sainyayāti; from him Hayapati; from him Sārvabhauma; from him Jayasena; from him Mahābhauma; from him Aiśānuka; from him Krodhānana; from him Devaki; from him Rībhuka; from him Rīkshaka; from him Mativara, the performer of great sacrifices and lord of the Sarasvatī river; from him Kātyāyana; from him Nīla; from him Dushyanta. His son was he who, having placed sacrificial posts in an uninterrupted line on the banks of the Gaṅgā and Yamunā, and having successively performed the great rite (called) horse-sacrifice, obtained the name of Bharata. From this Bharata (came) Bhūmanyu; from him Hastin; from him Virochana; from him Ajamiḥha; from him Saṁvarana; from him Sudhanvan; from him Parikshit; from him Bhīmasena; from him Pradīpana; from him Śāntanu; from him Vichitravīrya; from him Pāṇḍu-rāja; from him the Pāṇḍavas.

(Verse 3.) (From) that victorious bearer of (the bow) gāṇḍīva, who, having conquered (Indra) the bearer of the thunderbolt, burnt the hermitage in the Khāṇḍava (forest), who acquired the weapon of Paśupati (Śiva) in battle from (Śiva) the enemy of Andhaka, who, having killed Kīlikēya and many other Daityas, partook of one half of Indra's throne, and who wilfully destroyed the forest-like race of the lord of the Kurus;—

(Line 14.) From that Arjuna (came) Abhimanyu; from him Parikshit; from him Janamejaya; from him Kshemuka; from him Naravāhana; from him Śatānika; from him Udayana. When, commencing with him, fifty-nine emperors, whose succession was uninterrupted, and who sat on the throne of Ayodhyā, had passed away, a king of this race, Vijayāditya by name, went to the Dekhan (Dakṣiṇāpatha), in order to conquer (it) and attacked Trilochana-Pallava, (but) through ill-luck he went to another world. During this battle, his great queen, who was pregnant, reached together with the family-priest and the old ministers an agrahāra called Mudivemu, and, being protected like a daughter by Vishṇubhaṭṭa-somayājīn, a great ascetic, who dwelt there, she gave birth to a son, Vishṇuvardhana. She brought him up, having caused to be performed for this prince the rites, which were suitable to (his) descent from the double gotra of those, who belonged to the gotra of the Mānavyas and were the sons of Hārītī.¹ And he, having been told the (above-mentioned) events by his mother, went forth, worshipped Nandā, the blessed Gaurī, on the Chalukya mountain, appeased Kumāra (Skanda), Nārāyaṇa (Vishṇu) and the assemblage of (divine) mothers, assumed the insignia of sovereignty which had descended (to him) by the succession of his race, (but) which had been, as it were, laid aside, (viz.) the white parasol, the single conch, the five mahātāḍas, the flags in rows,² the pratidhakkā (drum), the sign of the boar, the peacock's tail, the spear, the throne, the arch (in the shape) of a makara,³ the golden sceptre, (the signs of) the Gaṅgā and Yamunā, etc., conquered the Kaḍamba, the Gaṅga and other princes, and ruled over the Dekhan (Dakṣiṇāpatha), (which is situated) between the bridge (of Rāma) and the (river) Narmadā (and the revenue from which amounts to) seven and a half lakṣas.⁴

(Verse 4.) The son of this king Vishṇuvardhana and of (his) great queen, who was born from the Pallava race, was Vijayāditya.

(Line 27.) His son was Pulakeśi-Vallabha. His son was Kīrtivarman. His son,—Hail! Kubja-Vishṇuvardhana, the brother of Satyāśraya-Vallabhendra, who adorned the race of the glorious Chālukyas, etc.,⁵ ruled for eighteen years over the country of Veṅgī; his son Jayasimha-Vallabha for thirty-three (years); his younger brother Indra-rāja for seven days; his son Vishṇuvardhana for nine years; his son Maṅgi-yuvarāja for twenty-five (years); his son Jayasimha for thirteen (years); his younger brother Kokkili for six months; his elder brother Vishṇuvardhana, having expelled him, for thirty-seven (years); his son Vijayāditya-bhaṭṭāraka for eighteen (years); his son Vishṇuvardhana for thirty-six (years); his son Narendra-mṛigarāja for forty-eight (years); his son Kali-Vishṇuvardhana for one and a half years; his son Guṇagāṅka-Vijayāditya for forty-four (years); Chālukya-Bhīma, the son of his brother Vikramāditya, for thirty (years); his son Kollabhigaṇḍa-Vijayāditya for six months; his son Amma-rāja for seven years; having expelled his infant son Vijayāditya, Tāḍapa (ruled) for one month; having conquered him, Vikramāditya, the son of Chālukya-Bhīma, (ruled) for eleven months; then Yuddhamalla, the son of Tāḍapa-rāja, for seven years; having expelled him from the country, Rāja-Bhīma, the younger brother of Amma-rāja, (ruled) for twelve years; his son Amma-rāja for twenty-five (years); Dāna-nṛipa, his brother from a different mother, for three years. Then the country of Veṅgi was through ill-luck without a ruler for twenty-seven years. Then king Śaktivarman, the son of Dānārṇava, ruled over the earth for twelve years.

(Verse 5.) Then his younger brother, king Vimalāditya, who was kind to (all) beings, ruled over the earth for seven years.

(Line 46.) His son, king Rājarāja, who possessed political wisdom, and who was the abode of the goddess of victory, ruled over the whole earth for forty-one years.

(Verse 6.) He whose fame was brilliant, who was the only jewel which adorned the glorious race of the moon, and who was the only jewel which fulfilled the desires of the distressed, surpassed Cupid by his beauty, the moon by his pure splendour, Parāṇḍara (Indra) by his possessions, (Vishṇu) the bearer of Lakshmi by his great prosperity, and Bhīma by his terrible power.

(Verse 7.) He had a spotless queen, Ammaṅga by name, who was famed on earth by her good deeds, who was the only abode of lucky marks, who purified the world, and who sprung from Rājendra-Choḍa, the ornament of the race of the sun, just as Gaṅgā from Jānu, Gaurī from Himavat and Lakshmi from the milk-ocean.

(Verse 8.) Just as (Siva) the bearer of Gaṅgā and (Pārvatī) the daughter of the mountain had a son called Kārttikeya, these two had a son called Rājendra-Choḍa, who annihilated the multitude of his enemies by his irresistible power, whose fame was worthy of praise, and who was the light of the warrior-caste.¹

(Verse 9.) Having at first occupied the throne of Veṅgi, (which became) the cause of the rising of (his) splendour, just as the sun at morn occupies the eastern mountain, he conquered (all) quarters with his power.

(Verse 10.) Having burnt all foes with the rising and fierce fire of his valour, and having successively conquered Kerala, Pāṇḍya, Kuntala and all other countries, he placed his commands on the heads of princes, the pain of fear in the hearts of fools and his fame, which was as white as the rays of the moon, in (all) quarters.

(Verse 11.) Kulottuṅga-deva, the most eminent of the great warrior-caste, whose might resembled that of the king of the gods (Indra), was anointed to the Choḍa kingdom, which was not inferior to the kingdom of the gods, and put on the tiara, embellished with invaluable gems of many kinds, which had been sent by various kings, who were exceedingly afraid of the threatening of his arms, which were as formidable as the terrible coils of the serpent-king.

(Verse 12.) He in whose hands the conch, the discus and the lotus were shining, and whom (therefore) the world praised as Rājanārāyaṇa (i.e., a Vishṇu among kings), married (as it were) Lakshmi (the wife of Vishṇu) herself, who was known by her other name, vis., Madhurāntakī, and who (just as the goddess Lakshmi) from the ocean, arose from Rājendra-deva, the ornament of the race of the sun, a queen who was praised in the world and exalted by her deeds.

(Verse 13.) To these two there were born (seven) sons, who were as pure as the (seven) streams of the Gaṅgā, who, like the (seven) Ādityas, had destroyed the darkness (of sin), and who, like the (seven) mountains, were able (to undergo) the fatigue of supporting the earth.

To (one) among these, the illustrious Râjarâja, who was the joint abode of polity and valour, (his) father, the lord of the whole earth, affectionately addressed the following speech :—

(Verse 14.) "Being desirous of the Choḍa kingdom, I formerly conferred the kingdom of the country of Veṅgi on my paternal uncle, king Vijayâditya.

(Verse 15.) "Having ruled over the country for fifteen years, this god-like prince, who resembled the five-faced (Śiva) in power, has gone to heaven."

(Verse 16.) This obedient one (viz., Râjarâja) took up that burden, (viz., the kingdom of Veṅgi,) which the emperor, (his) father, gave him with these words, though he did not like the separation from him.

(Verse 17.) "The kingdom is not such a pleasure as the worship of the illustrious feet of the elders"; considering thus, he returned to his parents, after having ruled over the country of Veṅgi for one year.

(Verse 18.) Then the emperor spoke to his (viz., Râjarâja's) younger brother, the brave prince Vira-Choḍa, who seemed to be an incarnation of the quality (of) valour: "Having ascended the throne of Veṅgi, place thy feet on the heads of (other) kings, just as the sun, having ascended the eastern mountain, places his rays on the peaks of (other) mountains."

(Verse 19.) Thus having successively obtained the powerful blessing of the king, of the queen and of his two elder brothers, having bowed to these and having been bowed to by his younger brothers,¹ the prince was with difficulty prevailed upon by them to start for his country.

(Verse 20.) Having driven away his enemies, having eclipsed with his splendour the other crowds of kings, having stopped the wicked and having made the earth rejoice, the lord, the ornament of the country of Veṅgi, the king's son ascended (his) palace in the town called Jaganâtha, resembling the disk of the morning-sun, who, having driven away the darkness, having eclipsed with his splendour the other crowds of stars,² having stopped the wicked, and having made the lotus-group blossom, ascends the eastern mountain.

(Verse 21.) In the Śaka year, which is reckoned by the moon, the pair of ciphers and the moon, (i.e., 1001,) while the sun stood in the lion, while the moon was waxing, on the thirteenth lunar day, on a Thursday, while the scorpion was the lagna and in (the nakshatra) Śravaṇa, having been anointed to the kingdom of the whole earth, the sinless king, the illustrious Vira-Choḍa, joyfully put on the tiara of the world.

(Line 78.) This asylum of the whole world, the illustrious Viṣṇuvardhana, the king of great kings, the supreme master of kings, the devout worshipper of Mahoṣvara, the supreme lord, the most pious one, the illustrious Vira-Choḍa-deva, having called together all householders, (viz.) heads of provinces, &c., who inhabit the district of Guddavâṭi, thus issues his commands in the presence of the ministers, the family priest, the commander of the army, the heir-apparent and the door-keeper :—

(Verse 22.) Just as the moon in the milk-ocean, there was in the pure race of Brahman a chief of ascetics, called Mudgala, whose appearance was extremely gladdening.

(Verse 23.) When he, whose power was incomprehensible, had invited the sun, his staff performed the action of the sun at his command.

¹ The plural in the original shows that Vira-Choḍa had at least three younger brothers; according to verse 13, their number was four.

² This seems to be the second meaning of rdjunikarṇa apardn.

(Verse 24.) In his gotra there was a certain Potana, whose deeds were pure, who made his gotra prosper and who illuminated the quarters with the splendour of his fame.

(Verse 25.) This virtuous one was joyfully praised by the lord Râjarâja, who knew (how to appreciate) virtues, by the name of Râjarâja-brahma-mahârâja (i.e., the great king of the brâhmanas of Râjarâja).

(Verse 26.) Just as the wife of Atri was Anasûyâ, the wife of this treasure-house of merit was Kannamâmbâ, who was praised in the world, and who was exalted by the virtue of freedom from envy (anasûyâ).

(Verse 27.) Just as Devaki bore from Vasudeva a son called Vâsudeva (Krishna), and just as the mountain-daughter (Pârvatî) bore from the moon-crowned (Śiva) a son called Guha, thus she bore from him a son called Meḍamârya, who was a treasure-house of prosperity, and who was praised by all the assemblies of wise men (or gods).

(Verse 28.) After he was born, prosperity dwelt on all the crowds of his relatives, just as on the groups of lotus-flowers at the rising of the sun; for (like the sun) he purified the quarters with his unrestrained splendour, was daily in the state of rising and was possessed of a blossoming lotus (-face).

(Verse 29.) Having conquered the kali-age which is skilled in plundering heaps of virtues,—all virtues, (viz.) truthfulness, liberality, prowess, &c., prosper, abiding jointly in him, who is kind to refugees, who is alone constant in a conduct (which is worthy) of the kṛita-age, and who is famed by the name of Guṇaratnabhûṣaṇa (i.e., he who is adorned with jewel-like virtues).

(Verse 30.) Because he was firm, always attached, of strong and sharp mind, a light of the race of Brahman, an abode of prosperity, possessed of blazing splendour, a treasure-house of polity and modesty, skilled in sciences and in weapons, worthy of honour and as hard as the substance of the king of mountains, he was respectfully and graciously anointed by me to the dignity of a commander of the army (senâpati) and wears the tiara which was placed (on his head) to the delight of the people.

(Verse 31.) He delights his elders by obedience, the world by his conduct, his relations by respect, the good by the riches which they desire, myself by his patience in bearing my kingdom of the whole earth and Śauri (Vishnu) by great devotion.

(Verse 32.) Ah! the auspicious streams of water, which drop from the feet of innumerable crowds of earth-gods (i.e., brâhmanas), who daily perform their ablutions in his court-yards, and which continually fill thousands of paths, surpass the streams of the Gaṅgâ, which drop from the feet of one of the gods (viz., Vishnu), and which are tired of their three paths (viz., heaven, earth and the lower world).

(Verse 33.) At holy Drākshârâma and at the sacred place of Pîṭhapurî, this charitable one joyfully founded two śaṭṭras for brâhmanas, in order that they might daily enjoy their meals (there) till the end of the kalpa.

(Verse 34.) On the north side of a lovely agrahâra of good people, which is famed by the name of Chellûru, he whose mind is full of compassion caused to be constructed a large pond which is filled with sweet water.

(Verse 35.) By its water, which glitters like the moon, and which is daily enjoyed by numberless brâhmanas who resemble Agastya, this (pond) repeatedly laughs, as it were, at the ocean, which was completely drunk up by the pitcher-born (Agastya).

(Verse 36.) On the west side of that village, this powerful, mighty and charitable chief of the Vaishnavas caused to be built a temple of Vishnu.

(Verse 87.) In this lofty (temple), which is as white as the rays of the moon, which is the abode of splendour (or Lakshmi) and which pleases the eye, the god himself, who is the husband of Lakshmi, made his appearance, his conch and discus being distinctly visible.

(Line 102.) "Be it known to you, that to this blessed lord Viṣṇu (I) gave for the daily (performance of) charu, bali and pūjā and for the repairs of gaps and cracks [the village called Kolāṅga] in your district [with exemption from all taxes, making it the property of the temple, with a libation of water.]"

(Line 104.) [The boundaries of this village are :—on the east]

(Line 109.) Nobody shall cause obstruction to this (grant). He who does it, becomes possessed of the five great sins. And the holy Vyāsa has said : [Here follow three of the customary imprecatory verses.]

TAMIL AND GRANTHA INSCRIPTIONS.

I.—INSCRIPTIONS AT MĀMALLAPURAM.

No. 40. ON THE SOUTH BASE OF THE SHORE TEMPLE.

This inscription is dated in the twenty-fifth year of Ko-Rājarāja-Rājakesarivarman, alias Rājarāja-deva. It states, that the king "built a jewel-like hall at Kāndaḷūr," and then gives a list of the countries, which he is said to have conquered. Among them Veṅgai-nāḍu is the well-known country of Veṅgi; Gaṅga-pāḍi and Nuḷamba-pāḍi are found on Mr. Rice's Map of Mysore;¹ Kuḍamalai-nāḍu, "the western hill-country," is Coorg; Kollam is Quilon; Kalingam is the country between the Godāvari and Mahānadi rivers; Īra-maṇḍalam is Ceylon; Iraṭṭa-pāḍi is the Western Chālukyan empire;² and the Śoṛiyas are the Pāṇḍyas. I have been unable to identify Taḍigai-pāḍi.

Sir Walter Elliot's and Dr. Burnell's tentative lists of Chōḷa kings³ contain a king Rājarāja, who reigned from 1023 to 1064 A.D. These figures rest on three Eastern Chālukya grants, of which two have since been published by Mr. Fleet and one has been edited and translated above (No. 39). From these three grants it appears, that the Rājarāja, who reigned from Śaka 944 to 985, was not a Chōḷa king, but a king of Veṅgi, and that his insertion in the list of Chōḷa kings was nothing but a mistake.

The historical portion of the subjoined inscription is almost identical with lines 166 to 173 of the large Leyden grant⁴ and must belong to the same king. The Leyden grant states that Rājarāja conquered Satyāśraya (line 65). This name was borne as a surname by no less than six of the earlier Western Chālukya kings and was also the name of one of the later Western Chālukyas. From certain unpublished inscriptions of the Tanjore Temple it can be safely inferred, that Rājarāja-deva was the predecessor of Rājendra-Chōḷa-deva, the enemy of the Western Chālukya king Jayasimha III., who ruled from about Śaka 944 to about 964.⁵ Hence the Satyāśraya mentioned in the Leyden grant might be identified with the Western Chālukya king Satyāśraya II., who ruled from Śaka 919 to about 930;⁶ and the Chōḷa king Rājarāja, who issued the large Leyden grant and the inscriptions Nos. 40, 41 and 66 of the present volume, with that Rājarāja of the Sārya-vamśa, whose daughter Kāṇḍavā was married to the Eastern Chālukya king Vimalāditya,⁷ who reigned from Śaka 937 (?) to 944. As Rājarāja-deva boasts in his inscriptions of having conquered Veṅgai-nāḍu, the country of the Eastern Chālukyas, this marriage was probably a forced one and the result of his conquest of Vimalāditya.⁸ The identification of the Rājarāja-deva of the Leyden grant and of Nos. 40, 41 and 66 with the father of Kāṇḍavā is confirmed by the Kōṅgu Chronicle, where some of his charities are placed in Śaka 926.¹ The Kōṅgu Chronicle further suggests the probability of identifying Kāṇḍalūr, where Rājarāja-deva built a hall (śālā), with Chidambaram, as it records that "he enlarged the temples at Chidambaram and erected all kinds of towers, walls, mandapas, flights of steps, etc., and other matters."

From this and the next-following inscription we learn that Māmallapuram belonged to Āmūr-nādu,² a division of Āmūr-kottam, and that the name of the Shore Temple was Jalasayana. The purport of the inscription is a new division of the land of the town of Māmallapuram, which had been agreed upon by the citizens.

Hail! Prosperity! In the twenty-fifth year of (the reign of) the illustrious Ko-Rāja-rāja-Rājakesarivarman, alias the illustrious Rājārāja-deva, who,—while both the goddess of fortune and the great goddess of the earth, who had become his exclusive property, gave him pleasure,—was pleased to build a jewel (-like) hall (at) Kāṇḍalūr and conquered by his army, which was victorious in great battles, Veṅgai-nāḍu, Gaṅga-pāḍi, Nuḷamba-pāḍi, Taḍigai-pāḍi, Kuḍamalai-nāḍu, Kollam, Kaliṅgam, Īra-maṇḍalam, which is famed in the eight quarters, and Iraṭṭa-pāḍi, (the revenue from which amounts to) seven and a half lukshas; who,—while his beauty was increasing, and while he was resplendent (to such an extent) that he was always worthy to be worshipped,—deprived the Śeriyas of their splendour,—We, the middle-aged citizens of this town, unanimously made the following contract, while assembled in the tirunandavana to the south of (the temple of) Jalaśayana-deva at Māmallapuram, the chief town of the fifty (villages called after) Pudukkudaiyān Ekadhīra,¹ which form part of Āmār-koṭṭam.

(Line 21.) The wet land, white (?) land, garden land, dry land and all other² taxable (?) land of our town shall be divided into four lots of one hundred manais.³ One lot of (the land), which has been divided into four lots according to this contract,⁴ shall be a lot of twenty-five manais (which belongs) to the inhabitants of (the quarter of) Ka[du]mbi-dugu-śeri (alias) Śāmkara-pāḍi of this town. The remaining three lots shall be a lot of seventy-five manais. The manais (of) the land (included in) the contract of division into lots may be sold, mortgaged, or used for meritorious gifts; (but) the manais (of) the land shall be given away as defined by the contract of the division into lots. The previous definition shall be wholly cancelled. The fruit-trees, which stand in the various parts of the lands divided into lots, shall be enjoyed by the owner of the respective lot. Those (trees) which stand on the causeways between the rice-fields,⁵ shall belong to (the whole of) the hundred manais. Among those who are without land and are over the age of sixteen,—from those who are engaged in trade half a karaṇḍu of gold (poṅ), from those who work for hire one-eighth of a poṅ and for (each) turn as ploughmen (?) three-eighths of a poṅ shall be taken at the end of the year. From those who do not submit to this contract, further twenty-five karaṇḍus of gold shall be taken besides as a fine. We, the middle-aged citizens of the town, have unanimously established this contract.

(Line 58.) I, Tiruvelarai Muvāyirattu-erunāṅṅuvan, the karanam of this town, who worships the holy feet (of the god), wrote this contract according to the orders of the middle-aged citizens. This is my signature.

NO. 41. ON THE NORTH BASE OF THE SHORE TEMPLE.

The historical part of this inscription is identical with that of the preceding one; its date is the twenty-sixth year of Ko-Rājarāja-Rājakesarivarman, alias Rāja-Rāja-rāja-deva.

The inscription, which is unfortunately mutilated, mentions three temples, two of which were called after and consequently built by Pallava kings. The first of these two is Jalaśayana or Kshatriyasimha-Pallava-Īśvara-deva. That Jalaśayana was the name of the Shore Temple itself, appears clearly from the inscription No. 40. The second name for it, which is furnished by the present inscription, proves that the Shore Temple was a foundation of a Pallava king Kshatriyasimha. The second temple mentioned in the subjoined inscription is Rājasimha-Pallava-Īśvara-deva, which, as appears from one of the Kāñchīpuram inscriptions (No. 24, verse 10), was the original name of the Kailāsanātha Temple at Kāñchī. The name of the third temple, Pallikondaruliya-deva, (literally: “the god who is pleased to sleep”) may perhaps refer to the Śrīraṅganāyaka Temple at Pallikonda near Viriñchīpuram and would then explain the origin of the name Pallikonda.

² லெஃஃ is perhaps a corrupted form of லெஃஃ.

³ 1 manai is equal to 2,400 square feet.

⁴ லெஃஃ, Sanskrit स्पर्श, originally means “the touching of water (in a solemn declaration).”

⁵ லெஃஃ லெஃஃ seems to mean the same as லெஃஃ.

II.—INSCRIPTIONS IN THE NEIGHBOURHOOD OF VELŪR.

No. 43. ON A STONE AT ARAPPAKKAM NEAR VELŪR.

This and the next-following seven inscriptions record grants to Jvarakhaṇḍeśvara-svāmin of Velūr, i.e., to the Vellore Temple, which is nowadays called Jalakanṭheśvara.³ The name of the temple is spelt Jvarakhaṇḍeśvara in five inscriptions, Jvarakanṭheśvara in two others and Jvarakhaṇḍeśvara in one of them. The Sanskrit original of these various forms seems to have been Jvarakhaṇḍeśvara. Jvarakhaṇḍa, "the destroyer of fever," would be a synonym of Jvarahara, which is applied to Śiva in the name of one of the Kāñchīpuram temples.⁴

The inscriptions Nos. 43 to 46 are dated on the same day of the Akṣaya year, which was current after the expiration of the Śaka year 1488, and during the reign of Sadāśiva-deva-mahārāya. They record grants which were made to the Vellore Temple at the request of Śiṅga-Bommu-nāyaka of Velūr by the mahāmaṇḍaleśvara Tirumalaiya-deva-mahārāja, also called Tirumalai-rājayaṇ, (the younger brother of) Rāmarāja, with the consent of Sadāśiva-deva-mahārāya.

The historical results obtained from these four inscriptions are:—

1. That Sadāśiva-deva of Vijayanagara was still alive in 1566-67 A.D., i.e., ten years after the latest grant mentioned in my second paper on the Kārṇāṭa Dynasty.⁵

2. That, after the death of his elder brother Rāma, Tirumalai-rāja of Kārṇāṭa⁶ continued to acknowledge the king of Vijayanagara as his sovereign and submitted to the title of mahāmaṇḍaleśvara.

3. The Śiṅga-Bommu-nāyaka of the four inscriptions is perhaps identical with "Bommi Reddi or Naidu," to whom tradition assigns the foundation of the Vellore Temple.⁷

The Viḷāpaka grant of Veṅkaṭa I. of Kārṇāṭa dated Śaka 1523 mentions a certain Līṅga-bhūpāla, son of Velūri-Bomma-nṛpati and grandson of Vīrappa-nāyaka-

¹ The remaining ten lines of the inscription are mutilated at the beginning and much obliterated; the only two intelligible words are எழுத்த in line 26 and தரமணர் in line 28.

² This seems to be the meaning of the technical term திருவிடைமாரட்டம் which occurs also in the Poygai inscriptions.

³ North Arcot Manual, p. 189.

⁴ Sewell's Lists of Antiquities, Vol. I, p. 180.

⁵ Ind. Ant., Vol. XIII, p. 154.

⁷ North Arcot Manual, p. 188. In the Velai-mānagar-chariṭram (printed at Velūr in the Dād's year, i.e., A.D. 1876) he is called Bommaiya-Redḍiyār.

kshamāpa.¹ Velūri-Bomma is evidently the same as Śiṅga-Bommu-nāyaka of Velūr. From the title "prince", which the Viṭṭapāka grant attributes to Bomma and to his father and son, it follows that his family were petty chiefs under the kings of Karpāṭa, who were again nominally dependent on the kings of Vijayanagara.

The inscription No. 43, as mentioned in Sewell's Lists of Antiquities,² records the gift of the village of Arappakkam, where it is still found.

No. 47. ON A STONE AT ŚATTUVĀCHCHERI NEAR VELŪR.

This and the next-following two inscriptions are dated on the same day of the Yura year, which was current after the expiration of the Śaka year 1497, and during the reign of the mahāmandaleśvara Śrīraṅga-deva-mahārāyar. They record grants to the Vellore Temple, which were made at the request of Śiṅga-Bommu-nāyaka of Velūr by Krishṇappa-nāyaka Ayyan, with the consent of Śrīraṅga-deva-mahārāyar.

The Śrīraṅga-deva mentioned in Nos. 47 to 49 is Śrīraṅgarāya I. of Karnaṭa, of whom we have copper-plate grants of Śaka 1497 and 1506.³ An inscription of his tributary Krishṇappa-nāyaka dated Śaka 1500 has been translated by Mr. Rice.⁴ On Śiṅga-Bommu-nāyaka of Velūr, see the introduction of No. 43.

The inscription No. 47 records the gift of the village of Śattuvāchcheri, where it is still found.

No. 51. ON A ROCK ON THE TOP OF THE BAVĀJĪ HILL NEAR VELŪR.

This rock-inscription is written in bold archaic letters ; the lines are irregular and very close to each other. The inscription is dated in the twenty-sixth year of a king called Kappara-deva, and records that Velūr-pāḍi was given to the temple of Paṇṇapeśvara on the top of the hill of Śūdādupārai (Śūdādupārai-malai) by Nuḷamban Tribhuvana-dhīra, alias Muḍi-melay Śrī-Pallava-Murāri. Another Nuḷamban, the first part of whose name is indistinct on the stone, and who was probably a relation of Nuḷamban Tribhuvanadhīra, seems to have received Velūr-pāḍi together with the hill of Śūdādupārai from Vīra-Chōla. Velūr-pāḍi is probably the same as Velapāḍi, a suburb of Vellore, near which the Bavāji Hill is situated, and which is supposed to be the oldest part of the town.¹ Śūdādupārai-malai must have been the old name of the Bavāji Hill. It was situated in the north of Paṅgaḷa-nāḍu, a division of Paḍuvūr-koṭṭam. The Śiva temple on its top had been founded by, and was called after, a certain Paṇṇappai.

Besides the present Tamil inscription, five obliterated Telugu inscriptions are found on the top of the Bavāji Hill. Four of them mention a certain Nallaguruvayya ; one of these four inscriptions is dated in Śaka 1539, the Piṅgaḷa year.

Hail! In the twenty-sixth year of (the reign of) the illustrious Kannara-deva, I, Nuḷamban Tribhuvanadhira,¹ gave, with a libation of water, to (the temple of) Paṇṇapeśvara, which Paṇṇappai had caused to be erected on the hill of Śūdādupārai (Śūdādupārai-malai), which is situated in the north of Paṅgaḷa-nādu in Paḍuvūr-kottam, to be enjoyed as long as the moon and the sun endure, Velūr-pādi, (a village) of this nādu, (which) Nuḷamban had received from Vira-Śorar, together with the hill of Śūdādupārai, as a lasting gift.² I, Muḍi-melan,³ the illustrious Pallava-Murāri, (shall be) the servant of those who protect this charitable gift. No. 52. ON THE NORTH WALL OF THE PERUMĀḤ TEMPLE AT GĀṆGANŪR NEAR VELŪR.

This inscription is dated in the Pramāthin year, which was the 17th year of Sakalaloka-chakravartin Śambavarāya. This date is at variance with that of a Kāñchīpuram inscription, according to which the Vyaya year and the Śaka year 1268 corresponded to the 9th year of Sakalalokachakravartin Rājanārāyaṇa Śambavarāyar,⁵ and we must either assume that the 9th year is a misreading for the 24th year, or that the king mentioned at Kāñchīpuram and that of the present inscription are two different persons.

The inscription is a receipt for the cost of a kāṇi,⁶ which a certain Tiruveṇṇaḍam-udaiyāṇ seems to have sold⁷ to the villagers of Nilakanṭha-chaturvedi-maṅgalam and of Śrī-Mallinātha-chaturvedi-maṅgalam. The first of these two villages was also called Gāṅgeya-nallūr⁸ (the modern Gāṅganūr) and was situated in Karaivaṇi-Āndi-nādu.⁹

⁴ Kumari is the Tamil name of the sacred river near Cape Comorin and corresponds to the Sanskrit Kumārī, just as the High Tamil form Kāviri to the Sanskrit Kāvērī.

⁶ Equal to 24 manais. 1 manai is 2,400 square feet.

⁷ According to the incomplete line 6, the price of the kāṇi seems to have been 170 paṇas.

⁸ In two fragments at the Gaṅgeśvara Temple (Nos. 104 and 105. below), this name is applied to the second of the two villages. Probably both were subdivisions of Gāṅganūr.

No. 53. ON THE INNER WALL OF THE PERUMĀL TEMPLE AT ŚORAPURAM NEAR VELŪR.

This inscription is written in archaic characters; it is much obliterated, and incomplete at the end. The date is the twenty-third year of Ko-Vijaya-[Śimha]vikramavarman. The inscription records a grant to the Viṣṇu temple at Kāṭṭuttumbūr, which was probably another name of Śorapuram. The temple had been founded by the same person or persons who made the grant. The object granted was a piece of land at Kanakavalli, which, like Kāṭṭuttumbūr itself, belonged to Paṅgala-nādu, a division of Paduvūr-kottam.

¹ No. 55. ON THE WEST AND SOUTH WALLS OF THE VIRŪPĀKṢHEŚVARA TEMPLE
 AT VEPPAMBATTU NEAR VELŪR.

This inscription is dated in Śaka 132[8] expired and the Vyaya year current. It is a deed of sale of the revenue in gold and the revenue in rice of one half of the village of Veppambattu and of the village of Śiru-Kadambūr. The first-mentioned village belonged to Āndi-nādu, a division of Agara-paru. Both villages are stated to have been granted to the temple of *Virūpākṣa-deva*² at Veppambattu by Virapratāpa-Bukka-mahārāya (of Vijayanagara), and the temple itself is said to have been consecrated one year before the date of the inscription in the Pārthiva year, i.e., Śaka 1328 current. This date is puzzling, as it does not agree with other inscriptions, according to which Bukka's son Harihara II. was reigning in Śaka 1301 and 1321.³

The cost of one half of the first village and of the second village as well as the total are given in kuḷapramānas or kuḷas of gold (pon) and in panas. In line 2 of the south wall another gold standard, called korai, seems to be mentioned.⁴ The numerous signs for fractions, which occur throughout the inscription, are paleographically interesting.

² Read கணபதி.

³ Sanskrit Śravana.

⁴ The names of the donors seem to have been contained in the break of line 1a of the south wall.

⁵ The same is the old name of the Pampāpati Temple at Hampi (Vijayanagara).

III.—INSCRIPTIONS AT AND NEAR VIRIŒCHIPURAM.

No. 56. INSIDE THE FRONT GOPURA OF THE VIRIŒCHIPURAM TEMPLE, SECOND INSCRIPTION TO THE RIGHT.

This inscription is dated during the reign of Vīrapratāpa-Devarāya-mahārāja (of Vijayanagara) and in the Vīśvāvasu year, which was current after the expiration of the Śaka year 1347. It refers to a question of the sacred law (dharma) of the Brāhmaṇas, which was settled by the Brāhmaṇas of the kingdom of Paḍaividu, among whom Karṇāṭa, Tamiṟ, Telugu and Lāṭa Brāhmaṇas are mentioned. Their representatives signed an agreement

¹ With ஸகஜெழுண-பசடியும் ஸகஜெதுடியும் compare அனைத்து தெவ்வாய்க்காசாய்க்களும் in line 21 of the Poygai inscription No. 62.

² According to Winslow, the Māmagam, Māṇḍyam or Māmāṅgam (Sanskrit Mahāmagha or Mahāmāgha) is a bathing festival, celebrated every twelve years at Kumbhakonam. A festival called Mahānakham or Māmāṅgam used likewise to take place every twelfth year at Tirunāvāyi in Malabar; see Dr. Gundert's Malayāḷam Dictionary. The meaning of māmagam and idatturai in the present inscription is not apparent.

³ In this and other inscriptions, செட்டி seems to stand for செட்டியார், the lowest village servant, who is also called செட்டி.

⁴ The Uvachchas or Jonakas (i.e., Yavanas) are a low tribe of Muhammadans; see Winslow.

⁵ அருதலு means "raw rice" (Winslow). It is spelt அருதலு in line 48 of the south wall.

to the effect, that henceforth marriages among their families had only to be concluded by kanyādāna, i.e., that the father had to give his daughter to the bridegroom gratuitously. Both the father who accepted money, and the bridegroom who paid money for the bride, should be subject to punishment by the king and to excommunication from their caste. This practice was evidently adopted on the authority of the canonical works on sacred law, which condemn in strong terms the payment of money for the bride, and use the term dsura-vivāha for a marriage thus concluded. The four forms of marriage permitted to Brāhmanas are mere varieties of the marriage by kanyādāna.

To the end of the inscription a large number of signatures of Brāhmanas are attached. This part of the original is obliterated to such an extent that a satisfactory transcript cannot be given. In some cases, the places where the single Brāhmanas came from, are registered. As the identification of these localities might be useful for fixing the extent of the kingdom of Paḍaiviḍu, I subjoin those which may be read with certainty: Kaḷaṇṇijyam, Kamalapādam, Marudam, Maṅgalam, Araiyapādi, Kaṇṇamaṅgalam,¹ A[ga]t-terippaṭṭu, Enādapādi. Two other inscriptions mention Guḍiyātam² and Vallam³ as belonging to the kingdom of Paḍaiviḍu⁴ or Paḍaveḍu.⁵ The kingdom of Paḍaiviḍu (Paḍaiviṭṭu rājyam) was called after the town of Paḍaiviḍu, now Paḍaveḍu in the Polūr Tālluga of the North Arcot District.⁶ According to two Vijayanagara inscriptions, it formed a district of Tonḍai-maṇḍalam.⁷ The name Paḍaiviḍu means "an encampment" and seems to owe its origin to a temporary camp of some king, around which a city arose in course of time.⁸

Those who do not adopt kanyādāna, i.e., both those who give a girl away after having received gold, and those who conclude a marriage after having given gold, shall be liable to punishment by the king and shall be excluded from the community of Brāhmanas. These are the contents of the document which was drawn up.

The following are the signatures of the great men of all branches of sacred studies:—

No. 57. ON A STONE BUILT INTO THE FLOOR OF THE COURTYARD OF THE VIRIŇCHIPURAM TEMPLE.

This inscription records that in the Saunhya year, which was current after the expiration of Śaka 1471, the pavement of the outer courtyard of the Viriñchipuram Temple was laid by Bommunāyaka, who is evidently the same person as Śiṅga-Bommunāyaka or Bomma-nripati of Velūr.⁵ On this occasion, the other inscribed stones which are noticed in part III, must have found their way into the floor of the temple.

To this meritorious gift of a maṭṭa we gave, with a libation of water, for each day a *kuruni*¹ of rice (? prasāda) under mortgage,² and the connexion under mortgage with (a piece of) land in the agrahāra (of) Ūṇḍan-tāṅgal. The succession of sons (which consists of) the succession of pupils³ shall enjoy this maṭṭa as long as the moon and the sun endure. ✓ INSCRIPTIONS OF THE PERUMĀL TEMPLE AT POYGAI NEAR VIRIÑCHIPURAM.

These inscriptions (Nos. 59 to 64) are dated during the reign of a king called Tribhuvanachukravartin Rājārāja-deva. His twenty-second year corresponded to Śaka 1160 (Nos. 59 and 60), his twenty-fourth year to Śaka 1161 (Nos. 61 and 62) and his twenty-eighth year was current after the expiration of Śaka 1165 (No. 64). Accordingly, the first year of his reign corresponded to the Śaka year 1137-38.

The inscriptions record that the Keraḷa merchant⁴ Ādi-Rāma, an inhabitant of "the Hill-country,"⁵ i.e., of Malayālam, granted three villages, which he had bought from a certain Śambuvarāyan, to the temple, on the walls of which the inscriptions are found. The temple had two names: 1. Aruḷāḷa-Perumāl⁶ of Poygai, alias Rājendra-Chōḷa-

² It appears that the land mentioned below was mortgaged to the maṭṭa as a guarantee for the regular supply of the rice.

³ This clause seems to imply, that the maṭṭa was to be inherited by the śiṣyas of the donee, just as in other cases a grant to a Brahmana is successively enjoyed by his sons, grandsons and further descendants.

⁴ வணிகன், No. 63, line 2; செட்டியார், No. 64, line 21.

⁶ I.e., "the merciful Viṣṇu."

nallūr, and 2. Chitra-meri-Malai-maṇḍala-Viṇṇagara. The technical meaning of chitra-meri, "the beautiful plough-tail," is not clear. The remainder of the second name means "the Viṣṇu temple¹ of the Hill-country." Probably the donor Rāma himself had founded the temple and called it after his native country, viz., Malayālam.

The full name of Śambuvārāyaṇ, from whom Rāma bought the three villages which he granted to the Poygai Temple, was Śeṅgeṇi-Virāṣani-² Ammaiappan (or Ammaiappan) Aragiya-Śoraṇ, alias Edirili-³ Śora-Śambuvārāyaṇ.⁴ He seems to have been a vassal of Rājārāja-deva.

•No. 59. ON THE BASE OF THE NORTH WALL•

This inscription is dated in the twenty-second year of Tribhuvandachakravartin Rājārāja-deva and in the Śaka year 1160. It records the gift of the village of Kumāra-maṇḍalam, which was situated east of Korra-maṇḍalam, north-west of Aimbūṇḍi—which lay to the north of Poygai, alias Rājendra-Chōla-nallūr—and south of the Pālāru. Aimbūṇḍi is the old name of the modern village of Ammūṇḍi; it occurs also in an Ammūṇḍi inscription, which will be noticed in Part III (No. 131). The Pālāru is the well-known Pālār, the chief river of the North Arcot District.

This inscription is dated in the twenty-fourth year of Tribhuvanachakravartin Râjarâja-deva, and in the Śaka year 1161. It records the gift of the village of Puttâr.^{*}

² Paṭṭi means "a measure of land sufficient for a sheep-fold;" compare Kūttāḷi-paṭṭi in No. 42, above. Tukkaḷi is the same as Turkkai, i.e., Durgā, and Piḍāri is a form of Kāḷi.

IV.—INSCRIPTIONS AT TIRUMALAI NEAR POLŪR.

No. 66. ON A BURIED ROCK IN FRONT OF THE GOPURA AT THE BASE OF THE TIRUMALAI HILL.

This inscription is dated in the 21st year of Ko-Rāja-Rājakesarivarman, alias Rājarāja-deva, and again (in words) in the twenty-first year of Śoṇa Arumori, the lord of the river Poiri, i.e., of the Kāveri. The greater part of the historical portion of this inscription is identical with that of the two Māmallapuram inscriptions Nos. 40 and 41. Iratṭa-pāḍi is, however, omitted from the list of the countries conquered by the king.² Consequently Rājarāja-deva must have taken possession of Iratṭapāḍi between his twenty-first and his twenty-fifth years, the dates of Nos. 66 and 40 respectively.

The inscription records that a certain Guṇavīramāmuniyaṇ built a sluice, which he called after a Jaina teacher, whose name was Gaṇiśekhara-Maru-Poṇchūriyaṇ.³ The Tirumalai Rock is mentioned under the name Vaigai-malai, "the mountain of Vaigai." In Nos. 69 and 70, it is called Vaigai-Tirumalai, "the holy mountain of Vaigai." The name Vaigai seems to be connected with Vaigavūr, the name of the village at the base of the rock, which occurs in Nos. 67 and 68.

Hail ! Prosperity ! In the 21st year of (the reign of) the illustrious Ko-Rāja-Rājake-sarivarman,⁵ alias the illustrious Rājarāja-deva, who,—while both the goddess of fortune and the great goddess of the earth, who had become his exclusive property, gave him pleasure,—was pleased to build a jewel-like hall at Kāṇḍalūr and conquered by his army, which was victorious in great battles, Veṅgai-nāḍu, Gaṅga-pāḍi, Nuḷamba-pāḍi, Taḍigai-pāḍi, Kuḍamalai-nāḍu, Kollam, Kalingam and Īra-maṇḍalam, which is famed in the eight directions; who,—while his beauty was increasing, and while he was resplendent (to such an extent) that he was always worthy to be worshipped,—deprived the Śeriyas of their splendour,—and (in words) in the twenty-first year of Śorāṇ Arumōri, who possesses the river Ponni, whose waters are full of waves,—Guṇavīramāmunivāṇ, whose feet are worshipped by kings of destructive armies, the lord (? ko) of the cool Vaigai,—having given a sluice,⁶ which is worthy of being preserved in a good state (and which is called) by the name of Gaṇiśekhara-Maru-Poruhāriyāṇ, the pure master, who is skilled in the elegant arts and very clever,—saw the paddy grow for a long time on both sides of the high mountain of Vaigai (Vaigai-malai).⁷

No. 67. ON A PIECE OF ROCK ON THE TOP OF THE TIRUMALAI HILL.

This inscription is dated in the 12th year of Ko-Parakesarivarman, alias Uḍaiyār Rājendra-Chōla-deva. It opens with a long list of the countries which the king had conquered. Among these we find “the seven and a half lakshas (of revenue) of Irattā-pāḍi,” which Rājendra-Chōla took from Jayasimha. This conquest must have taken place between his 7th and 10th years, as another of Rājendra-Chōla’s inscriptions, which is dated in his 7th year,⁸ does not mention it, while it occurs in some unpublished Tanjore

² The two inscriptions No. 40 and No. 41 read தன்²தெழில்.

³ The inscriptions No. 40 and No. 41 read தொழுதக வினங்கும்.

⁴ y looks like y.

⁵ Instead of rāja, this inscription uses the Tamil form rāja, and consequently, instead of Ko-Rāja, which is found in the Māmallapuram inscriptions Nos. 40 and 41, the form Ko-r-rāja.

⁶ கலிஞ்ச must be a corruption of கலிஞ்சு which occurs in two other Tirumalai inscriptions (Nos. 69 and 77).

⁷ This seems to mean nothing but that he lived to an old age.

⁸ Madras Christian College Magazine, Vol. V, p. 41.

inscriptions of the 10th year.¹ The Jayasimha of the present inscription can be no other than the Western Chālukya king Jayasimha III. (about Śaka 940 to about 964), who, according to the Miraj grant, "warred against the Chola,"² and who, in another inscription, is called "the lion to the elephant Rājendra-Choḷa."³ Consequently, "the seven and a half lakshas of Irattapādi" have to be taken as a designation of the Chalukyan empire,⁴ which, in two Eastern Chalukya grants, is called "the Dekhan which yields seven and a half lakshas."⁵ As both Rājendra-Choḷa and Jayasimha III. boast of having conquered the other, it must be assumed that either the success was on both sides alternately, or that neither of the two obtained a lasting advantage. If, in order to identify Rājendra-Choḷa, the enemy of Jayasimha III., we turn to the table of the Eastern Chalukya Dynasty, which is found on page 32, above, we find that he cannot be that Rājendra-Choḷa, who reigned from Śaka 985 to 1034. Undoubtedly, the enemy of Jayasimha III. was that Rājendra-Choḷa of the Sūryavamśa, whose daughter Ammaṅga-devī was married to the Eastern Chalukya king Rājarāja I.⁶ (Śaka 944 to 985). He is further identical with that Rājendra-Choḷa, who was the son of Rājarāja of the Sūryavamśa, and whose younger sister Kūṇḍavā was married to the Eastern Chalukya king Vimalāditya⁷ (Śaka 937 (?) to 944). From certain Tanjore inscriptions it can be safely concluded, that he was the successor of his father Rājarāja-deva, whose time I have tried to fix in the introduction of No. 40, above. Rājendra-Choḷa's name occurs also on the seal of the large Leyden grant, and he is in all probability identical with the Madhurāntaka, i.e., "the destroyer of Madura," who issued that grant after the death of his father Rājarāja.⁸

Among the other countries, which Rājendra-Choḷa is said to have conquered, the two first in the list are Idaiturai-nāḍu, i.e., the country of Eḍatore, the head-quarters of a tālluqa in the Maisūr District, and Vaṇavāṣi, i.e., Banavāsi in the North Kanara District of the Bombay Presidency. With Koḷippākkai compare Kollipāke, which, according to Mr. Fleet,⁹ was one of the capitals of the Western Chālukya king Jayasimha III. Īraṁ or Īra-maṇḍalam is Ceylon. "The king of the South" (Tennavan) is the Pāṇḍya king. Of him the inscription says, that he had formerly given the crown of Sundara to the king of Ceylon, from whom Rājendra-Choḷa took that crown of Sundara. The name Sundara occurs in the traditional lists of Pāṇḍya kings.¹⁰ In the present inscription, the term "the crown of Sundara" seems to be used in the sense of "the crown of the Pāṇḍya king," and the composer of the historical part of the inscription seems to have known Sundara as a former famous member of the Pāṇḍya dynasty. But no conclusions as to the date of Sundara can be drawn from this mention of his name. The names of the Pāṇḍya king, who was conquered by the king of Ceylon, and of the king of Ceylon, who was conquered by Rājendra-Choḷa, are not mentioned. The inscription further records that Rājendra-Chōla vanquished the Keraḷa, i.e., the king of Malabar. With Śakkara-kōṭṭam, whose king Vikrama-Vīra was defeated by Rājendra-Chōla, compare Chakrakōṭa, whose lord was conquered by the Western Chālukya king Vikramāditya VI,¹ and Chakragoṭṭa, which was taken by the Hoysala king Viṣṇuvardhana.² Madura-maṇḍalam is the Pāṇḍya country, the capital of which was Madura. Oḍḍa-vishaya, the country of the Oḍḍas or Oḍras³ and the U-cha of Hiuen-Tsiang,⁴ is the modern Orissa. Kośalai-nāḍu is Southern Kosala, the Kiao-sa-lo of Hiuen-Tsiang,⁵ which, according to General Cunningham, corresponds to the upper valley of the Mahānadi and its tributaries.⁶ Takkanalāḍam and Uttiralāḍam are Northern and Southern Lāṭa (Gujarāt). The former was taken from a certain Raṇasūtra. Further, Rājendra-Chōla asserts that he conquered Vaṅgāḷa-deśa, i.e., Bengal, from a certain Govinda-chandra and extended his operations as far as the Gaṅgā. The remaining names of countries and kings I have been unable to identify.

The inscription mentions Tirumalai, i.e., "the holy mountain," and records a gift to the temple on its top, which was called Kundavai-Jinālaya, i.e., the Jina temple of Kundavai. According to an Eastern Chalukya grant⁷ (and an unpublished Chidambaram inscription⁸), Kūṇḍavā (or Kundavai) was the name of the daughter of Rājarāja of the Sāryavamśa, the younger sister of Rājendra-Chōla, and the queen of the Eastern Chalukya king Vimalāditya. The Tanjore inscriptions mention another, still earlier Kundavai, who was the daughter of the Chōla king Parāntaka II., the elder sister of the Chōla king Rājarāja-deva, and the queen of the Pallava king Vandyadeva.⁹ It seems very probable that it was one of these two queens, viz., either the younger sister or the aunt of the then reigning sovereign Rājendra-Chōla, who founded the temple on the top of the Tirumalai Rock and called it after herself. As Tirumalai is much closer to the Pallava country, than to the country of the Eastern Chalukyas, we shall scarcely be wrong in attributing the foundation of the temple rather to the king's aunt, who was a Pallava queen, than to his younger sister, who was married to an Eastern Chalukya king.

According to this and the next inscription, the village at the foot of the Tirumalai Hill bore the name of Vaigavūr and belonged to Mugai-nāḍu, a division of Paṅgāḷa-nāḍu, which formed part of Jayankonda-Chōla-maṇḍalam.

With the text of the subjoined inscription, I have compared four other inscriptions of Rājendra-Chōla, viz., 1. the inscription No. 68, which is likewise dated in the 12th year; 2. an undated inscription of the Kailāsanātha Temple at Uttaramallūr in the Chingleput District, an impression of which I owe to the kindness of Mr. R. Sewell; 3. an inscription of the Bṛihadīśvara Temple at Tanjore (15th year); and 4. an inscription of the Chidambaram Temple (24th year).

TRANSLATION.

Hail! Prosperity! In the 12th year of (the reign of) Ko-Parakesarivarman, alias Uḍaiyār Śrī-Rājendra-Chōla-deva, who,—during his long life (which resembled that of) pure people, (and in which) the great goddess of the earth, the goddess of victory in battle, and the beautiful and matchless goddess of fortune, who had become his great queens, gave him pleasure, while (his own) illustrious queen was prospering,—conquered with (his) great and warlike army Idaiturai-nāḍu; Vanavāśi, the roads (to which are bounded by) continuous walls of trees; Kollippākkai, whose walls are surrounded by tulli (trees); Maṇṇaikka-dakkam of unapproachable strength; the crown of the king of Īram, (which is situated in the midst of) the rough sea; the exceedingly beautiful crown of the queen of the king of that (country); the crown of Sundara, which the king of the South (i.e., the Pāṇḍya) had formerly given to that (king of) Īram; the pearl-necklace of Indra; the whole Īra-maṇḍalam on the transparent sea; the crown praised by many, a family-treasure, which the spear-throwing (king of) Keraḷa usually wore; the garland of the sun (?); many ancient islands, which are the old and great guards of the shore, against which conches are dashed; the crown of pure gold, worthy of Lakshmi, which Paraśurāma, who, out of anger, bound the kings twenty-one times in battle, having thought the fort of the island of Śāṇḍima (i.e., Sāntimat?) unapproachable, had deposited (there); the seven and a half lakshas of Iraṭṭa-pāḍi—through the conquest of which immeasurable fame arose—(of) Jayasimha, who, out of fear and full of revenge, turned his back at Muśaṅgi (?) and hid himself; the high mountains of Navanedikkula; Śakkara-kottam (belonging to) Vikrama-Vira; Madura-maṇḍalam with the fort of Mudira-paḍa (?); Nāmaṇaikkonaṁ, which is surrounded by dense groves; Pañchappalli (belonging to) Veñjilai-Vira¹; the good Māṣuṇi-deśa, where leaves and fruits are green; the large heap of family-treasures, together with many (other) treasures, (which he carried away) after having seized Dhīratara of the old race of the moon, together with his family, in a fight which took place in the hall (at) Āḍinagar, (a city) which is famous for its unceasing abundance; Odda-vishaya, whose copious waters are difficult to approach; the good Kośalai-nāḍu, where Brāhmaṇas assemble; Daṇḍabutti (i.e., Daṇḍa-bhukti), in whose gardens bees abound, (and which he acquired) after having destroyed Dharmapālu in a hot battle; Takkaṇa-lāḍam (i.e., Dakṣiṇa-Lāṭa), whose fame reaches (all) directions, (and which he occupied) after having forcibly attacked Raṇaśūra; Vaṅgāla-deśa, where the rain does not last (long), and from which Govindaachandra, having lost his fortune, fled; elephants of rare strength, (which he took away) after having been pleased to frighten in a hot battle Maḥipālu of Śaṅgu-kottam (?), which touches the sea; the treasure of women (?); Uttira-lāḍam (i.e., Uttara-Lāṭa) on the great sea of pearls; and the Gaṅgā, whose waters sprinkle tirthas on the burning sand:—

Chāmuṇḍappai, the wife of the merchant Nannappayau, who lives at Perumbānappāḍi, (alias) Karaivari-malliyār, gave a tirunandā lamp to the temple (called) Sri-Kundavai-Jinālaya (on) the holy mountain (Tirumalai) (at) the *paḷlickchandam*² of Vaigavār in Mugai-nāḍu, a division in the middle of Paṅgala-nāḍu, (which forms part) of Jayaṅkonda-Śōra-maṇḍalam.

Postscript.

Twenty kāśus were given for one (lamp) and ten kāśus for the sacred food.

¹ Literally, "the hero of the cruel bow." Compare செங்குருகுடி, an epithet of Virābhadrā as bearing a cruel bow (Winslow).

² This term probably means "a village belonging to a temple," "a holy village;" see p. 91, note 5.

No. 68. ON A ROCK BURIED UNDERNEATH THE STEPS BETWEEN THE GOPURA AND THE PAINTED CAVE.

Like the preceding inscription, this one is dated in the 12th year of Ko-Parakesari-varman, alias Udaiyār Rājendra-Chōla-deva. It records the gift of a lamp to the god of the Tirumalai Temple, who seems to have been called Ārambhanandin, and allots money for the maintenance of this lamp and of another lamp, which had been given by "Sinnavai, the queen of the Pallava king." Like Kundavai, the queen of the Pallava king Vandyadeva,¹ this was probably a Chōla princess, who was married to a Pallava king.

No. 72. ON THE SOUTH WALL OF A MAṆḌAPA AT THE BASE OF THE TIRUMALAI ROCK.

This inscription is dated in the Ānanda year, which was current after the expiration of the Śaka year 1296, and during the reign of Ommaṇa-udaiyar, the son of Kambāna-udaiyar and grandson of Vira-Kambāna-udaiyar.³ Like No. 52, above, the inscription is a receipt for the cost of some land, which a certain Viṣṇu-Kambuḷi-nāyaka seems to have bought from the villagers of Śambukula-Perumāl-agaram, alias Rāja-gambhira-chaturvedi-maṅgalam.⁴ This village belonged to Murugamaṅgala-paru⁵ in Maṇḍaikula-nādu, a division of Palakunra-koṭṭam,⁶ which formed part of Jayankonda-Chola-maṇḍalam. The four last lines, which consist of signatures, have not been transcribed, as they are somewhat obliterated. The following are the readable names of villages, which occur at the beginnings of the different signatures:⁷—Kumāṇḍār, Murugappādi, Periya-Kāṭṭeri, Vaṅgipp[u]ram.

¹ With பொன்னெயில்நாயர், "the lord of the golden fortress," compare பொன்னெயிற்கோன், which, according to Winslow, is the same as அருகன் (Arhat).

² This seems to have been a female relative of the donors. The title naṅgai, 'lady,' is also borne by a female person in No. 68, line 24.

³ See the introduction of No. 86, below.

⁴ These two names of the village are evidently derived from Rājagambhira-Śambuvārāyaṇ and his śiruda Śambukula-Perumāl; see No. 74.

⁵ The same occurs in No. 81.

⁶ This is also found in No. 74.

⁷ The last signature is: இயங்கரைத்து ஊர்க்கணக்கு ஐயங்கொண்ட[ட]சொழப்பிரமாராயன் எழுத்தி; "the signature of Jayankonda-Śoṇa-Brahmā-rāyaṇ, the village-accountant of this place."

This inscription is dated in the twentieth year of Tribhuvanachakravartin Râjarâja-deva, which, according to the Poygai inscriptions (Nos. 59 to 64), would correspond to the Śaka year 1157-58. The donor was Râjagambhîra-Śambuvarâyan, who bore the birudas Attimallan² and Śambukula-Perumâl (i.e., the Perumâl of the Śambu race).³ The object granted seems to have been the village of Râjagambhîra-nallûr, which had evidently received its name from that of the donor.⁴

TRANSLATION.

Hail! From the twentieth year of the illustrious Tribhuvanachakravartin, the illustrious Râjarâja-deva, forward,—I, Attimallan Śambukula-Perumâl, alias Râjagambhîra-Śambuvarâyan, gave to Ândângaḷ Paṅgalarâyar, the son of Ilâla-Perumâl of Virupâkkam in Tamanûr-nâdu, (a division) of Jayaṅkonda-Śora-maṇḍalam, (the village of), alias Râjagambhîra-nallûr, in the middle of Paṅgala-nâdu, (a division) of Palakuṇra-kottam, as his property, (including) the wells underground, the trees overground and the boundaries in the four directions, with the right to sell, mortgage or exchange it.

¹ A Jaina teacher of this name, who was a contemporary of a king Kṛishṇarâja, is mentioned in an unpublished inscription from Śravaṇa-Belagoḷa.

² This is probably the Sanskrit Hastimalla.

³ A Śambuvarâyan with different birudas occurs in the Poygai inscriptions (Nos. 59 to 61).

⁴ Compare Śambukula-Perumâl-agaram, alias Râjagambhîra-chaturvedi-maṅgalam in No. 72.

⁵ Read ஆண்டான்கள்.

No. 75. ON THE OUTER WALL OF THE DOORWAY, WHICH LEADS TO THE PAINTED CAVE
AT TIRUMALAI.

This inscription is much obliterated. It consists of a passage in Tamil prose, a Sanskrit verse in the Śāṛṅgīla metre, and another Tamil prose passage, and records some gifts made by Vyāmukta-śravanōjjvala or (in Tamil) Viḍu-kādaragiya-Perumāḷ, alias Atigaimān[i]¹ of the Chera race. The name of the capital of this prince seems to have been Takatā. He was the son of some Rājarāja and a descendant of a certain Yavanikā, king of Keraḷa, or (in Tamil) Eṇiṇi, king of Vañji.² The king repaired the images of a yaksha and a yakshi, which had been made by Yavanikā, placed them on the Tirumalai Hill, presented a gong and constructed a channel. The Tirumalai Hill is here called Arhasugiri (the excellent mountain of the Arha[t]) and (in Tamil) Enguṇavirai-Tirumalai (the holy mountain of the Arhat). According to the Sanskrit portion of the inscription, it belonged to the Tundira-maṇḍala; this seems to be a Sanskritised form of the well-known Tondai-maṇḍalam.³

TRANSLATION.

Hail! Prosperity! Atigaimān[i] of the Śera race placed on (the hill the images of) a yaksha and a yakshi,—meritorious gifts (formerly) made by Eṇiṇi,—presented a gong and gave a channel, which he had constructed (for feeding) the Kadapperi (tank).

(The images of) the two lords of the yakshas, which were made on the excellent mountain of the Arha[t]⁹ in the country (maṇḍala) called Tundīra by the illustrious and pious king of Keraḷa, called Yavanikā, were afterwards rescued from ruin by Vyāmukta-śravanōjjvala, the lord of Taka[t]ā and son of the illustrious Rājarāja, an eminent prince, who was the ornament of his (Yavanikā's) race.

¹ This might be meant for Ati-igai-mānī, "he whose pride consists in excessive liberality."

² Vañji or Karuvār was the old capital of the Chera kingdom. Ptolemy calls it Károupa βασιλειον Κηροβόρον, "Karūr, the capital of the prince of Keraḷa;" see Dr. Caldwell's Comparative Grammar, 2nd edition, page 96 of the Introduction; Dr. Burnell's South-Indian Palaeography, 2nd edition, page 33, note 2; and Dr. Bühler in the Zeitschrift d. Deutsch. Morg. Ges. Vol. XXXVII, p. 99.

³ In a Western Chalukya inscription, Tondai-maṇḍalam is called Tupḍāka-vishaya; see the fac-simile in Ind. Ant. Vol. VIII, p. 26, plate liii, line 1. Tondai-maṇḍalam itself occurs in No. 81.

⁴ Read ஓபெ for ஓய.

⁵ Arha is probably a vulgar form for Arhat.

Vidu-kādaragiya-Perumāl repaired the broken remains (of the images) of a yaksha and a yakshi, which had been given by Erini, the lord of the race of the kings of Vanji, and placed them (on) this holy mountain (Tirumalai) of the god who possesses the eight qualities.¹

¹ En-guṇa is an attribute of an Arhat. The eight qualities are, according to the Jaina books: infinite wisdom, omniscience, omnipotence, boundless happiness, being nameless, without descent, without age and unobstructed. V.—INSCRIPTIONS AT PAḌAVEḌU.

✓ No. 78. ON THE EAST AND NORTH BASES OF THE AMMAIAPPEŚVARA TEMPLE.

This inscription is dated in the year, which was current after the expiration of the Śaka year 1180, and records a grant, which Rājagambhīra-Śambuvarāyan made to the temple of Ammaiappeśvara. The name of the object of the grant must be contained in the final portion of the first line, which is buried underground. The donor is evidently identical with that Rājagambhīra-Śambuvarāyan, who is mentioned in a Tirumalai inscription (No. 74), which seems to be dated in Śaka 1157-58. It may be further conjectured, that the Ammaiappeśvara Temple at Paḍaveḍu had received its name from Ammaiappan or Ammaiappan,² one of the birudas of another Śambuvarāyan, who was a contemporary and probably a relation of Rājagambhīra-Śambuvarāyan.

³ The meaning of முன்னடி, which occurs also in line 15 of the Poygai inscription No. 64, is not apparent.

⁵ Of the terms left untranslated, இனவரி occurs also in the Poygai inscriptions Nos. 61 and 62.

⁶ See page 82, note 3. The தலைவாரி or watchman and the வெட்டியவன் or scavenger are mentioned as members of the ancient village-establishment in the Tanjore Manual, p. 415. They used to get their share of the produce, as well as the accountant, the washerman and the other village-officers; ibid. pp. 421 f. In the Kanarese country, the corresponding officers were the talāri and the tōfi, who likewise received their share of the crops; see Dr. Buchanan's Journey from Madras through the countries of Mysore, Canara, and Malabar, Vol. I, pp. 166 ff. No. 80. ON THE SOUTH WALL OF THE AMMAIAPPEŚVARA TEMPLE.

This inscription is dated during the reign of Vīra-Devarāya-mahārāyar (of Vijayanagara) and in the Ānanda year (i.e., Śaka 1357). It records the gift of a village to the Ammaiappa Temple. The middle portion is defaced by three cracks.

² As Dr. Oppert has shown in the Madras Journal of Literature and Science for the year 1881, p. 276, the erroneous forms Pramodita and Pramdicha for the two cyclic years Pramoda and Pramdina owe their origin to some old versus memoriales, in two of which we find Pramoda 'tha and Pramdli cha; in course of time the two particles atha and cha were mistaken for portions of the names themselves. In Tamil the two wrong forms have entirely superseded the correct ones.

VI.—INSCRIPTIONS OF THE KAILĀSANĀTHA TEMPLE AT KĀNCHĪPURAM.

No. 82. ON A PILLAR IN THE MAṆḌAPA IN FRONT OF THE RĀJASIMHAVARMEŚVARA SHRINE.

The following inscription is dated in the fifteenth year of Madirai-koṇḍa Ko-Parakesarivarman. The same names are borne by the Chōla king Parāntaka I., alias Vīranārāyaṇa, in a copper-plate grant published by Mr. Foulkes.⁶ As Madirai seems to stand for Madurai (Madura), the capital of the Pāṇḍyas,—Madirai-koṇḍa, “who took Madura,” might also be considered as the Tamil equivalent of Madhurāntaka, “the destroyer of Madura.” This was the name of a grandson of Parāntaka I. according to the large Leyden grant.⁷ Another Madhurāntaka, who was the son of Rājārāja, issued the Sanskrit portion of the Leyden grant after his father's death.⁸ He is probably identical

² Sanskrit Uttarāḥṣṭhā.

³ முவரசயர் is the same as முவரசர், “the three kings,” i.e., the Chera, the Chōla, and the Pāṇḍya. In Kanarese inscriptions it occurs in the form Māru-rāyaru; see Journal of the Bombay Branch Royal Asiatic Society, Vol. XII, p. 376, note 30, and Indian Antiquary, Vol. XIII, p. 131, verse 45.

⁴ See page 102, note 5.

⁵ This hill was probably called after Rājagambhira-Śambuvārāyan; see the introductions of Nos. 74 and 78.

Salem Manual, Vol. II, pp. 369 ff.

⁶ Dr. Burgess' Archaeological Survey of Southern India, Vol. IV, pp. 204 ff. Madhurāntaka, and not Mathurāntaka, is the reading in lines 48, 62 and 87 of the original, an impression of which I owe to Dr. Burgess.

with Rājendra-Chōla-deva, who, according to Nos. 67 and 68, conquered the Madura-maṇḍalam. The three kings just mentioned are Nos. 3, 9 and 11 of the subjoined table, which I insert for ready reference. It contains the pedigree of the Chōlas according to the large Leyden grant. The first three kings of the table are also named in Mr. Foulkes' above-mentioned grant.¹ On inscriptions of the two last kings and on other conquests of theirs, see the introductions of Nos. 40 and 67, above.

On Rājendra-deva, the probable successor of (11) Rājendra-Chōla, see the remarks on No. 127, below. In the introduction of No. 67, I might have added that the Miraj

² As discovered by my assistant, V. Venkayya, M.A., Vyāghrāgrahāra is the Sanskrit equivalent of Puliyār, "the tiger-village," one of the names of Chidambaram. The report of the Leyden grant is confirmed by the Kōṅgu Chronicle, which says twice, that Parāntaka I. "built the Kanaka-sabhā or Golden Hall" at Chidambaram; Salem Manual, Vol. I, p. 40.

³ Compare "the Vaidondai race" and "Vaidumba-ṛaya" in the Rev. Taylor's translation of the Kōṅgu Chronicle, Madras Journal, Vol. XIV, Part I, pp. 15 and 18, and V[ai]dumba in No. 144, below.

⁴ See note 1.

⁵ This seems to have been the Rāshtrakūṭa king Kṛishṇa IV., whose grants range between Śaka 868 and 879. The Amoghavarsha, who is mentioned in Mr. Foulkes' grant (verse 16) is probably identical with the Rāshtrakūṭa king Śarva Amoghavarsha I. (Śaka 737 to at least 800).

⁶ In Sewell's Lists of Antiquities, Vol. I, p. 265, a village called Gaṇḍarādityam in the Trichinopoly District is mentioned.

⁷ Mr. Sewell, u.s., pp. 168 and 207, mentions two villages of this name in the North and South Arcot Districts.

grant of the Western Chālukya king Jayasimha III.¹ calls (Rājendra-)Chōla Pañcha-Dramilādhipati (read thus instead of yam Chāmdramilādhipati"), "the lord of the five Draviḍa (nations)."² The village, which was the object of the Miraj grant, belonged to "the Eḍatore (read thus instead of Padatore) Two-thousand." Accordingly, the country of Eḍatore in Maisūr must have been in the possession of Jayasimha III. in Śaka 946 (expired). The same country of Eḍatore (Idaiturai-nādu) occupies the first place in the list of the conquests of Rājendra-Chōla-deva.*

The subjoined inscription records that a certain Chāṇḍaparākrama-vira gave to the god of "the holy stone-temple" (i.e., the Rājasimhavarmaśvara Temple *) at Kaechhippeḍu (i.e., Kāñchipuram) 270 sheep, from the milk of which three lamps had to be supplied with ghee. A certain Chāṇḍaparākrama-mayrāḍi, who seems to be distinct from the donor, pledged himself, that he and his descendants would supply the ghee daily or otherwise incur certain fixed fines.

It is worthy of note, that in this very archaic inscription the pulli or the dot above consonants, which corresponds to the Nāgari virāma, occurs five times.⁶ It is represented by a short vertical stroke. The same sign is found in the Tamil portion of the Kūram plates of the Pallava king Parameśvaravarman I. (No. 151, below.)

Hail! Prosperity! In the fifteenth year of (the reign of) Madirai-konda Ko-Parakesarivarman, (the following) written agreement (was made) with Mahādeva of the large holy stone-temple at Kachhippedu by me, Chandaparākrama-maṇṛādi. Chandaparākrama-vīra gave two hundred and seventy undying and unending¹ big sheep to the god of the holy stone-temple, (in order to keep) three nonāḍḍ lamps² (burning) as long as the moon and the sun exist. From (the milk of) these sheep,—myself, my sons and my further descendants shall take three urakkus of ghee daily³ and shall, for ever, pour them out into the hands of those, who are in charge of the nāṇḍai (measure) within (the temple), with a nāṇḍi (measure) which is equal to four urakkus.⁴ If I do not pour them out, I shall be liable to a fine of four and a quarter (urakkus) daily in court. Although I am fined thus, I shall pour out this ghee without resistance. If I resist, I solemnly agree to pay one *maṇḍādi*⁵ of gold daily to the king who is then ruling. This meritorious gift [shall last as long as] the moon and the sun.

No. 83. ON A PILLAR IN THE MAṆḌAPA IN FRONT OF THE RĀJASIMHAYARMEŚVARA SHRINE.

Like the inscription No. 82, this one is dated in the fifteenth year of Madirai-konda Ko-Parakesarivarman, and records the gift of 180 sheep from the same Chandaparākrama-vīra to "the holy stone-temple." A certain Kālakopa-vīra-maṇṛādi pledged himself to supply two lamps with ghee made from the milk of these sheep.

A graphical peculiarity of this archaic inscription has to be noted. In two cases the sign of ḍ in nāḍ and rāḍ is not, as in modern Tamil, attached to the bottom of the letter, but is added after it and turned upwards.⁶

No. 84. ON THE FLOOR OF THE MAHAMAṆḌAPA OF THE RĀJASIMHAVARMEŚVARA SHRINE.

This inscription is dated in the 3rd year of Ko-Rājakesarivarman. By it, the villagers of Meṇalūr pledged themselves, to furnish oil for a lamp from the interest of a sum of money, which they had received from the temple-treasury. The inscription mentions Kāñchipuram. Tirukkarralippuram, "the town of the holy stone-temple," which occurs in lines 1 f., is evidently derived from Tirukkarrali, one of the names of the Rājasimhavar-meśvara Temple,⁴ and is probably a synonym of Kāñchipuram. The town belonged to Kāliyūr-koṭṭam, a district, which is also mentioned in Nos. 85, 147 and 148.

¹ நி is entered instead of another akṣara, which seems to have been en.

³ 1 kuṇṇi weighs about 2 grains.

⁴ 1 uri is equal to $\frac{1}{4}$ paḍi or nāri.

In the 3rd year of Ko-Rājakesarivarman, we, the villagers of Megalūr, (a quarter) of Tirukkarralippuram in Ogara-nādu (?), (a division) of Kāliyūr-kottam, (made the following) written agreement. We have received from Ādidāsa Chandeśvara³ (in) the holy stone-temple at Kāñchipuram eighteen karāñjus, three mañjādis and one *kuṇṇi*⁴ of gold. From the interest⁵ of these eighteen karāñjus, three mañjādis and one kuṇṇi of gold, we shall pour out daily,⁶ as long as the moon and the sun exist, (for) one nandā lamp, one urakku of oil with an urakku (measure), which is equal to a quarter (according to the standard) of the authorities in the village. As the villagers told (me), I, Alappaḍi, the head-man⁷ of this village, wrote (this document). This is my signature.

No. 85. ON THE BASE OF THE MAṆḌAPA IN FRONT OF THE RĀJASIMHAVARMEŚVARA SHRINE.

The middle part of this inscription is covered by the wall of the modern mahāmaṇḍapa, which has been erected between the Rājasimhavar-meśvara Shrine and that maṇḍapa, on the base of which the inscription is engraved. It is dated in the fourth year of Ko-Parakesarivarman and records, that the villagers of Kalladuppūr⁸ pledged themselves, to furnish a fixed yearly supply of paddy from the interest of a sum of money, which they had received from the shrine of Ādidāsa Chandeśvara at Tiruvottūr.

No. 86. ON A PILLAR IN THE MAṆḌAPA IN FRONT OF THE RĀJASĪMHAVARMEŚVARA SHRINE.

This inscription is dated in the Viśvadvasu year, which was current after the expiration of the Śaka year 1286,⁴ and during the reign of Kambāṇa-udaiyar. The inscription No. 87 belongs to the same year, as No. 86, and to the reign of Kambāṇa-udaiyar, the son of Vīra. The date of No. 88 is the Kilaka year and the reign of Vīra-Kambāṇa-udaiyar. As it mentions Koppaṇaṅgal, an official, whose name occurs also in Nos. 86 and 87, and as the signatures at its end are identical with some signatures at the end of No. 87, the date of the inscription No. 88 cannot have been very distant from that of Nos. 86 and 87, and the Kilaka year must correspond to Śaka 1291. The inscription No. 87, which reads Vīra-kumāra-Kambāṇa-udaiyar, i.e., Kambāṇa-udaiyar, the son of Vīra, suggests that Vīra-Kambāṇa-udaiyar in No. 88 is an abbreviation for Kambāṇa-udaiyar, (the son of) Vīra. The prince, who is mentioned in the three inscriptions Nos. 86, 87 and 88, may be further identified with Kambāṇa-udaiyar, the son of Vīra-Kambāṇa-udaiyar and father of that Ommaṇa-udaiyar, who according to the Tirumalai inscription No. 72, above, was reigning in the Ananda year, which was current after the expiration of the Śaka year 1296. The subjoined table shows the results of the above remarks.

² Virappedu is probably meant for Vīra-pēḍu, "the town of Vīra," or "the town of heroes." Compare the names Vaṅgipp[ū]ram in No. 72, Tirukkayalippuram in No. 84, and Tiruvirāpuram in No. 146, where பறம் stands for புரம், "a town."

³ The same measure is mentioned in line 4 of the fragment No. 146.

⁴ This is probably a mistake for 1287, as the Viśvadvasu year corresponds to the current Śaka year 1288.

Inscription No. 72.

Vira-Kambapa-udaiyar.

Kambapa-udaiyar.

Inscriptions Nos. 86, 87 and 88.

Kambapa-udaiyar or Kambanna-udaiyar
(Saka 1288 and 1291).

The three inscriptions Nos. 86, 87 and 88 contain orders, which were issued by a certain Koppaṇaṅga¹, Koppaṇṇaṅga² or Koppaṇṇu³ to the authorities of the temple. Koppaṇaṅga was probably the executive officer of Kambapa-udaiyar at Kāñchipuram. The Kailāsanātha Temple is designated by three different names, viz., Rājasimhavarmaśvara,⁴ Edudattu-āyiram-udaiya-nāyaṇār and Tirukkarraḷi-Mahādeva.⁵ The last-mentioned term means "the holy stone-temple (of) Śiva." The meaning of the second is not apparent. The first name, Rājasimhavarmaśvara, shows that the Pallava king Rājasimha, the founder of the temple, was not yet forgotten at the times of Kambapa-udaiyar, and that his full name was Rājasimhavarman.⁶

From the inscription No. 86, we learn that, at the time of Kulottuṅga-Chōḷa-deva, the Rājasimhavarmaśvara Temple at Kāñchipuram had been closed, its landed property sold, and its compound and environs transferred to the temple of Anaiyapadaṅḡvudaiya-nāyaṇār.⁷ Koppaṇaṅga ordered, that the temple should be reopened and that its property should be restored.

Hail! From the month of Ādi of the Viśvāvasu year, which was current after the Śaka year one thousand two hundred and eighty-six (had passed), while the illustrious mahā-maṇḍaleśvara, the conqueror of hostile kings, the destroyer of those kings who break their word, the lord of the eastern and western oceans, the illustrious Kambana-udaiyar, was pleased to rule the earth,—the illustrious Koppanaṅgal (addresses the following) order to the authorities of the temple of Rājasimhavarmaśvaram-udaiyār, alias Edūdattu-āyiram-udaiya-nāyanār, at Kāñchipuram. As it is opposed to the sacred law, that formerly, at the time of Kulottunga-Śora-deva, the shrine of Edūdattu-āyiram-udaiya-nāyanār was closed, that the temple-land (tirundattu kani) of the lord was sold, and that the temple-compound (tiruviruppu) and the environs of the temple (tirumadai-viḷḷagam)² were given to Anaiyapadaṅgāvuḍaiya-nāyanār,—the closing of the shrine of this lord shall cease; the worship and the divine service shall be carried on from the month of Ādi forward; the whole village of Muruṅgai in Paumā-nāḍu, (a division) of Maṇavirkottam³ on the southern frontier (?), and the land included in the boundaries in the four directions shall belong (to the temple) as a sarvamānya (and) free from taxes, as long as the moon and the sun exist. The northern boundary of the temple-compound of this lord is to the south of a pit on the north, where pandanus-trees grow; the southern boundary is to the north of a paddy field; the western boundary is to the east of a hillock, which forms the limit (?); and the eastern boundary is to the west of a channel near the road (?). The whole saṁnidhi street of this lord shall belong (to the temple) as a sarvamānya, as long as the moon and the sun exist. According to this edict on a palm-leaf, there shall be engraved on stone the amount of what had been cancelled and given away according to the writing on stone, which was formerly engraved on the day, on which (the temple) was closed. (All this) shall be managed and attended to without fail. This is the signature of Koppanaṅgal.

No. 87, ON A PILLAR IN THE MAṆḌAPA IN FRONT OF THE RĀJASIMHAVARMEŚVARA SHRINE.

This inscription is dated in the same year and month, as No. 86, and during the reign of Kambana-udaiyar, the son of Vira. It records that, with the sanction of Koppanaṅgal,⁴ the authorities of the Rājasimhavarmaśvara Temple at Kāñchipuram sold some houses in the northern row of the saṁnidhi street to certain Mudalis at the price of 150 paṇas.

No. 88. ON A PILLAR IN THE MAṆḌAPA IN FRONT OF THE RĀJASIMHAVARMEŚVARA SHRINE.

This inscription is dated in the Kilaka year (i.e., Śaka 1291) and during the reign of Kambāṇa-udaiyar, (the son of) Vīra.² It records that, with the sanction of Koppaṇṇaṅga,³ the temple authorities gave a maṭha near the temple and some land to a certain Gāṅgayar of Tirumudukuṇṇam. According to lines 9 to 14, Kāñchipuram belonged to Eyirkottam in Jayāṅkoṇḍa-Chola-maṇḍalam. The district of Eyirkottam⁴ was probably called after Eyil, i.e., "the fort," a village in the Tiṇḍivanam Tālluqa of the South Arcot District.⁵ Tirumudukuṇṇam, i.e., "the holy ancient mountain," is perhaps meant for its Sanskrit equivalent Vṛiddhāchalam, the head-quarters of a Tālluqa in the South Arcot District.⁶

Hail! On the day of (the nakshatra) Ter,¹ which corresponds to Tuesday, the seventh lunar day of the latter half of the month of Mukara of the Kilaka year, which was current (during the reign) of Kambanna-udaiyar, (the son of) the illustrious Vira,—we, all the followers of the blessed Rudra, (alias) the blessed Maheśvara, and the authorities of the temple of the lord Tirukkarrāḷi-Mahādeva, alias Eḍudatt-āyiram-udaiya-nāyanār² at Kāñchipuram, a town of Eyirkottam in Jayankonda-Śora-maṇḍalam, gave, as ordered by Koppanaṅgal, to Perumān, alias Gāṅgayar, who is worshipped by (i.e., who is the teacher of?) Śīrāmār-udaiyān, (one) of the Māheśvaras at Tirumudukupram, (for) reciting the Veda in the presence of the god, one maṭha in the western street³ and some hereditary land. (This gift) shall be managed accordingly, as long as the moon and the sun exist. We, the followers of the blessed Rudra, (alias) the blessed Maheśvara, and the authorities of the temple:—The signature of Kambāṇḍāy. This is the signature of Śīyar (Siṃha), who made the closing (of the temple) cease. This is the signature of Vira-Śamba-Brahmā-rāyar. The signature of Viṇṇa-bhaṭṭa. The signature of Irāguttarāyakkāḷaṇ.

² This corresponds to the Sanskrit Rohini.

³ On these two names of the Rājasinhavarmēśvara Temple, see page 118, above.

⁴ The western samīdhi street of the Rājasinhavarmēśvara Temple seems to be meant; compare சந்தித்-தெரு in No. 86, line 54, and in No. 87, line 22.

No. 89. INSIDE THE GEṢḠONḌA MAṆḌAPA¹ AT MĀMALLAPURAM, ON THE LEFT WALL.

This inscription is engraved on two stones, which fit to each other. It is dated "in the fourteenth year of Ko-Rājakesarivarman, alias Tribhuvanachakravartin Śrī-Kulottuṅga-Śora-deva, who was pleased to sit on the throne of heroes, (which consisted of) pure gold." The fourth line mentions "Āmūr-nāḍu, (a division) of Āmūr-kottam² in Jayankonḍa-Śora-maṇḍalam." The seventh line contains the name of the god Ādidāsa Chaṇḍeśvara.³

No. 90. ON THE FRONT WALL OF THE VARĀHASVĀMIN TEMPLE⁴ AT MĀMALLAPURAM.

This inscription is written on two stones, which fit to each other. It seems to have been dated in the fifth year of the reign of [Rāja]nārāyaṇa Śambuvārāyar⁵ and to have recorded a grant to the temple of Perumāl (i.e., Viṣṇu) and of Nilamaṅgai-nāchechiyār (i.e., the goddess of the earth) at Māmal[lapuram].

Nos. 91 to 94. INSCRIPTIONS AT THE VELŪR TEMPLE.

The four subjoined inscriptions are written in modern Tamil characters and record "the perpetual devotion"⁶ of a certain Chandra-pillai of Kāṭṭeri.

² See page 64, above. Āmūr-kottam is also mentioned in a copper-plate grant of Śaka 1558 (expired); Ind. Ant. Vol. XIII, p. 132, plate iv b, line 1. Āmūr-nāḍu and Āmūr-kottam are probably named after Āmūr or Āmbūr, a town in the Velūr Taluqa of the North Arcot District and a station on the Madras Railway; see Sewell's Lists, Vol. I, p. 163.

³ சூதிராவசண்டெனார். See page 92, note 6, and page 116, note 3.

⁴ Madras Survey Map, No. 35.

⁵ See the introduction of No. 51, above.

⁶ சநாசெர்மய seems to represent the Sanskrit śaṇḍi-śed. It is here used in the sense of "a monument of perpetual devotion," just as, in Sanskrit, kīrti and kīrtana have sometimes the meaning "a monument of fame;" see Mr. Fleet's Corpus Inscriptionum Indicarum, Vol. III, p. 212, note 6.

There are several similar inscriptions in other parts of the temple, viz., two on the pedestals of the two devrapālakas in front of the gopura, one on the left outer wall of the inner prākāra, and five on the floor of the alaṅkāra-mandapa, of which two are written in Tamil, two in Telugu, and one in very faint Nāgari characters

1ST INSCRIPTION.

The end of this inscription is lost. As, however, the preserved part is identical with the above-published inscriptions Nos. 40, 41 and 66, it may be safely concluded, that the inscription belongs to Ko-Rājarāja-Rājakesarivarman, alias Rājarāja-deva. The mention of Iraṭṭa-pāḍi shows, that the inscription dates after the twenty-first year of the king.¹

On the base of this temple, there are at least three obliterated inscriptions besides the preceding one. In the second line of the fourth inscription there occurs the following passage: கொடியாசகெசரிபனமாரக குலொத்துங்கசொழதெவற்கு முப்பத்திரண்டாவது; "the thirty-second [year] of Ko-Rājakesarivarman, alias Kulottunga-Śora-deva."

No. 97. ON A STONE IN FRONT OF THE ĪŚVARA TEMPLE AT ŚORAPURAM.

This inscription is dated in the Durmati year² and mentions the temple of Rājendra-Choleśvara at Śorapuram.³

No. 98. ON A STONE ON THE TANK-BAND AT ŚORAPURAM.

This inscription is dated in the Raktākṣī year, which was current after the expiration of the Śālivāhana-Śaka year 1546. It mentions Śorapuram and seems to record some meritorious gift in connection with the tank by Venkaṭappa-nāyaka.

Nos. 99 TO 106. INSCRIPTIONS OF THE GAṄGEŚVARA TEMPLE AT GĀṄGANŪR NEAR VELŪR.

A considerable number of inscribed stones are built into the walls of this temple; but they are not in their original order, and it must be assumed, that either the temple had been destroyed and was rebuilt, or that it was constructed from stones which belonged to another old temple. The subjoined fragments contain the following dates and names:—

No. 106 is dated in "the forty-first year of Tribhuvanaachakravartin, the illustrious Rājarāja-deva,"⁴ and No. 103 in the Dhātu year, which was current after the expiration of the Śaka year 1258. No. 100 begins with the name of "Sakalalokaachakravartin Rājanārāyaṇa Śambova."⁵ Nos. 104 and 105 mention Gāṅgeya-nallār, alias Śri-

Mallinātha-chaturvedi-maṅgalam, and according to No. 102, Gā[ṅgeya-nallār] was a village in Karaivari-Āndi-nādu,¹ (a division) of [Pa]ḍuvūr-kottam. Other localities mentioned in the subjoined fragments are: Paḍaivīdu,² Kāṭṭuppādi³ and Karugeri in No. 103, and Anaippādi in No. 104. No. 99 mentions the Ammaṭappeśvara Temple,⁴ and No. 101 the same and the Kailāsa Temple.

No. 107. AT THE RĀMASVĀMI-PERUMĀL TEMPLE AT NELLUVĀY NEAR VELŪR.

In front of this temple stands a pillar with a rough inscription on its four sides. The south-east face of the pillar contains the name of "the illustrious mahāmaṇḍaleśvara rājā-dhīrāja rājaparamēśvara, the illustrious Vīra-Ve[ṇka]ṭapati[d]eva-mahārāja" and is dated in the Yuvan year, which was current after the expiration of the Śaka year 1557. An inscription of the same Venkaṭa II. of Kārṇāṭa was published in the Indian Antiquary, Vol. XIII, p. 125. It is dated one year later than the present inscription.

No. 108. AT THE GRĀMADEVATĀ ULAGANĀYAKA-AMMĀL TEMPLE AT ŚADUPPERI NEAR VELŪR.

Nos. 110 to 112. INSCRIPTIONS OF THE ĪŚVARA TEMPLE AT ŚEMBĀKKAM NEAR VELŪR.

This temple contains three fragmentary inscriptions in archaic characters.

No. 110. ON THE WEST BASE, LINES 1 AND 2.

This inscription records some gift, which the assembly (sabha) of Velūr, alias Paramēśvara-maṅgalam, made to the god Ādidāsa Chandeśvara.²

No. 111. ON THE WEST BASE, LINES 3 TO 6.

This inscription seems to record another gift of the sabha of Velūr. It mentions Śemmanpākkam (the modern Śembākkam) and Rājendra-Choleśvara,³ evidently the name of the temple itself.

No. 112. ON THE SOUTH BASE, LINES 1 TO 6.

This inscription mentions both Rājendra-Choleśvara⁴ and Ādidāsa Chandeśvara.⁵ The fragment seems to begin with a description of the boundaries of some gift, in which the term *Pidāri-paṭṭi*⁶ occurs.

No. 113. ON THE PERUMĀL TEMPLE AT ŚEVŪR NEAR VELŪR.

nearly identical Paḍaveḍu inscription No. 81. The inscription seems to have belonged to Devarāja II. of Vijayanagara, the son of Vira-Vijayarāja-mahārāyar. The latter is identical with Vijaya or Vira-Vijaya, who, according to No. 153, below, was the son of Devarāja I. and the father of Devarāja II. The inscriptions of Devarāja II. which are published above (Nos. 54, 56, 79, 80 and 81) range between the current Śaka years 1348 and 1372.

No. 114. ON THE VIRŪPĀKSHESVARA TEMPLE AT VEPPAMBATTU NEAR VELŪR.

Besides the inscription published under No. 55, above, this temple bears another much defaced inscription, which is engraved on the east wall and consists of seven lines. The date is the Vishu year, which was current after the expiration of the Śaka year 1443. According to the third and fourth lines, the inscription seems to have recorded a grant, which Tirumalai-nāyaka made to the temple of Virūpāksha-nāyanār at Veppambattu in Āndi-nādu; line 4 also mentions Paḍaivīḍu.² The passage alluded to runs as follows:

Nos. 115 to 123. INSCRIPTIONS OF THE MĀRGASAHAÏYESVARA TEMPLE AT VIRINCHIPURAM.

No. 115. INSIDE THE FRONT GOPURA, TO THE LEFT, FIRST INSCRIPTION.

1. King: the illustrious mahāmaṇḍaleśvara Medinīśvara Immaḍi-Narasimharāja-mahārāyar (of Vijayanagara).³
2. Date: Śaka 1418 expired⁴ and the Rākshasa year current.⁵
3. Donor: Periya-Timmarāśa-udaiyar.
4. Remark: The inscription mentions a mandapa, which Eṇama-nāyaka caused to be built at Tīru-Virinchipuram.

No. 116. INSIDE THE FRONT GOPURA, TO THE LEFT, SECOND INSCRIPTION.

1. Date: the Nandana year (i.e., Śaka 1395).
2. King: the illustrious mahāmaṇḍaleśvara Medinīśvara Gaṇḍa Kattā[ri] Śāḷva Dharanivarāha Narasimharāja-udaiyar (of Vijayanagara).
3. Donee: Udaiyar Varittunai-nāyanār⁶ of Tīru-Virinchipuram.
4. Remark: The inscription mentions some nāyaka, the son of another nāyaka; the names of both are obliterated.

³ The inscriptions No. 116 and No. 119 belong to the same king.

⁴ The Rākshasa year, however, corresponds to the current Śaka year 1418.

No. 117. INSIDE THE FRONT GOPURA, TO THE LEFT, THIRD INSCRIPTION.

1. King: Sakalalokachakravartin Rājanārāyaṇa.¹
2. Remark: The inscription mentions Āndi-nāḍu.²

No. 118. INSIDE THE FRONT GOPURA, TO THE LEFT, FOURTH INSCRIPTION.

1. King: the illustrious mahārājādhirāja, the illustrious Virapratāpa-[Achyuta-deva]-mahārāyar (of Vijayanagara).³
2. Date: Śaka 1463 expired and the Plava year current.
3. Remark: The inscription mentions Kishṇama-nāyaka and the temple of Udaiyar Varittunai-nāyanār at Tiru-Viriñchipuram.

No. 119. INSIDE THE FRONT GOPURA, TO THE RIGHT, FIRST INSCRIPTION.

1. King: the illustrious mahāmaṇḍaleśvara Medintēvara Gaṇḍa Kaṭṭāri Sāluva-sāluva Narasiṃhadeva (of Vijayanagara).
2. Date: Śaka 1404 expired and the Śubhakṛit year current.
3. Donor: Nāgama-nāyaka.
4. Donee: Udaiyār Varittunai-nāyanār of Tiru-Viriñchipuram.
5. Remark: The inscription mentions the villages of Paṣumarattūr and Veppūr.

No. 120. INSIDE THE FRONT GOPURA, TO THE RIGHT, THIRD INSCRIPTION.

1. Date: Śālivāhana-Śaka 1457 expired and the Nandana year current.⁴
2. King: the illustrious mahārājādhirāja-paramēśvara Achyutadeva-mahārāyar (of Vijayanagara).
3. Donee: Mārgasahāya-deva⁵ of Irinñchipuram(!).
4. Remarks: The inscription mentions Śīraleri (see No. 123). The grant seems to have consisted of a number of kuris of land and to have been made for the benefit of two Brāhmanas, Timmappayan and Śaivādirāyar Vasantarāya-guru, who taught the Rik-śākhā and Yajuh-śākhā respectively. The second donee belonged to the Bhāradvāja-gotra and followed the Bodhāyana-sūtra.⁶

No. 121. ON THE BASE OF THE BACK OF THE FRONT GOPURA, TO THE RIGHT.

1. King: the illustrious mahāmaṇḍaleśvara,⁷ the illustrious Virapratāpa, (the younger brother and successor of) Vira-Narasiṃha-deva, Kṛishnadeva-mahārāya (of Vijayanagara).⁸
2. Date: Śaka 1435 expired and the Śrīmukha year current.

² See Nos. 55 and 114, above.

³ The inscriptions No. 120 and No. 123 belong to the same king.

⁴ There is a mistake in the date, as Śaka 1458 corresponds to the Manmatha year, and the Nandana year to Śaka 1455. See No. 123.

⁵ Compare Mārgasahāyēśvara in No. 58 and Mārgasahāya-linga in No. 140.

⁶ Bodhāyana is the southern form of Baudhāyana; see page ix of the preface of my edition of Baudhāyana's Dharmasūtra, Leipzig, 1884.

⁷ Here follow the same śirudās, as in No. 81, lines 2 to 7.

⁸ According to two Hampi inscriptions of Śaka 1430 (for 1431?) expired, the Śukla year (see paragraph 2 of my Progress Report for December 1885 and January 1889, Madras G.O., 26th February 1889, No. 186, Public), and according to a copper-plate grant, which I have noticed in the Indian Antiquary, Vol. XIII, p. 154, Kṛishnarāya was the younger brother of Vira-Nṛsiṃha or Vira-Nārasiṃha, and both were the eldest sons of Narasa or Nṛsiṃha (see No. 115).

No. 122. ON THE BASE OF THE BACK OF THE FRONT GOPURA, TO THE LEFT.

1. Date: Śaka 1432 [expired] and the *Pramodita*¹ year current.
2. Remark: The name of the king is entirely effaced; but the inscription begins with the same birudaz, as were borne by the king Kṛishṇadeva of the inscription No. 121.

No. 123. INSIDE THE BACK GOPURA.

1. King: the illustrious mahāmaṇḍaleśvara rājādhirāja rājaparamēśvara, the illustrious Achyutadeva-mahārāyar or Achyutarāya (of Vijayanagara).
2. Date: Śaka 1454 expired² and the Nandana year current.
3. Donee: Uḍaiyār Varittunai-nāyanār or Śrī-Viriñcheśvara.
4. Donor: the karaṇikka (= karaṇam) Virappayan or Viraya, who belonged to the Gautamānvaya.
5. Object of the grant: (a) the village of Śīraleri within the boundaries (stṁā) of Kāvanūr;³ (b) the village of Viraraśūr, excluding the agrahāra of Kīrai-Vīraraśūr and including the open (i.e., unfortified) place (irappu) of Aṅgarāyan-kuppam.⁴
6. Remark: The inscription mentions the maṇḍapa of Śamburāyan, which may have formed part of the Viriñchipuram temple.

No. 127.

The stone, which bears the subjoined inscription, is unfortunately very much worn. The text, as far as it can be made out, runs as follows:—

"In the 5th year of Ko-Parakesarivarman, alias Uḍaiyār Śrī-Rājendra-deva, who, having taken the seven and a half lakshas of Iraṭṭa-pādi,¹ having set up a pillar of victory (jagastambha) at Kollaram (?); having reduced to powder the whole army of Āhavamalla at Koppam on the bank of the Perāru,² having taken all the elephants, horses, treasures of women and riches of Āhavamalla, who had turned his back and fled, and having performed the coronation of heroes,—was pleased to sit on the throne of heroes,—we, the villagers of Gaṅgamā[r]tāṇḍapuram in Miyarai-nāḍu,³ (a division) of Adhirājendra-vaṭa-nāḍu in Jayankonda-Śora-maṇḍalam, [gave] to Mahādeva of the Someśvara (temple) at our village for the purposes of worship three hundred kuris; for a tiru-nandavanam three hundred kuris; for two lamps"

An inscription of the same Rājendra-deva, which is dated in the ninth year and is found in a niche of the Varāhasvāmin Temple at Māmāllapuram, was published by Sir Walter Elliot.⁴ He identified Āhavamalla with the Western Chālukya king Āhavamalla II. or Someśvara I. (about Śaka 964 to about 990), who, according to inscriptions⁵ and according to the Vikramāṅkacharita (sarga i, verses 90, 115, 116), fought with the Chōlas. The Rājendra-deva of the present inscription and of Sir Walter Elliot's inscription may be identified with that Rājendra-deva of the Sūryavamśa, whose daughter Madhurāntakī was married to the Eastern Chalukya king Rājendra-Chōḍa (Śaka 985 to 1034) according to verse 12 of the Chellūr grant (No. 39).⁶

No. 133. ON THE RIGHT OF THE FRONT WALL OF A MAṆḌAPA AT KARAṆIPĀKKAM NEAR VIRIṆCHIPURAM.⁴

This inscription is dated during the reign of Vira-Veṅkaṭapati-rāya and in the Śrīmanukha year. This is Śaka 1656, two years before No. 107 and three years before an inscription of Veṅkaṭa II. published in the Indian Antiquary, Vol. XIII, p. 125. The inscription records that Govindappa-nāyaka caused the maṇḍapa to be built and allotted some land in Karaṇipākkam for the maṇḍapa, which was to be used as a watershed and sultrām.

No. 139. AT THE ŚRĪRĀṆGANĀYAKA-SVĀMIN TEMPLE AT PAḶLIKONḶA NEAR VIRIṆCHIPURAM, TO THE LEFT OF THE FRONT DOORWAY.

This inscription is dated in the *Durmati*⁴ year, which was current after the expiration of the Śaka year 1554. The third symbol of the Śaka date is not quite clear. There is a mistake either in the Śaka or in the cyclic year, as the only Durmati year of the 16th century corresponded to the current Śaka year 1544. The inscription mentions the temple of Rāṅganātha-Perumāḷ at PaḷlikonḶai.⁵

The beginning of both lines of this inscription is buried underground. From that part, which I have copied, it appears that the inscription refers to some gift (mānya, i.e., sarvamānya). At the beginning of the second line, the word paḷaiḷḍu occurs in the plural and seems to be used in the sense of "encampments."¹⁰ The inscription ends with "the signature of JayanḱonḶa-Śora-Brahmā-rāyan"; the same name is borne by a village-accountant in a Tirumalai inscription.¹¹

No. 144. FRAGMENTS OF GRANTHA INSCRIPTIONS.

Besides the fragments noticed below, the shrine of Rājasimhavarmaśvara and its mahāmāṇḍapa contain a number of fragments in the Grantha character, which must have belonged to one or more inscriptions in Sanskrit verse and prose. One of the fragments, which is found on the floor of the mahāmāṇḍapa and which consists of 10 lines, mentions the Chōlas in the genitive case (Chōlānām, line 3). A second fragment, which is found on the roof of the mahāmāṇḍapa, consists also of 10 lines and seems to be connected with the first. It mentions Chōla-Trinetra (lines 1 and 10) and three Eastern Chalukya kings, vis., [Vijay]āditya-Gunakāṅga, Chālukya-Bhīma and Kollavigaṇḍa¹ (line 3). The name of V[ai]dumba, a king who is known to have been conquered by the Chōla king Parāntaka I.,² occurs at the beginning of line 5. In lines 7 and 8, (the temple of the god) Bhīmeśvara is mentioned. The 8th line of both fragments seems to have contained a date in the Śaka era, of which the first number was 9 and the third was 3.³ A third fragment, which is found on the floor of the Rājasimhavarmaśvara Shrine and consists of 49 lines, mentions the Eastern Chalukya king Dānārṇava⁴ (line 17) and the Chōla king Karikāla-Chōla⁵ (line 38) and contains a long list of birudas of some king. Another list of birudas is contained in a fourth fragment, which is found on the roof of the mahāmāṇḍapa and consists of 30 lines. There is a fifth fragment in 9 lines on the roof of the mahāmāṇḍapa. Two small fragments, each of which contains 8 lines, are found near the window, which opens from the mahāmāṇḍapa into the front māṇḍapa.

Each line of this inscription is incomplete at the end. It is dated during the reign of Madirai-konda Ko-Parakesari[varman].⁶ Line 2 mentions "the holy stone-temple" (Tirukkacraṇi), i.e., the Rājasimhavarmesvara Temple.⁷ According to lines 3 and 4, the inscription seems to have recorded an agreement made by the inhabitants of two quarters (seri) of Kachchippedu* (i.e., Kāñchipuram), of which the second was called Ekavirappādi-cheheri and the name of the first also ended in ppāḍicheheri. The term *ppāḍichechandum*⁸ occurs in line 5.

* Karikāla is mentioned in line 24 of the large Layden grant (Dr. Burgess' Arch. Survey of S. India, Vol. IV, p. 206) as the builder of the "Grand Anicut," which prevents the waters of the Kāveri being drawn off into the Koljidam and thus secures the irrigation of the Tanjore District.

✓No. 146. ON THE ROOF OF THE MAHAMAṆḌAPA OF THE RĀJASIMHAVARMEŚVARA SHRINE.

This fragment is dated in the twelfth year of Ko-Rāja-Rājakesarivarman, "who built a jewel (-like) hall at Kāndaḷūr." The mention of Kāndaḷūr shows, that the king has to be identified with that Rājarāja-deva, who caused the inscriptions Nos. 40, 41 and 63 to be engraved, and that he built the hall at Kāndaḷūr before his twelfth year. The inscription seems to have recorded, that the assembly (saṁhā) of some village pledged themselves, to furnish a yearly supply of paddy to the temple-treasurers (Śiva-paṇḍāriḡa) from the interest of a sum of money,¹ which they had received from "the large holy stone-temple, alias Rājasimheśvara, at Kāñchipuram," or to pay a fine of a quarter poṇ daily.* The document is signed by [Pu]rambi Śūrya of Tiruvirāpuram.

✓No. 147. ON THE FLOOR OF THE RĀJASIMHAVARMEŚVARA SHRINE.

These two fragments belong to the time of Ko-Rājakesarivarman. The second is dated in his 3rd year. Each of them records an agreement made by the inhabitants of some village, who pledged themselves to furnish daily one urakku of oil for a *nondā*² or nandā lamp in exchange for a loan of 15 *karaiṇṇu*s of gold, and is signed by Mānatoṅgaḷ Mallerumūy, a member of the village-assembly (kūṭṭam).³

² The rate of interest was 4 kaṭṭis of paddy per karaiṇṇu of gold, which gave (roughly computed) 140 kaṭṭis for 33 *karaiṇṇu*s. See page 117, note 3.

✓ No. 148. ON THE ROOF OF THE MAHAMAṆḍAPA OF THE RĀJASIMHAVARMEŚVARA SHRINE.

This fragment, which is dated in the fifteenth year of Ko-Parakesarivarman, contains an agreement made by the inhabitants of some village, who had received a certain sum of money from "the large holy stone-temple (i.e., the Rājasimhavarmesvara Temple) at Kachchippedu (i.e., Kāñchipuram)." From the interest of this sum, they pledged themselves to supply ghee for a lamp at the rate of 1 urakku per day or 7 ndris and 1 uri per mensem.² The measure to be used was a ndri, which was equal to a rājakesari.³ As the Chōla kings alternately bore the surnames Rājakesarin and Parakesarin,⁴ it must be assumed, that this measure was called after one of the predecessors of the king, to whose reign the inscription belongs. The writer of the inscription was the village-headman Nāga Alappaḍi.⁵

¹ Read கழஞ்சுனுக்கு or அஞ்சுனுக்கு.

² As 1 ndri is equal to 4 urakku or 2 uris, 30 urakku are exactly equal to 7 ndris and 1 uri.

³ The same measure is mentioned in line 4 of the fragment No. 146, and probably in line 13 of No. 150.

⁴ See lines 18 to 20 of the large Leyden grant in Dr. Burgess' Arch. Survey of S. India, Vol. IV, p. 206.

The rule holds good in the case of the two kings Rājārāja-deva and Rājendra-Chōla-deva, Nos. 10 and 11 of the table on page 112, above.

No. 149. ON THREE STONES AT THE RĀJASIMHAVARMEŚVARA SHRINE.

These are three fragments of what must have been a very long inscription. Its extent may be estimated from the fact, that line 1 of the first fragment corresponds to line 1 of No. 67, line 1 of the second fragment to line 5 of No. 67, and the first part of line 1 of the third fragment to the latter part of line 6 of No. 67. None of the fragments is in its original position. The first and second are built into the roof of the mahāmāṇḍapa of the Rājasiṃhavarmeśvara Shrine. The third fragment is built into the pavement of the veranda near the entrance into the mahāmāṇḍapa; some letters of each line are covered by a pillar.

Although the name of the king, during whose reign the inscription was engraved, is lost, the existing fragments of the first line, which agree literally with parts of the first, fifth and sixth lines of the inscription No. 67, prove, that the inscription was one of Rājendra-Chōla-deva. As the list of his conquests reaches here only as far as "the high mountains of Navanedikula,"¹ the date must fall between the 7th and 10th years of the king. The inscription seems to have recorded some gifts of paddy, gold and money.

No. 150. ON A PILLAR IN THE MAṆḌAPA IN FRONT OF THE RĀJASIMHAVARMEŚVARA SHRINE.

This inscription is dated in the 26th year of Tribhuvanachakravartin Rājarāja-deva. According to the Poygai inscriptions (Nos. 59 to 64) this year would correspond to Śaka 1163-64. By the subjoined document, some person pledged himself, to supply daily one *ārḍḍku*¹ of ghee for five lamps (saṁdhi-vilakku) "to the lord of the holy stone-temple, alias Rājasimhavarmesvara, at Kachchippedu," i.e., Kāñchīpuram. The ghee had to be made over daily to those, who were in charge of the nārigai (measure) within the temple.

ADDENDA.

No. 151. A PALLAVA GRANT FROM KŪRAM.

The original of the subjoined grant was bought for Government from the Dharmakartā of Kūram, a village near Kāñchīpuram.¹ It is engraved on seven thin copper-plates, each of which measures $10\frac{1}{2}$ by $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches. As the plates are in very bad preservation, the work of deciphering them was somewhat difficult. Of the seventh plate about one half is completely lost. Next to it, the first, fifth and sixth plates have suffered most. An elliptic ring, which is about $\frac{3}{8}$ inch thick and measures 4 by $4\frac{1}{4}$ inches in diameter, is passed through a hole on the left side of each plate. The seal is about $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter and bears a bull, which is seated on a pedestal, faces the left and is surmounted by the moon and a līnga. Farther up, there are a few much obliterated syllables. A legend of many letters passes round the whole seal. Unfortunately it is so much worn, that I have failed to decipher it.

The language of the first $4\frac{1}{2}$ plates of the inscription is Sanskrit,—verse and prose; the remainder is written in Tamil. The Sanskrit portion opens with three benedictory verses, of which the two first are addressed to Śiva and the third mentions the race of the Pallavas. Then follows, as usual,² a mythical genealogy of Pallava, the supposed founder of the Pallava race :—

The historical part of the inscription describes three kings, viz., Paramēśvaravarman, his father Mahendravarman and his grandfather Narasimhavarman. Of Narasimhavarman it says, that he “repeatedly defeated the Chōlas, Keralas, Kaḷabhras and Pāṇdyas,” that he “wrote the (three) syllables of (the word) vijaya (i.e., victory), as on a plate, on Pulakeśin’s back, which was caused to be visible (i.e., whom he caused to turn his back) in the battles of Pariyāḷa, Maṇimaṅgala, Śūramāra, etc.,” and that he “destroyed (the city of) Vātāpī.” No historical information is given about Mahendravarman, who, accordingly, seems to have been an insignificant ruler. A laudatory description of the virtues and deeds of his son Paramēśvaravarman fills two plates of the inscription. The only historical fact contained in this long and difficult passage is that, in a terrible battle, he "made Vikramāditya,—whose army consisted of several lakehas,—take to flight, covered only by a rag."

² Compare the pedigrees on pages 9 and 25, above, and Ind. Ant. Vol. VIII, p. 277.

The three kings who are mentioned in the Kūram grant, viz., Narasimhavarman, Mahendravarman and Paramēśvaravarman, are identical with three Pallava kings described in Mr. Foulkes' grant of Nandivarman Pallavamalla,¹ viz., Narasimhavarman I., Mahendravarman II. and Paramēśvaravarman I. Of Narasimhavarman I. the last-mentioned grant likewise states, that he "destroyed Vātāpi" and that he "frequently defeated Vallabharāja at Pariyāḷa, Maṇimāṅgala, Śūramāra, and other (places)."² Here Vallabharāja corresponds to the Pulakeśin of the Kūram grant. If Mr. Foulkes' grant further reports, that Paramēśvaravarman I. "defeated the army of Vallabha in the battle of Peruvaḷanallūr," it is evident that it alludes to the same fight as is described in the Kūram grant.

If we combine the historical information contained in both grants, it appears—1. that the Pallava king Narasimhavarman I. defeated Pulakeśin, alias Vallabharāja, at Pariyāḷa, Maṇimāṅgala, Śūramāra, and other places, and destroyed Vātāpi, the capital of the Western Chalukyas, and—2. that his grandson Paramēśvaravarman I. defeated Vikramāditya, alias Vallabha, at Peruvaḷanallūr. As stated above (p. 11), Pulakeśin and Vikramāditya, the opponents of the two Pallava kings, must have been the Western Chalukya kings Pulikeśin II. (Śaka 532 and 556) and his son Vikramāditya I. (Śaka 592 (?) to 602 (?)), who, more indico, likewise boast of having conquered their antagonists.³ Thus, a grant of Pulikeśin II. says, that "he caused the leader of the Pallavas to hide his prowess behind the ramparts of Kāñchīpura;"⁴ and, in a grant of Vikramāditya I., it is said that "this lord of the earth, conquering Īśvarapotarāja (i.e., Paramēśvaravarman I.), took Kāñchī, whose huge walls were insurmountable and hard to be broken, which was surrounded by a large moat that was unfathomable and hard to be crossed, and which resembled the girdle (kāñchī) of the southern region (read dakṣiṇadīpaḥ)."⁵

Another Pallava king, viz., Nandipotavarman, is mentioned as the opponent of the Western Chalukya king Vikramāditya II. (Śaka 655 to 669) in the Vakkāleri grant, which was published by Mr. Rice.⁶ The table inserted on p. 11, above, shows that this Nandipotavarman must be identical with the Pallava king Nandivarman Pallavamalla, who is mentioned in Mr. Foulkes' grant. Though digressing from my subject, I now sub-

² Similarly, Rājendra-Chōla and Jayasīṃha III. claim to have conquered each other (see page 96, above). And, in a Mahobā inscription (Journal of the German Oriental Society, Vol. XL, p. 50) and in the prologue of the drama Prabodhachandrodaya the Chandella king Kirtivarman and his general Gopāla are said to have completely defeated Karna of Chedi or Pāhāla, who, in the Vikramādhikācharita (sarga xviii, verse 93), is called "the death to the lord of the Kālāṅjara mountain" (i.e., to the Chandella king).

³ Ind. Ant. Vol. VIII, p. 245.

⁴ Ind. Ant. Vol. VI, p. 77. The corrupt passage, which precedes the sentence quoted in the text, mentions a "Śrīvallabha, who had crushed the fame of Narasimha, destroyed the power of Mahendra and surpassed Īśvara by his polity." In whatever way the next following lines have to be amended, there is, I think, little doubt, that Śrīvallabha must refer to either Pulikeśin II. or Vikramāditya I. and Narasimha, Mahendra and Īśvara to the three consecutive Pallava kings Narasimhavarman I., Mahendravarman II. and Paramēśvaravarman I.

"Vikramāditya Satyāśraya Śrī-Prithivī-vallabha, the king of great kings, the supreme ruler, the lord,—to whom arose great energy immediately after the time of his anointment at the self-choice of the goddess of the sovereignty of the whole world, and who resolved to uproot completely his natural enemy, the Pallava, who had robbed of their splendour the previous kings born from his race,—reached with great speed the Tundāka-vishaya (i.e., the Tondai-maṇḍalam), attacked at the head of a battle and put to flight the Pallava, called Nandipotavarman, who had come to meet him, took possession of the musical instrument (called) "harsh-sounding" and of the excellent musical instrument called "roar of the sea," of the banner (marked with Śiva's) club, of many renowned and excellent elephants, and of a heap of rubies, which drove away darkness by the light of the multitude of their rays, and entered (the city of) Kāñchi,—which seemed to be the handsome girdle (kāñchi) of the nymph of the southern region,—without destroying it. Having made the twice-born, the distressed and the helpless rejoice by continual gifts, having acquired great merit by granting heaps of gold to (the temple) of stone (called) Rājasimheśvara, which Narasimhapotavarman had caused to be built,⁷ and to other temples, and having burnt by the unimpeded progress of his power the Pāṇḍya, Chōla, Keraḷa, Kaḷabhra and other princes, he placed a pillar of victory (jayastumbha), which consisted (as it were) of the mass of his fame that was as pure as the bright moon in autumn, on the Southern Ocean, which was called Ghârṇamānâṛṇas (i.e., that whose waves are rolling) and whose shore glittered with the rays of the pearls, which had dropped from the shells, that were beaten and split by the trunks of the frightened elephants (of his enemies), which resembled sea-monsters."

That Vikramāditya II. really entered Kāñchi and visited the Rājasimheśvara Temple, is proved by a much obliterated Kanarese inscription in the Kailāsanātha Temple at Kāñchīpuram. This inscription is engraved on the back of a pillar in the mandapa in front of the Rājasimheśvara Shrine, close to the east wall of that mandapa, which at a later time was erected between the front mandapa and Rājasimheśvara. It begins with the name of "Vikramāditya Satyāśraya Śrī-Prithivī-vallabha, the king of great kings, the supreme ruler, the lord" and mentions the temple of Rājasimheśvara (ரஜசிவేశ, line 4).

I now return to the Kūram plates. The three last of them contain the grant proper, and record in Sanskrit and Tamil, that Parameśvara (i.e., Parameśvaravarman I.) gave away the village of Parameśvara-maṅgalam,—which was evidently named after the king himself,—in twenty-five parts. Of these, three were enjoyed by two Brāhmaṇas, Anantaśivāchārya and Phullaśarman, who performed the divine rites and looked after the repairs of the Śiva temple at Kūram, which was called Vidyāvinīta-Pallava-Parameśvara, and which had been built by Vidyāvinīta-Pallava, probably a relative of the king. The fourth part was set aside for the cost of providing water and fire for the mandapa at Kūram, and the fifth for reciting the Bhārata in this mandapa. The remaining twenty parts were given to twenty Chaturvedīns.

At the time of the grant, the village of Kūram belonged to the nāḍu (country) or, in Sanskrit, manyavāntara-rāṣṭra of Nirvelūr, a division of Ūrukkāṭṭukkottam (lines 49 and 57 f.), and the village of Parameśvaramaṅgalam belonged to the Paṇmā-nāḍu or Patmā-manyavāntara-rāṣṭra, a division of Maṇayirkottam (lines 53 and 71). As, in numerous Tamil inscriptions, பன்ம corresponds to the Sanskrit पद्म, —the form Paṇmā-nāḍu, which occurs also in No. 86, might mean the country of the Varmās, i. e., of the Pallavas, whose names end in varman, the nominative case of which is varmā. There is, however, a possibility of பன்ம being a mistake for, and பன்ம a Tamil form of, Padmā,¹ one of the names of the goddess Lakshmi. With Maṇayirkottam compare Maṇavirkottam in No. 86 and Eyirkottam in No. 88. Possibly Maṇavirkottam is a mere corruption of Maṇayirkottam, and Maṇayil stands for Maṇ-eyil, "mud-fort," which might be a fuller form of Eyil, a village in the South Arcot District, which seems to have given its name to Eyirkottam.²

In conclusion, an important palæographical peculiarity of the Tamil portion of the Kūram plates has to be noted. The pulli, which corresponds to the Nāgarī virāma, occurs frequently, though not regularly, in combination with seven letters of the Tamil alphabet. In the case of five of these (ஃ, ழ, ஸ, ஶ, ஷ) it is represented by a short vertical stroke over the letter, as in the inscription No. 82, above.³ In the case of the two others (ஂ and ஃ) it has a similar shape, but is placed behind the letter and at an angle with it, in such a way that the lower part is nearer to the letter than the upper one.

¹ The usual Tamil form of पद्म is பத்மம். But compare பத்தம and பன்ம, both of which correspond to the Sanskrit पद्म.

TRANSLATION.

A. Sanskrit portion.

Hail ! ³(Verse 1.) May (Śiva) protect us, who has five faces (and) fifteen fearful eyes, who bears the moon on his crest, who wears the trident, whose sacred thread is a terrible serpent, who possesses ten strong arms, who has the form of the universal soul which consists of truth alone, the divine one, who is to be respected by Mukunda (Vishnu) and the other immortals, who produces the creation, who is propitiated by spells, the creator, (who is) knowledge incarnate, who performs perfect self-restraint, and whose form is the universe !

(Verse 2.) Victorious is that Parameśvara (Śiva), who consists of the three Vedas, the crest-jewel of the three worlds, who places in the hearts of beings the power which effects actions, the moon of the highest sky, the succession of whose particles (causes) a multitude of products, and whose rays crystallize, when they fall, as on a moon-stone, on the mind of the learned !

(Verse 3.) May that race of the Pallavas,—in which we hear no prince was (ever) born, who was not pious, who did not perform the soma sacrifice, who raised the club of war unjustly, who was a sham saint, who did not perform heroic deeds (only for the sake of) liberality, whose tongue was so false as to speak an untruth, or who was alarmed in battles, —be unobstructed in protecting the earth, which is free from calamities !

(Line 9.) From Brahman (aprang) Āṅgiras; from him, Bṛihaspati; from him, Bhāradvāja; from him, Droṇa; from Droṇa, Aśvatthāman, the splendour of whose power was immeasurable; from him, Pallava, who drove away (every) jot of a calamity from his race; from him, the race of the Pallavas, the favourites of the whole world.

(Verse 4.) May that Pallava race last (for ever), in which we have heard no prince was (ever) born, who was not pious, who was not liberal, (or) who was not brave !⁴

(Line 12.) The grandson of Narasimhavarman, (who arose) from the kings of this race, just as the moon and the sun from the Eastern mountain; who was the crest-jewel on the head of those princes, who had never bowed their heads (before); who proved a lion to the elephant-herd of hostile kings; who appeared to be the blessed Narasimha himself, who had come down (to earth) in the shape of a prince; who repeatedly defeated the Cholas, Keraḷas, Kaḷabhras, and Pāṇḍyas; who, like Sahasrabāhu (i.e., the thousand-armed Kṛtavīrya), enjoyed the action of a thousand arms in hundreds of fights; who wrote the (three) syllables of (the word) vijaya (i.e., victory), as on a plate, on Pulakeśin's back, which was caused to be visible (i.e., whom he caused to turn his back) in the battles of Pariyāḷa, Maṇimaṅgala, Śūramāra, etc.; and who destroyed (the city of) Vātāpi, just as the pitcher-born (Agastya) (the demon) Vātāpi;—

(Line 17.) The son of Mahendravarman, by whom prosperity was thoroughly produced (su-rachita), just as prosperity is heaped on the gods (sura-chita) by Mahendra; and who thoroughly enforced the sacred law of the castes and the orders;—

² There follows an illegible scrawl, which fills the remainder of line 95, and two further lines.

³ Owing to the bad preservation of the first plate, both the reading and the translation of verses 1 and 2 are merely tentative.

⁴ The same sentiment is expressed in different words in verse 3.

(Line 19.) (was) Parameśvaravarman, whose beauty (darśana) surpassed (that of) all (others), just as Parameśvara (Śiva) has (one) eye (darśana) more than all (others); who, like Bharata, was a conqueror of all; who avoided improper conduct (asamañjasa), just as Sagara abandoned (his son) Asamañjasa¹; who possessed a strong body (aṅga), just as Karpā was (king) of the prosperous Aṅgas; who was fond of poems (kāvya), just as Yayāti of (his father-in-law) Kāvya (Uśanas); whose command always caused pain to haughty kings, like a chaplet (forcibly placed on their heads),² but gave splendour to the faces of friends by reaching their ears, like an ear-ring; who was constantly clever in the sport of the fine arts (kālā), (just as) the moon is charming in the beauty of her digits (kālā); (who resembled) the string of pearls (muktāgūṇa) on the breast of Cupid, but who, at the same time, avoided unlawful (intercourse) with women (even) by thought.³

(Line 23.) At the head of a battle,—in which the disk of the sun was caused to assume the likeness of the circle of the moon through the mist of the dust, that was produced by the marching of countless troops of men, horses and elephants, which was terrible through the thunder-like sound of drums, which teemed with unsheathed swords that resembled flashes of lightning, in which elephants were moving like clouds, and which (therefore) resembled an unseasonable appearance of the rainy season; in which tall horses looked like billows, in which elephants caused distress on their path, just as sea-monsters produce whirlpools, in which conches were incessantly blown (or cast up), and which (therefore) resembled the gaping ocean; which was full of swords and shields (dvarāṇa), just as of rhinoceroses, creepers and varāṇa (trees), which was crowded with heroes who possessed bows and mighty elephants, as if it were crowded with tara (grass) and with asana, nāga, tilaka and pum̐nāga (trees), in which confused noises were raised, and which (therefore) appeared to be a forest; which was agitated by a violent wind, (but) in which the path of the wind was obstructed by arrows, that flew past each other on the bows (themselves), while these were bent by the warriors; in which javelins, pikes, darts, clubs, lances, spears and discuses were flying about; in which troops of furious elephants firmly impaled each other's faces with the piercing thunderbolts of their tusks; in which squadrons of horsemen were connected by their swords, that had struck each other's heads; in which there were soldiers who were noted (for their dexterity) in fighting with sword against sword, (pulling of) hair against (pulling of) hair, and club against club; in which the ground was thickly smeared with saffron, as the blood was mixed with the copious rutting-juice of elephants, that issued in consequence of (their) considering each other as equals (or) despising each other; in which (both) large armies had lost and dropped arms, necks, shanks, thigh-bones and teeth; in which, owing to the encounter of the armies, both sides were broken, urged on, put to flight and prostrated on the ground; which was attended by the goddess of fortune, sitting on the swing of the doubt about mutual victory or defeat; in which brave warriors were marching on the back of lines of fallen elephants, that formed a bridge over the flood of blood; in which soldiers stood motionless,⁴ if their blows did not hit each

² The following play on karnapāra, "filling the ears" and "an ear-ring," suggests that the composer intended to make a similar pun on piḍā, "pain," and āpiḍā, "a chaplet." Āpiḍa is elsewhere only used as a masculine.

³ The second muktāgūṇa stands for muktoḥ agūṇaḥ yena, and agūṇa for adharma. With the irregular construction vanitāṇāṁ muktāgūṇaḥ for muktavanitāgūṇaḥ, compare kātarakāṣṭhāṇāṁ dīpaḥ for kāṭadyurakāṣṭhāṇāṁ in the Śiṣupālavadhā, sarga i, verse 48.

⁴ With the denominative luptakriyāyita compare pḍikāyita in line 34.

other's weak parts; which was covered here and there with shattered banners and parasols, with fallen elephants and with dead and half-dead soldiers, who had done their duty, whose strong arms (still) raised the weapon, whose lips were bitten and whose eyes were deep-red with fury; in which a multitude of white chāmaras was waving; in which tiaras, armlets, necklaces, bracelets and ear-rings were broken, crushed and pulverized; in which the Kūshmāṇḍas, Rākshasas and Pīśāchas were singing, intoxicated with drinking the liquor of blood; and which contained hundreds of headless trunks, that were vehemently dancing together in a fearful manner according to the beaten time,—he, unaided, made Vikramāditya, whose army consisted of several lakshas, take to flight, covered only by a rag.

(Verses 5 and 6.) He, having caused to be accoutred the elephant called Arivāraṇa (i.e., 'warding off enemies'), whose golden saddle was covered with the splendour of jewels, whose rut was perpetual, who (therefore) appeared to be the king of mountains himself whose torrents never cease to flow, and who was followed by thousands of (other) elephants,—and the horse called Atisaya (i.e., 'eminence'), whose noble breed was manifest, and who wore a saddle (set with) jewels, together with lakshas of (other) horses, whose ears were covered with *chāmaras*¹

(Line 49.) This Parameśvara gave to the blessed lord Pinākapāṇi (Śiva),—who had been placed in the temple of Vidyāvinīta-Pallava-Parameśvara in the midst of the village called Kūra, which possessed one hundred and eight families that studied the four Vedas, (and which was situated) in the manyavāntara-rāṣṭra called Nirvelūr, in the midst of Ūrukkātṭukkottā, in order to provide for the worship, the bathing (of the idol), flowers, perfumes, incense, lamps, oblations (havir-upahdra-bali), conches, drums, etc., and for water, fire and the recitation of the Bhārata at this (temple),—the village called Parameśvara-maṅgala in the manyavāntara-rāṣṭra called Patmā, in the midst of Maṇayi[r]kottā, as a divine gift (and) as a gift to Brāhmaṇas, at the request of Vidyāvinīta, the lord of the Pallavas, with exemption from all taxes. The executor (*āṅgapti*²) of this (grant was) Mahāsenadatta (of) Uttarakāraṇikā. And for (performing) the divine rites and the repairs of this temple of Vidyāvinīta-Pallava-Parameśvara,—Anantaśiva-āchārya, the son of Kūratt-āchārya, was given (1), and secondly Phullaśarman; (their) sons and grandsons were (also) appointed.

B. Tamil portion.

(Line 57.) (At) Kūram and Nammaṅambākkam in Nirvelūr-nādu, (a division) of Ūrukkātṭukkottam,—Vidyāvinīta, the Pallava king, bought one thousand and two hundred *kuris*³ of land, for which he paid the price in gold. (Other) land was purchased, in order to burn tiles for building a temple. After the *pattī*⁴ of Śōlaimedu within Talaippādagam and five and a quarter pattis of land in the village, together with the land on which the māṇḍapa was built, were bought; after the temple of Vidyāvinīta-Pallava-Parameśvara was built; after the tank was dug; and after houses and house-gardens were allotted to those, who had to perform the worship at this temple,—the land, which remained, was to be cultivated for (providing) the customary offerings. The eastern boundary of this land is to the west of the road to the burning-ground; the southern boundary is to the north of the road, which leads into the village; the western boundary is to the east of the road, which leads to the district-channel (?) which is) on the north of the road, which leads into the village; the northern boundary is to the south of the district-channel. After the land included within these four boundaries,—with the exception of the temple, the tank, and the houses and house-gardens for those, who had to perform the worship,—and the paṭṭi of Śūlaimedū had been given as land to be cultivated for (providing) the customary offerings,—the whole land round the tank (?) in (the village of) Parameśvaramaṅgalam in Paumā-nādu, (a division) of Maṇayirkottam, (was divided) into twenty-five parts (and set aside) for performing the divine rites and the repairs necessary for this temple, and in order to grant a brahmadeya to twenty Chaturvedins. Of these, three parts shall be (for) performing the divine rites and the repairs of the temple at Kūram; one part shall be for water and fire for the maṇḍapa at Kūram; one part shall be for reciting the Bhārata in this maṇḍapa; the remaining twenty parts were given as a brahmadeya to twenty Chaturvedins. (The donees) shall enjoy the houses and house-gardens of this village, the village-property (?), the oil-mills, the looms, the bāsār, the brokerage, the kattikkānam (?) and all other common (property), after (the proceeds) have been divided in the proportion of these twenty-five parts. The dry land (?) (along) the Perumbiḍugu channel, which was dug from the Pālāru¹ to the tank of Parameśvara at this village, (and) all the land, in which channels (from) fountains were dug, (shall be) the land of Parameśvaramaṅgalam

(Line 83.) Of the three parts, which were given, Anantaśiva-āchārya and his sons and further descendants (shall enjoy) one and a half part

(Line 86.) Phullaśarman and his sons and further descendants

[Lines 89 to 95 contain fragments of five Sanskrit verses, in the first of which the inscription is called a *praśasti*² or eulogy; the remaining four were, as usual, imprecatory verses.]

NO. 152. ON A LAMP-PILLAR AT VIJAYANAGARA.

A rough transcript and paraphrase of the subjoined inscription was published as early as 1836 in the Asiatic Researches.³ The original is engraved on a lamp-pillar in front of a Jaina temple at the ruined city of Vijayanagara. The temple is now-a-days styled Gaṇigitti Temple,⁴ i.e., "the temple of the oil-woman."⁵

The inscription consists of 28 Sanskrit verses and commences with an invocation of Jina (verse 1) and of his religion (Jina-śāsana, v. 2). Then follows a pedigree of the spiritual ancestors and pupils of the head of a Jaina school, who was called Simha-nandin:—

The Mūla-saṃgha.

The Nandī-saṃgha.

The Balāhikāra-gaṇa.

¹ This is the Pālār river, which flows to the south of Little Kāñchi. It is also mentioned in No. 59, line 5.

² According to Mr. Fleet, Corpus Inscriptionum Indicarum, Vol. III, p. 87, note 10, the only other instance, in which the term praśasti is applied to an inscription on copper-plates, is the Chitacole grant of the mahārāja Indravarman, Ind. Ant. Vol. XIII, p. 121.

³ Vol. XX, p. 38 and pp. 20 f.

⁴ No. 68 on the Madras Survey Map.

⁵ A similar fanciful name is Mālegitti-Śivālaya, "the Śiva temple of the female garland-maker," at Bādāmi; Ind. Ant. Vol. X, p. 63.

The various epithets, which these teachers receive in the inscription, are:—ācārya, ārya, guru, deśika, muni and yogindra. Other Jaina terms, which occur in the inscription, are:—syādvāda (v. 2.) or anekānta-mata (v. 22), paṭṭa (vv. 11 and 12) and chaityālaya (v. 28).

The pedigree of Jaina teachers is followed by a short account (vv. 15 to 18) of two kings of the first Vijayanagara dynasty, viz., Bukka, who was descended from the race of the Yādava kings, and his son Harihara (II). Harihara's hereditary minister was the general (daṇḍādhināyaka, vv. 19 and 21; daṇḍanātha, v. 20) Chaicha or Chaichapa. Chaicha's son, the general (daṇḍeśa, vv. 21, 22 and 28) or prince (kṣhittā v. 23; dharaṇṭa, v. 24) Iruga or Irugapa, adhered to the doctrine of the above-mentioned Jaina teacher Simhanandin (v. 24). In Śaka 1307 [expired],¹ the cyclic year Krodhana (lines 36 f.), Iruga built a stone-temple of Kunthu-Jinanātha (v. 28) at Vijayanagara (v. 26). This city belonged to Kuntala, a district of the Karpāṭa country (v. 25).

Through my assistant I received a copy,—printed with a Telugu commentary in the Rudhīrodgāri-saṃvatsara (i.e., 1863-64 A. D.),—of a Sanskrit kośa, entitled Nānārtharatnamālā and composed by Irugapa-daṇḍādhinātha or, as he calls himself in the opening verses, Iruga-daṇḍeśa. Dr. Oppert² mentions a large number of MSS. of the same work. Dr. Aufrecht³ describes three inferior MSS. of it and states that, according to one of these, its composer lived under a king Harihara. This notice enables us to identify the author of the Nānārtharatnamālā with the general Iruga or Irugapa of the subjoined inscription.

TRANSLATION.

(Verse 1.) May that Jina, the dust of whose lotus-feet removes mental impurity, and who is an abode of compassion, produce abundant happiness!

(Verse 2.) May the religion of the lord of the three worlds, the religion of Jina, the unfailing characteristic of which is the glorious and extremely mysterious scepticism,¹ be victorious!

(Verse 3.) In the glorious Mûla-saṃgha, there arose the Nandi-saṃgha; in this, the lovely Balât-kāra-gaṇa; and in the gachchha called Sârasvata, (which belonged) to this, the pure-minded Padmanandin.²

(Verse 4.) The dehârya called Kuṇḍa[kunda], Vakra-grîva, Mahâmati, Elâchârya and Grîdhrapîñchha:—these (were) his five (surnames).

(Verse 5.) Just as pearls in the ocean, there appeared in his (spiritual) race (anvaya) certain beautiful sages, who were mines of speeches and endowed with divine splendour.

(Verse 6.) Among these, there was a teacher, who was an ocean of beautiful deeds, which resembled pearls, the chief of ascetics (called) Dharmabhûshana, who was distinguished by the title of Bhaṭṭâraka.

(Verse 7.) Resplendent is the Bhaṭṭâraka Dharmabhûshana, whose (only) ornament are virtues; even as a bee, the (whole) sky (enjoys) the perfume of the flower of his fame.

(Verse 8.) The pupil of this sage was the glorious saint Amarakîrti, a treasury of austerities of unrestrained (power), the foremost of teachers, and full of tranquillity.

(Verse 9.) I worship that Amarakîrti, who removes darkness, and in whose heart the lamp of knowledge never flickers in consequence of his shutting the door of his eye-lids and suppressing his breath.

(Verse 10.) Let many chiefs of ascetics arise on earth, who are bent (only) on filling their bellies, and whose minds are devoid of knowledge; what is their use in this world, (though they be) endless (in number)? (For) there appears the pupil of Amarakîrti, the glorious, wise, and dutiful teacher Sîmhanandin, the head of a school (ganabhrit), who scatters (their) invincible and great pride by his mighty virtues.

² According to Dr. Aufrecht's Catalogue Bibliotheca Bodleiana, p. 180, a Jaina MS. of A.D. 1518 contains the following slightly different pedigree of Padmanandin: Śrī-Mûla-saṃgha Saravati-gachchhe Balât-kāra-gaṇe Śrī-Kuṇḍakundâchârya-anvaya Bhaṭṭâraka-Śrī-Padmanandi-deva. Here Padmanandin is said to belong to the spiritual race of Kuṇḍakundâchârya, while our inscription (verse 4) gives Kuṇḍakundâchârya as one of the names of Padmanandin himself. According to Mr. Pâṭhak (Ind. Ant. Vol. XIV, p. 15) the correct spelling of Kuṇḍakunda, as the present inscription seems to read, is Kuṇḍakunḍa. The Têrdâḷ inscription (l. c. p. 25) has Kuṇḍakunḍâchârya; Professor Wilson (Essays, Vol. I, p. 341),—Kuṇḍakunḍâchârya; and an unpublished inscription at Śravapa-Belagoḷa,—Kuṇḍakunda.

(Verse 11.) His (successor) in office¹ was the glorious Bhaṭṭāraka Dharmabhūṣha, who equalled (his) glorious teacher, the saint Simhanandin, who resembled a pillar of the palace of the holy religion of Jina, and whose fame (possessed the splendour of) the lotus and the moon.

(Verse 12.) (The successor) in office of this sage was a lord of sages, (called) Vardhamāna, who was a bee at the lotus-feet of the glorious Simhanandin, the chief of ascetics.

(Verse 13.) The pupil of this teacher was the teacher Dharmabhūṣhaṇa, (also called) the glorious Bhaṭṭārakamuni,² who was free from the three thorns.³

(Verse 14.) We praise the feet of Bhaṭṭārakamuni, those unheard-of lotuses, before which the hands of kings (rāja-karāḥ) are devoutly folded, (while the day-lotus closes under the influence of the rays of the moon:—rāja-karāḥ).

(Line 21.) While thus the succession of teachers continued without interruption:—

(Verse 15.) There was in the race of the Yādava princes the illustrious king Bukka, whose might was boundless, and who was exalted by perfect virtues.

(Verse 16.) From this prince there sprang the lord Harihara, a king who knew all arts (kālā),—just as the (full) moon, who possesses all digits (kālā), was produced from the milk-ocean.

(Verse 17.) While this prince, who has conquered the world by his valour, is (her) lord, this earth possesses—ah!—at last a king who deserves this title.

(Verse 18.) While this lord of kings, who surpassed all former princes, ruled the earth, whose girdle are the four oceans,—

(Verse 19.) The hereditary minister of him, whose wife was the earth, was the general Chaicha, who was endowed with the three (regal) powers.⁴

(Verse 20.) (His) second soul in (state) secrets (and his) third arm on battle-fields,—the illustrious and great general Chaichapa is (ever) vigilant in the service of king Hari.

(Verse 21.) The son of this illustrious and brilliant general Chaicha was the general Iruga, who delighted the world.

(Verse 22.) Oh general Iruga! This great fame (of thine),—which is not corporeal, because it pervades the whole world, (but which is at the same time) corporeal, because it resembles in splendour Śiva and the full-moon,⁵ as it shines in autumn,—says for a long time:—"In this world there is no higher doctrine than the lovely scepticism."⁶

(Verse 23.) The bow of this prince Iruga loudly teaches, as it were, right conduct to the people, as it is of good bamboo (or of good family), endowed with a string (or with virtues) and a receptacle of arrows (or a refuge of beggars), but is bent (or humble) and causes the enemies (or the best) to bow.

¹ Paṭṭa, "a tiara worn as an emblem of dignity," is here used for the dignity itself. It has the same meaning in Paṭṭavali, the title of two lists of Jaina teachers, extracts from which were published by Dr. Klatt in Ind. Ant. Vol. XI, pp. 245 ff.

² An earlier Bhaṭṭāraka Dharmabhūṣhaṇa was mentioned in verses 6 and 7, and a Bhaṭṭāraka Dharmabhūṣha in verse 11.

³ Pandit Lakshmanāchārya of Bangalore informs me that, according to the Paddantachāṭmuni, "the three thorns" (śalya-traya) are the same as "the three kinds of pain" (duḥkha-traya), viz., that produced by oneself (ādhyātmanika), by other beings (ādhibhautika) and by the gods (ādhidaitika).

⁴ See page 35, note 1.

⁵ With rādhā-viṭa compare rādhā-siddhika in verse 8 of No. 153, below.

⁶ The anekānta-mata is the same as the syādvāda; see page 158, note 1. What the composer of the inscription wants to express by verse 22, is, that Iruga's fame furnishes a proof of the correctness of the Jaina doctrine of scepticism, as arguments can be adduced for its being not corporeal, as well as for its being corporeal.

(Verse 24.) Prince Irugapa, that moon (who causes to unfold) the lotus of the goddess of prosperity of the great empire of king Harihara, he who has reached the highest point of prowess and profundity, the only abode of valour, (was) a bee at the lotus-feet of Simhanandin,¹ the best of saints.

(Line 36.) Hail! In the Śaka year 1307, while the Krodhana year was current, on Friday, the second lunar day of the dark half of the month of Phālguna;—²

(Verse 25.) There is a district (vishaya), Kuntala by name, which is situated in the midst of the vast country (dharā-maṇḍala) of Karnaṭa, and which resembles the hair (kuntala) of the goddess of the earth.

(Verse 26.) In this (country) there is a city (nagara), named Vijaya, which is resplendent with wonderful jewels, and which exhibits the spectacle of an unexpected moonshine by the multitude of its whitewashed palaces.

(Verse 27.) There the girls play on roads paved with precious stones, stopping by embankments of pearl-sand the water (poured out) at donations.

(Verse 28.) In this city the general Iruga caused to be built of fine stones a temple (chaityālaya) of the blessed Kunthu,³ the lord of Jinas.

(Line 42.) Let there be prosperity to the religion of Jina!

No. 153. ON A JAINA TEMPLE AT VIJAYANAGARA.

Next to No. 152, this is the oldest dated inscription at Vijayanagara. It is engraved on both sides of the north-west entrance of a ruined Jaina temple, which is situated to the south-west of the temple No. 35 on the Madras Survey Map. A careless transcript and paraphrase in the *Asiatic Researches*⁴ has been useful so far as it enabled Mr. R. Sewell to complete the pedigree of the first Vijayanagara dynasty in his Lists of Antiquities.⁵

The inscription is written in large and handsome characters, which are, however, considerably obliterated in consequence of the usual coating with chunnam. It records, in Sanskrit, prose and verse, that in the Parābhava year, which was current after the expiration of the Śaka year 1348 (line 25), king Devarāja II. built a stone-temple (chaityālaya or chaityāgāra) of the Arhat Pārśvanātha (l. 5) or Pārśva-Jineśvara (l. 27) in a street (utthi) of the Pān-supārī Bāzār (Kramuka-parṇāpana, l. 4, or Parna-pūṭṭhāpana, l. 25) at his residence Vijayanagara (l. 4) or Vijayanagarī (l. 6), which belonged to the Karnaṭa country (ll. 4 and 6).

The chief value of the inscription consists in the pedigree, which it gives no less than three times,⁶ of the first Vijayanagara dynasty:—

1. Bukka (ll. 1, 9, 24) of the race of Yādu (Yadu-kula, l. 8, or Yādavānvaya, l. 1).
2. His son, Harihara (II.) (ll. 2, 10, 24), mahārāja (l. 2).
3. His son, Devarāja (I.) (ll. 2, 13, 24).
4. His son, Vijaya (ll. 13, 15, 16, 19, 20, 24) or Vīra-Vijaya (l. 2).
5. His son, Devarāja (II.) (ll. 15, 18, 19, 20, 22, 24), Abhinava-Devarāja (ll. 3 f.), or Vīra-Devarāja (l. 16), mahārāja (l. 4), rājādhirāja, rājaparamēśvara, etc. (ll. 3 and 23).

² This passage is again taken up in verse 28.

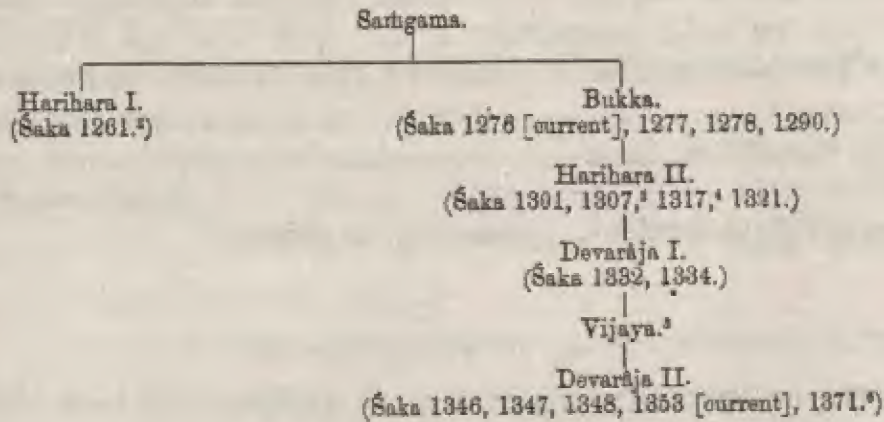

³ Kunthu is the name of the seventeenth Tīrthakara; see Professor Jacobi's Jaina Sūtras, Part I, Index, s. v.

⁴ Vol. XX. p. 38 and pp. 22 ff.

⁵ Vol. II, p. 244.

⁶ Lines 1 to 4; lines 8 to 16; and line 24, verse 15.

In the subjoined genealogical table of the first or Yādava dynasty of Vijayanagara, the names of the father and of the elder brother of Bukka and those Śaka dates, for which no references are given in the foot-notes, are taken from Mr. Fleet's table of the same dynasty.¹

During the reign of Devarāja II. the city of Vijayanagara was visited by 'Abdu'r-razzāq as an ambassador of Sultān Shāh Rukh of Samarkand, a son of the great Timūr. 'Abdu'r-razzāq informs us, that he stayed at Bijānagar (Vijayanagara), the capital of Deo Rāi (Devarāja II.), from the close of Zu'l-hijja A.H. 846 = end of April A.D. 1443 to the 12th Shabān A.H. 847 = 5th December A.D. 1443.⁷ An English translation of his own account of his journey is included in Elliot and Dowson's History of India.⁸ Curiously enough, the whole is also incorporated with slight alterations in Galland's translation of the Thousand and One Nights, where it forms part of the Story of Prince Ahmad and the Fairy Part Bānū. This is one of the twelve doubtful stories, the originals of which are not found in the existing Arabic MSS. of the Nights. The late Professor Weil⁹ was of opinion, that they were probably contained in the fourth volume of the Paris MS., which was lost after Galland's death; and two of the missing stories have since been actually recovered by M. Zotenberg.¹⁰ In 'Abdu'r-razzāq's account of Vijayanagara, we possess the dated original, from which part of the Story of Prince Ahmad was taken. In the absence of works of reference, I cannot say if this fact,—which furnishes us with a terminus a quo for the compilation of that story,—has been noticed before.

According to 'Abdu'r-razzāq,¹¹ Devarāja II. issued the following coins:—I. Gold: (1) varāha; (2) partāb = $\frac{1}{2}$ varāha; (3) fanam = $\frac{1}{16}$ partāb. II. Silver: tār = $\frac{1}{8}$ fanam. III. Copper: ṭṭal = $\frac{1}{32}$ tār. Pagodas or varāhas with the legend श्रीप्रतापदेवराय, which on some copies is corrupted into श्रीप्रतापदावराय, are described by Dr. Bidie,¹ who also figures a pagoda of Bukka.² The name partāb, which 'Abdu'r-razzāq attributes to the half pagoda, is probably connected with the surname Pratāpa, which occurs before the names of Vijaya-nagara kings both on coins and in inscriptions. Dr. Bain of Bangalore possesses a half pagoda³ with the legend श्रीप्रतापदेवराय (sic) and of the same type as the corresponding pagoda. Two quarter pagodas in my cabinet have on the obverse an elephant which faces the left, and on the reverse the legend श्रीदेवराय. No fanam or silver coin with Devarāja's name has been hitherto discovered. Copper coins of Devarāja are very common in the South-Indian bāzārs. They have on the obverse a bull or an elephant, and on the reverse the legends श्रीदेवराय, प्रतापदेवराय, रायगजगंडभेरुंड, or श्रीनीलकंठ.⁴

TRANSLATION.

Let there be prosperity! (Verse 1.) May the religion of the lord of the three worlds, the religion of Jina, the unfailing characteristic of which is the glorious and extremely mysterious scepticism, be victorious! ¹

(Line 1.) The victorious and illustrious prince Vira-Vijaya sprang from the brave prince Devarāja (I.), who resembled the king of the gods and who was descended in his turn from the glorious mahārāja Harihara (II.), whose body was produced by the results of the good deeds of the illustrious king Bukka, who, just as the full-moon from the ocean, (rose) from the illustrious Yādava race (Yādavānvaya). The virtuous mahārāja Abhinava-Devarāja (i.e., the young Devarāja, or Devarāja II.),—(who sprang) from this (Vira-Vijaya), just as a heap of large rubies from the Rohaṇa mountain,² who made the throne of his empire firm by polity and valour, and who was known by the surnames of rājādhirāja, rājāparamēśvara, etc.,—in order that his fame and merit might last as long as the moon and the stars,—caused a temple (chaityālaya) of stone to be built to the Arhat Pārśvanātha,—who rules over the empire of all knowledge, and who well knew how to proclaim the doctrine of scepticism (syādvāda-vidyā ³),—in a street of the Pān-supārī Bāzār (Kramuka-parṇāpana) at his (the king's) residence Vijayanagara, that was situated in the midst of (the country called) Karṇāṭa-deśa, which was protected by his orders.

(Verse 2.) There was a country (deśa), Karṇāṭa by name, which was the abode of all wealth, and which equalled heaven, the seat of the gods.⁴

(Verse 3.) In this (country) there is a city, called Vijayanagarī, whose lovely palaces are as high as mountains, and than which none among the cities is more important in great power.

(Line 7.) Through the mass of the rays, (which issue from) its golden walls, and which are reflected in the water of its moat, this (city) closely resembles the earth, that is surrounded by the girdle of the ocean, which is encircled by the lustre of the submarine fire (bādhava ⁵).

(Verse 4.) The illustrious, brilliant and wise king Bukka,—who is the ornament of the race of Yādu (Yādu-kula), who has reached the highest point of power and beauty, whose appearance is as lovely as that of Rāma, who has acquired wealth by his good fortune, who has subdued (all) quarters by his valour, (who crushes) the crowd of rival kings, just as a young elephant¹ a group of lotuses, and whose arrows split the heads of the kings of his enemies,—shines on earth (and) watches over it.

³ See page 158, note 1, and compare syādvāda-mata in lines 25 f. of the present inscription.

⁴ With purōddātana, "an eater of the sacrificial cake," "a god," compare the synonym purōddābhuj in the Sitapāharadha, sarga ii, verse 106.

⁵ The same spelling of the word is found in the Kānarese and Telugu dictionaries. Dr. Gundert's Malayālam Dictionary has baḍavāgni and vaḍavāgni, Winslow's Tamil Dictionary பாடல், பாடல் and பாடல்-இடை.

(Versé 5.) Resplendent is his son, king Harihara (II.), whose strength is well-known, (who has proved) a splendid helmsman in crossing the great ocean of poverty, who has equalled the bearer of the axe² by his gifts of land and the son of the sun³ by his gifts of gold, and who has deposited his fame in pillars of victory (jayastambha), which he erected in an uninterrupted line on the shore of the great ocean.

(Versé 6.) From him sprang the most excellent and illustrious lord Devarāja (I.), the worship (nīrājana) of whose lotus-feet was performed with a lamp, (that consisted of) the precious stones, which were set in the glittering diadems on the multitude of the heads of the excellent⁴ kings of his enemies⁵; (who gladdened) the learned, just as the moon the night-lotuses; who was a mine of well-known prowess; and who was voluntarily chosen as husband by (Lakshmi) the mistress of heroes.

(Versé 7.) Victorious in this world is his son, the liberal prince Vijaya, who is to be respected on account of his pious deeds, who has put an end to the distress of beggars by his gifts, who has crushed the armies of his foes, and the light of the courage of whose numerous enemies was extinguished by the (mere) touch of the violent⁶ wind, that was produced by his banners, which were raised (or: by the comet, which rose) at the very moment of the starting of his victorious expeditions.

(Versé 8.) Just as Jayanta from (Indra) the conqueror of (the demon) Jambha, and just as the full-moon from the ocean, there was born in this world from that prince Vijaya the passionless and illustrious king Devarāja (II.), whose sword was engaged in destroying numbers of lives,—just as the king of serpents is engaged in swallowing masses of wind,—⁷ of rival kings, who met (him) in mighty battles, which were fought with excessive fury.

(Versé 9.) Resplendent is the lord of the earth, the illustrious Vīra-Devarāja (II.), whose body was produced by the power of the austerities of prince Vijaya; who removed the great distress of the crowd of his prostrated enemies (by pardoning them); and whose enemies' great fortitude,—as a mass of clouds,—was scattered by the (mere) touch of the violent wind, that was produced by (the flapping of) the ears,—which resembled winnowing-baskets,—of the troop of his elephants, who were longing for battles, that raged with fierce fury.

(Versé 10.) (Ever) rising is this lord Devarāja (II.), the eyes of the wives of the crowd of whose rival kings are filled with showers of tears,—as if it were by the dense smoke of the fire of (his) prowess,—by the dust, (which rises from) the earth, that is split by the hoofs of his steeds, which are terrible in their attack; and who, just as the sun (dispels) darkness,

² I.e., Parasurāma, who gave the earth to Kāśyapa.

³ I.e., Karpā, the son of Sūrya by Kuntī.

⁴ The word talaja, which is mentioned in the Amarakosa and in the Kanarese and Telugu dictionaries, has not yet been met with in Sanskrit literature.

⁵ I.e., in the case of Devarāja I., the jewels on the bowing heads of conquered kings did the duty of the lamp, which is waved before an idol in the nīrājana (also called śrīdīkṣa) ceremony.

⁶ The root spādy is here used in the parasmaipada, though the Dhātupāṭha enumerates it among the anuddīṭaḥ.

⁷ The snakes are supposed to subsist on wind and are therefore called pasandandāḥ, "the eaters of wind."

(subduces) the excessive anger,—which is indefatigable in bold challenges,—¹ of many brave and daring warriors of the opposite party.

(Verse 11.) In consequence of the rising of the sun, which is called the prowess of the illustrious lord Devarāja (II.), the son of king Vijaya, there spreads its splendour over the whole world the white lotus-flower of his fame, in which the points of the compass are the petals, the golden mountain (Meru) the seed-vessel,² the elephants of the quarters the bees, and the oceans so many drops of honey.³

(Verse 12.) Since the famous and illustrious lord Devarāja (II.), the son of Vijaya, is making gifts, the praise of Karna has ceased; Dadhichi⁴ and others are worthy of blame; even the clouds (megha) have turned useless (mogha); nobody thinks of the thinking-jewel (chintāmani); the kalpa-trees appear very small (alpa); and the heavenly cow (naichiki) confesses her inferiority (utkata).

(Verse 13.) This excellent prince Devarāja (II.), (who resembles) the tree of heaven (by his liberality) to Brāhmanas, is sporting with his queens, (viz.) the river of (his) fame, the earth and the goddess of speech. Verily, he resembles Śauri (Vishnu), but has not to beg for his revenue (bali), (while Vishnu in his dwarf-incarnation begged land from Bali); he resembles the moon, but is spotless; he resembles Śakra (Indra), but does not destroy families (gotra), (while Indra split the mountains:—gotra);⁵ and he resembles the sun, but never transgresses the right course, (while the sun daily changes his course in the sky).

(Verse 14.) His form is as lovely as that of Cupid, and he overcomes the great pride of women. His own surnames (biruda) are rājādhirāja, rājaparamēśvara,⁶ etc.

(Verse 15.) In power, he resembles king Bukka, in liberality—the lord Harihara (II.), in prowess—the illustrious lord Devarāja (I.), and in wisdom—king Vijaya.⁷

(Verses 16 to 20.) This illustrious lord Devarāja (II.), who was famed both for wisdom and modesty, caused to be built in a street of the above-mentioned city,⁸ in the Pān-supārī Bāzār (Parna-pūṭphalīpāṇa), when the Śāka year measured by the Vasus (8), the oceans (4), the qualities (3) and the moon (1) had passed, in the (cyclic) year Parābhava, on Kārtiki (i.e., on the day of the full-moon in the month of Kārtika), in order to propagate (his) merit and fame, a temple (chaityāgāra) of stone, which gives delight to the good, which is a bridge for (his) whole merit, and which shall last as long as the earth,

² Karpikāchala, "the mountain of the seed-vessel," is one of the names of Meru; Sevadhala is a synonym of Hemadri, "the golden mountain," another name of Meru.

³ Mitranda, an adjective from maranda, is not found in the dictionaries and seems to be formed by the composer of the inscription, in order to satisfy the exigencies of the metre.

⁴ According to the Mahābhārata, Dadhicha (alias Dadhichi) gave up his bones, from which a thunderbolt was formed to kill Vritra; see Böhtlingk and Roth's Sanskrit Dictionary, s. v.

⁵ The same play on the two meanings of gotrabhīd occurs in Kullhaga's Rājatarāṅginī, taraṅga i, verse 92.

⁶ राजाद्रिमपदपरमेश्वर means literally: "(a compound ending in) paramēśvara, the first member of which is rājan."

Similar 'poetical' expressions are चतुरूपपदो वेद: in the Kirtidājunīya, sarga xviii, verse 44; हिरण्यपूर्वः कशिपुः in the Situplāradha, sarga i, verse 42; देवपूर्वो गिरिः in the Meghadūta, verse 42; दशपूर्वरयः and राजोपपद निशान्तम् in the Raghuvamśa, sarga viii, verse 29, and sarga xvi, verse 40.

⁷ This verse contains the names of the predecessors of Devarāja II. in chronological order, and may thus be considered as a third copy of the pedigree, which was given twice before, once in prose (lines 1 to 4) and once in verse (lines 8 to 15.)

the sun and the moon, to the blessed Pārśva, the lord of Jinas, who has maimed the arrogant bombast of evil-speakers by establishing the doctrine of scepticism (syādvāda-mata), who is celebrated as a lion to the herd of extremely furious elephants :—the eighteen sins (dosha), who is a sun, (which gladdens) the good, like lotuses, who is to be praised by Indra and all other lords of the gods, who is the beloved husband of the goddess of salvation, and who is an ocean of mercy.

NO. 154. A ROCK-INSCRIPTION AT THE FORT OF GUTTI.

This inscription is engraved on a rock not far from the summit of the fort of Gutti (Gooty) in the Anantapur District¹ and consists of one verse in the Sragdharā metre. At the time of the inscription, the fort of Gutti (Gutti-durga) belonged to king Bukka. By this, the well-known king of the first dynasty of Vijayanagara, whose inscriptions range between Śaka 1276 [current] and 1290 [expired],² seems to be meant.

Besides the subjoined inscription, the fort of Gutti bears three very rough rock-inscriptions in Kanarese of Tribhuvanamalladeva, i.e., of the Western Chālukya king Vikramāditya VI., surnamed Tribhuvanamalla. The dates of two of them, which I succeeded in making out, are recorded in the new era started by Vikramāditya VI., the Chālukya-Vikrama-varsha, which, according to Mr. Fleet,³ began with the king's accession in Śaka 997 [expired]. The two inscriptions are dated in the 46th and 47th years, which corresponded to the cyclic years Plava and Śubhakṛit, i.e., Śaka 1043 and 1044 [expired] or A.D. 1121-22 and 1122-23.

Prosperity! Victorious is the king of forts, the best of mountains, Gutti-durga by name! (This mountain is) the nave of the wheel of the sovereignty over the whole earth of the illustrious king Bukka, the lord of fortune, who is another form (assumed by) Viṣṇu for protecting the world, (and it is his) ancient auspicious⁵ conch-shell with convolutions from left to right (dakṣiṇāvarta-saṅkha),—⁶ (and thus resembles) the centre of the discus of (Viṣṇu) the lord of Lakṣmī, and his conch-shell Pāṇchajanya.

⁵ Literally: "which is known to increase prosperity."

⁶ According to Pramādāśa Mitra's translation of the Sdhityadarpaṇa, p. 98, note, "such a conch-shell is believed to ensure prosperity to the house in which it remains." In the present inscription, the simile seems to have been suggested by the shape of the mountain, and by the windings of the road which leads up to the fort.

No. 155. AN INSCRIPTION OF KULOTTUNGA-CHOĻA AT CHIDAMBARAM.

The subjoined Grantha inscription is engraved on the outside of the east wall of the innermost prākāra of the great temple at Chidambaram in the South Arcot District. It consists of two verses in the Sragdharā metre, each of which eulogises the victories of Kulottunga-ChoĻa over the five Pāṇdyas. The first verse further states, that the king burnt the fort of Korgāra (Korgāra-durga) and defeated the KeraĻas. Korgāra is probably a Sanskritised form of Korkai in the Tinnevely District, the ancient capital of the Pāṇdyas.¹ The second verse records, that Kulottunga-ChoĻa placed a pillar of victory on the Sahyādri mountain, i.e., the Western Ghāts. This he must have done after his conquest of the KeraĻas, which is mentioned in the first verse.

According to a grant published by Mr. Fleet,² Kulottunga-ChoĻa-deva was the name of two of the Eastern Chalukyan successors of the ChoĻa kings. Of the first of these, who was also called Rājendra-ChoĻa and ruled from Śaka 985 to 1034, the Chellūr grant reports that he conquered the Kerala and Pāṇḍya countries.³ From an unpublished Chidambaram inscription⁴ it appears, that the surname Kulottunga-ChoĻa-deva was also borne by the maternal grandfather of the last-mentioned king, the ChoĻa king Rājendra-ChoĻa-deva, among whose conquests we find both the Kerala and Pāṇḍya countries.⁵ Consequently, it is impossible to say to which Kulottunga-ChoĻa the subjoined inscription has to be referred.⁶

POSTSCRIPT.

A lately discovered inscription of the Bilvanâthesvara Temple at Tiruvallam in the North Arcot District contains the following important date:—

கொராஜாஜகேஸரிவரமன்⁴ யாண்டு எ ஆவது இவ்வாடடை
அயப்பசித்திங்கன் வெளையோவியும் இரவையும பெற்ற விஷுவில்⁵ லொரிதுமணத்தி-
னான்று; “in the 7th year (of the reign) of Ko-Râjarâjakesarivarman, on the day of an eclipse of the moon at the equinox, which corresponded to (the nakshatra)
Revati and to a full-moon (in) the month of Aippasi in this (above-mentioned) year.”

Mr. Fleet, to whom I submitted this date for favour of calculation, kindly informed me by return of post on the 18th January 1890, that the date of the inscription is the 26th September A.D. 1010 (Śaka 933 current), when there was an eclipse of the moon in Aippasi on the day of the equinox and the Revati nakshatra. This result falls within the probable period, which I have assigned to the Chola king Ko-Râjakesarivarman, alias Râjarâja-deva,⁶ and fixes Śaka 927 current = A.D. 1004-5 as the first year of his reign. His latest known date,—the 29th year of his reign,—⁷ corresponds to Śaka 955 current = A.D. 1032-33.

² The composer of the inscription mentions the Persians (Tamil டாசா, Sanskrit पार्सीक) merely as the representatives of the most distant nations which were known to him.

³ Savidhika seems to be used in the sense of djindvidhaya.

⁴ Read கௌ-ரீ-சு-ரு.
